WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1865.

THE CITY.

TRAIN FOR SPRINGFIELD.—Extra sleeping cars will be provided on the regular train at 7:30 this evening for Springfield, for the accommodation of those who wish to attend the funeral ceremonies.

HOME FOR THE FRIENDLESS.—The Board of Managers of the Home for the Friendless will hold their monthly meeting at the Home on Wednesday, May 3d, at 3 o'clock, p. m.

JOHNNY ALLEN leaves the Academy of Music today on a brief journey to St. Louis, where he will enact the tambourine in Morris & Wilson's Minstrel Troupe. He opens with a first-class war song to the tune of "Tramp, Tramp."

SANITARY FAIR.—All who would like to attend a pleasant party for the benefit of the Sanitary Fair will go to Mr. Martine's Dancing Academy, this (Wednesday) evening. Tickets at the door or at Root & Cady's music store.

FOR THE FAIR.—A dramatic entertainment for the benefit of the Fair, will be given this evening in the University of St. Mary of the Lake. A first class programme has been arranged, and the students have determined that it shall be carried out faithfully.

AVE MARIA.—The first number of a monthly Catholic journal, "devoted to the honor" of the Virgin Mary, and bearing the title which forms the caption of this paragraph, has just been issued at Notre Dame, Indiana, edited by the faculty of the University. The periodical is neatly gotten up, and contains several very readable articles.—It is for sale at all the Cathoral bookstores in the city.

VIEW OF THE PROCESSION.—A very fine view of the funeral procession as it filed into the Court House, showing the funeral car, military, &c., has been taken by T. Hine, the well known photographic artist, No. 83 Clark street. It is a memento that should be in the possession of every one. The view was taken at the most interesting moment in the whole course of the cortege.

TABLEAUX.—The veteran "boys in light blue" propose to do something for their comrades in the field and hospital. On Friday evening of this week they will give a fine entertainment in Smith's Concert Hall, in aid of the Fair, being assisted by many young ladies. The military scenes will be new and thrilling. We hope our citizens will give the encouragement that the occasion demands. See advertisement.

SEASON GOODS.—Messrs. Hunt, Barbour & Bale, Nos. 3, 5 and 7 Lake street, will this day open one hundred cases of new dress goods suitable to the season, comprising a large assortment of delaines and prints. Also a line of bleached and brown cottons. Tradesmen desirous of purchasing a stock of goods of unexceptionable quality, and containing all the best and most approved patterns, will do well to inspect the stock of Messrs. Hunt & Co. before they purchase elsewhere.

THE PHANTOM TRAVELER TO-NIGHT.—Our amusement lovers should bear in mind that this novel and beautiful entertainment opens for the first time in our city, to-night, at Smith & Nixon's Hall. The wonderful variety and beauty of its representations, the startling novelty of its effects, such as the Ghost Scene, &c., and its life-like portraitures of a I that interests us from day to day, have at the most unprecedented success at the first minds of the age, and contribute to crowd its entertainments wherever given. It will doubtless be the same here.

N. W. FAIR.—The Ladies' Central Committee of the Congregational Churches for the Northwestern Fair are requested to meet on Wednesday, at three o'clock p. m., at the rooms of the Hartford Insurance Company, No. 49 Lasalle street.

All the ladies belonging to the various Methodist Churches, interested in the Fair, are urged to attend a special meeting this morning, at half past nine o'clock, in room No. 17 M. E. Church Block, per order of the chairman.

CHARLESTON AND SUMTER.—An address will be delivered in Bryan Hall on Thursday evening next by Henry M. Smith, Esq., of the TRIBUNE, under the auspices of the U. S. Sanitary Christian Commission, and narrating the principal incidents of the memorable trip to Charleston to raise the old flag over Fort Sumter. Mr. Smith will describe the moral and religious aspect of the colored population; the return of the expedition to Washington, the call of the Hilinois delegation on President Johnson and other subjects of absorbing interest to the American people to-day.

TRIAL OF THE WASHINGTON ASSASSINS.—Major General Hunter received yesterday a telegram commanding him immediately to proceed to Washington to preside over the trial of the parties charged with being accessories to the plot in partial pursuance of which the President was assassinated. Secretary Seward dangerously wounded, and all the other members of the Cabinet intended to have been destroyed. About eighty persons have been arrested on this charge. Gen. Hunter is a man who dare not stand any humbug; he goes right to the substance of the thing at once, and universally renders judgment in accordance with the evidence adduced.

HOME COMFORT.—We are not advising people to smoke. It is not a particular pleasant habit—to some people. But there is considerable truth as well as poetry in what a writer has said: "He who doth not smoke hath either known no great grief or reiseeth himself the softest consolation, that which cometh from heaven." Grief, if people must smoke, and smoke they will, let them smoke good tobacco. The "Home Comfort" manufactured by Heath & Cumming, is of this description. It is good tobacco. The demand for the "Home Comfort" has been so large that dealers have not been able to obtain a supply. After the 23d inst. this will be remedied, and those either those who desire to buy this brand can be accommodated.

MORE PICKPOCKETS IN LIMBO.—A large delegation of thieves took their departure from this city yesterday morning bound for Springfield, where they hope to receive less opposition from the police than they found here. Twenty-one pickpockets were taken into custody on Monday, and yesterday seven more were caught. Their names are: James Stanton, John B. Harris, Thomas Mullin, John Bradley, John Williams, Thomas Andrews, and Jacob Scott. The man Stanton is reported to be the most expert and dexterous pickpocket in the Northwest.

ABOUT SIX O'CLOCK last evening two men were released from their waiters in the saloon in the alley at the rear of the TRIBUNE office. One of them lost $100 and the other $60. The robbery was committed by a party of rowdies congregated in the saloon. No arrests were made.

ROBBERIES.—The residence of Mr. Gearhard, on Milwaukee avenue between Green and Indiana streets, during the absence of the family yesterday evening, was entered by some unknown robbers, and a chest broken open, from which they took $2,000. The entrance was made through the front door.

On Monday afternoon the grocery store of Messrs. Mahew & Babcock, on the corner of Lake Grove avenue and 22d street, was entered during the absence of the occupants and robbed of $24 in money and goods to the amount of about $50.

About ten o'clock on Monday night, two men with a two horse wagon drove up to a house on the southwest plank road, near Madison street, during the absence of all the men folks, and coolly entered the kitchen, carried out and loaded their vehicle with everything they could find in the way of cabbies, and then drove off. There were women in the house at the time, but they were deterred from giving an alarm by one of the robbers brandishing a revolver and threatening to kill them if they made any noise.

AN ENCORE.—The following is going the rounds of the papers, credited to the St. Louis Republican:

"The following occurrence, the result of a blunder on the part of an express agent, took place in this city recently. A young lady delicate health, daughter of a prominent and highly esteemed citizen, was sent to a water-cure establishment in Wisconsin, where it was hoped her health would improve. They, however, were disappointed, and the girl died, and her remains were forwarded by express to this city for burial. When the sufficient family were about to take a last look at the face of the deceased, and the lid of the coffin was raised, they were shocked and mortified to discover that the corpse was the body of a man, which, by some unfortunate blunder of the agent of the express company, had been sent to them instead of the lady intended. Investigation showed that the coffins had been exchanged in Chicago and each sent in the wrong direction."

BOLD ROBBERY.—Yesterday afternoon two men entered the saloon kept by Abe Kay, on the corner of Desplaines and Fulton streets, and called for ale, which we given them by Mrs. Kay. In payment for the liquor one of the men offered a $20 note, but Mrs. Kay, mistrusting from the suspicious appearance of the man, that the note was not a large bill was merely a ruse to find out how much money she had, refused to change it. Twice more they drank, each time presenting the same bill. Not liking to lose fifty cents, she concluded to change the bill, and with that intent took out a wallet containing $64 and commenced counting out the required amount, when her suspicions again returning, she "pre-emptorily" refused to change the bill, and placed the wallet in the drawer. Just then another rogue entered the saloon from the kitchen, and going there she left her little girl in the saloon. Scarcely was her back turned before one of the men reached over the counter and attracted the waiter from the drawer, and ran out. The little girl followed them several blocks, calling on the passers by to arrest the men, but her cries were unheeded and they made good their escape.

AMUSEMENTS.

OPERA.—The opera season will be resumed on this evening. The repertoire for the week is as follows: On this evening Mlle Ortolani will make her debut as Amina in Sonnambula. On Thursday evening, I Puritani will be given, with Miss Kellogg as Elvira. On Friday evening, Signor Mazzoleni, the celebrated tenor, will make his debut in Verdi's immense opera, Ballo in Maschera, as Ricbard the Governor, his great role, and Carlotta Zucchi as Amelia. On Saturday, for Matinee, Martha. The box office at the Opera House will be opened this morning at 9 o'clock.

MCVICKER'S.—This evening Mr and Miss Coulduck will appear in an entirely new domestic drama entitled "Jessie McLane; or the Story of a Coal Mine," and a new farce written by a gentleman of this city, entitled "A Supper in Dixie." "Milky White" is in rehersal.

COL. WOOD'S MUSEUM.—This excellent little theater will re-open this afternoon, on which occasion will be presented the successful drama entitled "Peep O' Day," with new scenery and a good cast. The management have several novelties in preparation.

HOWE'S CIRCUS.—This circus will exhibit in Chicago this evening, at the corner of State and Twelfth streets, under the direction of P. T. Howes, proprietor, and continue afternoon and evening until the 6th inst.

"SMITH & NIXON'S.—The Phantom Traveler will commence his journey to night at Smith & Nixon's. Entertainments will be given afternoon and evening until Saturday night.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Arlington, Leon & Kelly will re-commence their entertainments at the Academy of Music this evening. The attraction is the great equestrian spectacle of Mazeppa and an excellent programme of musical gems.

Rebuke of Flunkyism.

CHICAGO, May 2, 1865.

Editors Chicago Tribune:

The Directors of the Christian Commission ought at once to make a pledge that they will not use a dollar of the money and supplies furnished them to feed rebels; they are given for no such purpose; and that they will summary dismiss all agents who go calling upon or toadying to General Lee or any other traitor. In the very paper in which you publish the fact that the contributions of the fathers and mothers of the soldiers whom these villains have starved are being bestowed upon pauper rebels, is a letter setting forth that these people shouted when they heard of Lincoln's death. Not another dime should the Christian Commission receive until it takes some action in this matter.

THE PRESIDENT'S FUNERAL.

THE BODY DEPARTED FOR SPRINGFIELD.

Visiting the Corpse in the Court House Yesterday.

Escorting the Remains to the Depot--Torchlight Procession---The Funeral Dirge.

[Meetings, Resolutions, &c.

The corse of our honored President has left Chicago—and forward on the last stage of his journey to the tomb. Ere these lines meet the eyes of a majority of our readers the sepultural cortege will have deposited the remains in the State House—carried the lifeless form back to the place where it rested more than four years ago he took leave of his friends on departing to assume the honors and duties of the Presidential office. He has returned to that home, oh how sadly! yet not until he had accomplished the glorious mission on which he set out, yes one far more glorious than probably even he dared to picture to himself when last he stood in the street of Springfield, and sadly bade them "farewell." In this, his return, he comes as one who has conquered through death—he has established in this his martyrdom his right to be called "The Savior of his country." "HE DIED TO MAKE US FREE."

Chicago has shown during the past two days, into as no other has deeply his mourning and the record of his virtues is engraven on the popular heart. Out of the depths of our love for him and detestation of the foul crime which indited to his assassination, not less than of the crimsoned hand now laid low, which was but the accursed instrument of a Satanic power, we have shown how a people can mourn. The grim pageant of woe which attended the corpse in its passage through our city, imposing though it were, was in truth but a feeble index of the grief which welled up in every breast, and which at times overpowered because too profound for utterance. The national mourning was nowhere more intense than in Chicago, perhaps nowhere so deep, so heartfelt. Here he was known and personally beloved, and of the untold thousands who assembled to receive here the dust, scarcely one felt but that he was honored in being able to pay the last sad tribute of respect to the remains.

And now the void, now the time that shall tell how great the loss, how polignant our sorrow. Our father, our friend, our deliverer, is dead; the first outburst of grief, great, overwhelming, though it were, was yet broken by the excitement of the occasion, and our subsequent wailings even have not been without sad interest. But now it is the form's forever departed, and naught save the memory of the man remains, now comes the thick desolation and sorrow, which, though we so demonstrative, is more affective. The head of the nation, of the race, is cone from among us—even his form has departed. We mourn him as no inclosed gone; the place which knew him so long, shall know him no more forever.

It is indeed a terrible, scarcely tolerable void. Lincoln has been identified with Chicago as no other President. He was peculiarly our, both by education, by residence, by promotion, by homogeneity of thought and temperament. He was our President in every sense of the word. It was here that he gained those ideas of men and things which fitted him for the exalted position he occupied; here that his ability was first recognized. It was upon our shoulders that he was lifted up above the rest of the people, and sustained in his struggle, first for the Presidency, and then for the freedom and honor of the Nation. He was our President and commenced his labors which has led him heavenward, and landed him among the clouds, whose glittering forms now obscure from from our view; and now we we stand at the base of that ladder, and look wistfully upward, we can discern the hand of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well; we can see, as did Jacob, the angels of God ascending and descending upon it, and we know that he is gone to his rest. Oh! that like that other man of God who was taken up into heaven, a double portion of his spirit may be upon his successor! Then will indeed the sting of the dread visitation be taken away, and we may cease to mourn if, bearing his mantle, we can see the flood of our national trouble divide and let us pass safely over.

Twas thus and why we mourned here: it is for this that we will still mourn his loss, and hold in greater reverence his memory. We will say we, in the light of our bereavement, exclaim, as one man—

Remember thee?
Yes, from the lake of our memory
Will not thy image mildest records,
And thy right record all alone shall live
Within the book and volume of our brain,
Unmixed with baser matter.

We cannot forget him if we would; the benefits he conferred on our country are too far reaching to cannot perish, raised a monument more enduring than marble, on whose sides are graven the bright letters with as iron pen and lead in the rock for ever. The four millions of bondmen whom he led out of the house of bondage, will ever be as a living epistle to his worth, known and read of all men, and he who have been and are redeemed from the blight of the curse under his direction shall ever cherish him in grateful remembrance. But not alone to the enslaved, but as the emancipator, that Lincoln is immortal. He was the genius at whose touch the chains fell from the lance of the captive, the oppressed were made free; he the prophet who came prea ching the acceptable year of the Lord, he the minister who in the day of vengeance of our God to the enemies of our national liberty.

The hundreds of thousands of people who followed the inanimate clay along our streets, and gazed on the cold features of the departed, are but the advanced guard of the mighty host, who will tramp enduring through the ages shall in this city bear consecrated memory to whatever is sweet by the memory of the devoted martyr that the Union he died to maintain "must and shall be preserved." Which generations hence will but hallow his memory the more, and still more deeply endear him to the hearts of the millions! and as the light of liberty, civilization, of the dawn over the peoples of the earth, and men everywhere pray for the time when there shall be greater reason to be proud of her martyr emancipator, and treasure up still more gratefully each memento of him whose fame she will be the brightest jewel in our civic crown.

LYING IN STATE.

The corpse of our murdered President was borne from Court House about ten o'clock on Monday afternoon, and passed by the whole procession of about forty thousand people. The doors were closed at six o'clock in order to allow the body to be put in order. The doors were then thrown open, and the crowd was allowed to take a last look at the face of the deceased, and the lid of the coffin was raised, they were shocked and mortified to discover that the corpse was the body of a man, which, by some unfortunate blunder of the agent of the express company, had been sent to them instead of the lady intended. The cortege was escorted by the torch bearers, who marched parallel with it and three feet from the sidewalk.

AT THE DEPOT.

The procession, to the music of Vass' Band, marched along Washington to Market, thence to Madison and along Canal street to the depot of the St. Louis and Chicago railroad. The depot buildings were appropriately draped, and across the track was suspended a magnificent dar, tastefully draped and festooned. The procession passed within the enclosure, and, while the remains were being placed in the car prepared for them, the German Sangerbund sang several airs, prominent among which were the following: "Schlummre Sanft," words by Otto, 1.0b: "O Sanctissima;" "Eucegerviac," and "Unter allen Wipfeln."

THE CARS.

The special train, which carried the remains of the President and the escort in charge, consisted of ten cars, beautifully draped and decorated. It is drawn by Engine No. 38, over which J. Jackman, Master Mechanic of the St Louis Road, presides. The Conductor of the train is Amos Brunckley, and Robert Hale, Esq., the Superintendent of the road, accompanies it. The train is preceded from ten minutes in advance by a pilot engine, No. 46, and every precaution used to avoid accidents. The corpse will arrive at Springfield at eight o'clock this morning, averaging a rate of speed a little less than eighteen miles an hour.

DEPARTURE.

At 9:30 precisely, the train left the depot, followed by a dense mass of people, on foot and carriages. And thus have ended the demonstrations in Chicago in honor of the noble dead. We have recapitulated in brief the part our city has taken in this. It was fitting that here in the midst of those who knew him most intimately and sustained by his struggle, first for the Presidency, and then for the freedom and honor of the Nation. He was our President and commenced his labors which has led him heavenward, and landed him among the clouds, whose glittering forms now obscure from our view; and now we stand at the base of that ladder, and look wistfully upward, we can discern the hand of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well; we can see, as did Jacob, the angels of God ascending and descending upon it, and we know that he is gone to his rest. NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM ST. LOUIS.

Loss of a Steamer—Report that Jeff. Thompson, with 3,000 Men, has Invaded Texas—Surrender of the Sultana—Arrest of Five Fiends.

[Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

ST. LOUIS, May 2.

A dispatch received from Omaha this morning, states that the steamer Cora sunk about sixty miles above that place, in six feet of water. She was coming from Denver with gold and silver with a large freight. The Cora was a stern-wheeler, owned by Capt. Kinney of this city. It is thought she will be raised, as the river is falling. A bell boat has already been dispatched to her assistance.

The Ferryville Union mentions a report that Jeff. Thompson, with 3,000 men, had entered Southeast Missouri, and occupied Patterson, with the design of advancing upon Fredericktown and Pilot Knob.

The steamer Belle St. Louis arrived from Memphis at daylight this morning. On board were three hundred survivors of the Sultana disaster. Most of them were able to walk to Benton Barracks. Five dead hands belonging to the ill-fated steamer Sultana arrived from Memphis on Sunday evening, and attracted considerable attention by their reports of the disaster. Yesterday they were arrested for being drunk in the Provost Marshal, Major Mattock, who had just received instructions from Memphis to arrest these men and send them back in irons, which he executed just evening. After the Sultana was found to be on fire, these five men launched the yawl of the steamer, which would have held thirty, and jumping into it pushed down the stream through a rain of stringing, yelled, drowning soldiers, and resisted all efforts of the drowning men to cling to the boat by mashing their hands and arms with oars. If they made any exertion, they could have saved hundreds; but not they were bound for Memphis, and the first upward-bound boat, and they cared not who drowned.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

Particulars of the Destruction of the Rebel Fleet by Wood—Kirby Smith Proposes to Surrender.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The steamer Guiding Star has arrived, from New Orleans April 25th and Havana April 30d. The destruction of the rebel ram Webb is fully confirmed. She passed New Orleans under a heavy fire from our war vessels, the Lackawanna received a 100-lb shot through her bows. Only one vessel, the Hollyhock, Lieut. Commander Gherardi, was ready to follow, which kept close upon the track of the Webb until twenty-eight miles below the city. The rebels saw the sloop-of-war Richmond ready for action, and turned for the shore, the Hollyhock going straight at her. The Webb's officers and crew fired her in several places, and fled into the swamps. The boats of the Hollyhock boarded her and saved one man who had been abandoned, asleep aboard. They were unable to put out the flames from the inflammable nature of her cargo, and half of a shipment of her magazine. The Webb was armed with three guns, one a 32-pounder. There were 217 bales of cotton aboard, bound for Liverpool. It seems the pilots of the Richmond knew the Webb. Two of her crew to E gypt accompanied her.

The New Orleans Times of the 25th, reports that the steamer Gen. Hodges came out of Pass River on the 22d, and was fired into by the Rebels. Reports of negotiating with Col. Sprague, Chief of Staff of Gen. Force, for the surrender of Gen. Kirby Smith and his command.

Colonel Sprague left for Calro on the gunboat Lexington for the purpose of meeting Gen. Hodges at the mouth of the Red River, and there can be little doubt that Kirby Smith has accepted the terms of Gen. Force The terms of surrender are those proffered by Gen. Grant to Gen. Lee.

The Lexington and Hodges were at last accounts anchored at Hog Point, a few miles below the mouth of Red River.

The surrender of the rebel Secretary of Navy, Mallory, at Pensacola, is confirmed.

Gen. Steinbach's cavalry have all arrived at New Orleans to pay our troops, and as much more was on the way.

Claiborne, Ala., has been occupied by our cavalry, under Gen. Lucas, after a victory over a regiment of rebel cavalry, in which the rebels lost 10 killed, 15 wounded and 22 prisoners. Our loss was 3 killed and 9 wounded. Five hundred bales of cotton were secured.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Czar of Russia in France—Alleged Proposition to Louis Napoleon for an Alliance England against America—Markets—The Peace Prospects, &c., &c.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The steamer Scotia, from Liverpool 22d, and Queenstown 23d, has arrived.

The Czarwitch continues dangerously ill at Nice.

The Czar passed through Paris and had an interview with Napoleon.

The Mexican loan is highly successful.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

LIVERPOOL, April 22—p. m.—Cotton buoyant, and advanced ¼d, and in some cases more, for American.

Breadstuffs quiet and steady. Provisions quiet and steady.

The London Morning Advertiser asserts that on receipt of the Washington news, Napoleon proposed to the British Ambassador to Paris, that England and France should, by treaty offensive and defensive, unite and take Brazil and some of their other with all their land and sea forces, in the event of an attack on either Canada or Mexico. The Paris correspondent of the London, adds, that inquiry will be made into it on the reassembling of the Chambers, and a negative will be given to it if it is worth, as it is not referred to by any other journal.

The belief is that the struggle is over in the South continues to gain strength.

American securities and cotton are very buoyant in anticipation of the return of peace.

The London Army and Navy Gazette thinks it impossible that any organized resistance can be prolonged in the South.

The King of the Belgians, on his return to Brussels, was hissed in the streets.

The Index and some other pro-Southern journals still profess to look hopefully upon the success of the rebels, and predict a long war.

Mr. Harvey, United States Minister to Portugal, publishes a letter in the Times, giving the details of the firing into the Niagara and Sacramento at Lisbon, showing that they were entirely blameless, and exonerating the officers of Captain Craven for his forbearance.

The extraordinary case of Windsor, the defaulting dealer of the Mercantile Bank, New York, had been before the Court of the Queen's Bench, and was postponed sine die.

The Bank of France lost one and three quarters million francs, in specie, during the week.

The Times thinks the North South consents to re-enter the Union, the end is as far off as ever, and is as far from any evidence of peace. The idea of slavery is already half extinct and verging on its final doom, the Times thinks reconstruction possible, but it must be based on the recognition of the issue with the steady forbearance of neutrals, but with an earnest wish for steady and lasting peace.

FROM OREGON, ARIZONA AND CALIFORNIA.

Hanging of Horse Thieves—Fight with the Indians—Business, Mining and Crop Prospects—Gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Oregon papers mention the hanging of fifteen horse-thieves in Walla-Walla and adjoining counties in the last month, with a short time. The vigilance committees had a list of one hundred and fifty rogues, who will be caught and dealt with at sight of block and waite.

Arizona advices to the 12th of April mention another fight with the Apaches, in which twelve Indians were killed, and a large number of them wounded. The Indians fled.

Gilbert W. Hopkins, a member of the Arizona Legislature, carries Smith, one of the officers of that body, and several other whites, had lately been murdered by Indians.

Mining and business prosper.

The crops in California all look well.

The quicksilver mine at Sonoma during the last month were about $235,000.

Arrived last evening, the steamer Sierra Nevada, from Portland and Victoria, with $114,000 in gold.

FROM CUBA AND MEXICO

Victory for the Imperialists.

NEW YORK, May 2.—We have Havana advices to the 28th, and Vera Cruz to the 15th. The Mexican news is not important. The Imperialists are said to have been dispersed in the north of Mexico, and to have again defeated the same foe, after a pursuit of four leagues. The Revolutionists had defeated a squadron of Imperialists at Oaxpo, in the south.
