AutoDewey

Julianne Beall, Assistant Editor, DDC
Caroline Saccucci, Head, Dewey Section
Library of Congress

Outline

- Overview and scope of AutoDewey
- Underlying algorithms: Examples
- How it works: Cataloger's viewpoint

Overview and scope

(1)

- AutoDewey is designed to take advantage of those areas where Library of Congress Classification (LCC) and DDC are similar enough that semi-automatic assignment of DDC number based on LCC number is useful
- At LC, LCC numbers are assigned outside the Dewey Section
- AutoDewey is designed for easy use by the same catalogers who assign LCC numbers

Overview and scope (2)

- Literature: individual works (including anonymous works); individual authors
- Why that limit?
- LCC and DDC are similar enough in treatment of individual literary works and individual literary authors for inclusion in AutoDewey to be useful

Overview and scope

- Poetry, drama, fiction
- Why that limit?
- The cataloger must select the form of literature, because LCC does not separate by form and DDC does; those are the most common and most easily identifiable forms of literature

Overview and scope

(4)

- Literatures in English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese languages

English
Australia	New Zealand
Canada	South Africa
Great Britain	United States
French
Canada	France
Italian
Italy
Portuguese
Brazil	Portugal

Spanish
Argentina	Dominican Rep.	Paraguay
Bolivia	Ecuador	Peru
Brazil	Guatemala	Puerto Rico
Chile	Honduras	Salvador
Colombia	Mexico	Spain
Cost Rica	Nicaragua	Venezuela
Cuba	Panama	Uruguay

Overview and scope

(5)

- Plans to expand for German literature
- AutoDewey could be expanded to include literatures in other languages—but those are the literatures most frequently classified by the Dewey Section

Overview and scope

- Software developed at Library of Congress for use with LC's Voyager ILS
- AutoDewey assigns standard DDC numbers with segmentation marks to show where abridged number ends
- If automatic input is chosen, AutoDewey inserts the full MARC 082 field, e.g.:

082 00 ‡a 821/.914 ‡2 23

Overview and scope

(7)

- AutoDewey could be modified to insert automatically the new MARC field:

883 - Machine-generated Metadata Provenance (R)

082 00$81\p$a829/.3$223

883 1#$81\p$aautodewey$d20120407$qDLC$c1

Overview and scope

(8)

- 4,697 numbers added in FY2012 via AutoDewey
- Ca. 400 titles per month
- Processing time
 - 10 seconds or less with no literary time period
 - 1+ minutes if literary time period needs to be researched

Underlying algorithms: Examples

LCC PR6050-PR6076

- PR6050-PR6076 English literature--1961-2000
Including usually authors beginning to publish about 1950, flourishing after 1960

How AutoDewey works: Cataloger's viewpoint

Steps

- Step 1: In bibliographic record, select 050 field
- Step 2: In AutoDewey, select literary form
- [Step 2a: If necessary, select literary period]
- Step 3: Automatically add Dewey number, or paste it manually into 082 field

Example 1. Select 050 field and select Fiction
