CIP E-books Update

- Began ingesting CIP e-books for LC permanent collections in July 2014
- 20 publishers currently sending LC their e-books
- 174 publishers have joined the CIP e-book program
- 6,690 metadata records created for CIP e-books that LC can request for the collections

- Developed a plan to contact publishers to receive more e-books
- FY15 Goal is to ingest 2,500 e-books; FY16: 7,500 e-books
- 2,521 CIP e-books have been ingested into LC's permanent collections as of April 30, 2015
- CIP e-books currently suppressed within LC catalog – do not have a mechanism to access them
- CIP e-book records are disseminated to OCLC and other providers through LC channels
- Valued by OCLC and vendors for their high quality

ECIP Cataloging Partnership Program

- 27 Current partners
- New additions since May 2014
 - UT Austin
 - University press titles
 - New York University Law Library
 - International law and University press titles related to law
 - ProQuest
 - Select Wiley titles
 - Harvard University
 - University press titles and Tupelo Press
 - Douglas County Libraries, Colorado
 - Algonquin and Workman
 - University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
 - University press titles
- In discussions with several other potential partners
- Joining the program now requires signing a Partnership Agreement Letter with the Library of Congress

International ECIP Program

- Working with LC-Cairo and LC-Rio Offices to create pilot programs for:
 - Qatari publications (with the Qatar National Library as the intermediary)
 - Uruguayan publications (no intermediary)
- Will allow the countries to create their CIP Programs using LC Best Practices
- More publications from Qatar and Uruguay will be available to users via OCLC and other sources with high quality cataloging
- Books will be sent to LC Overseas Offices for free from participating publishers
- Key CIP pages on the web will be translated to Spanish and can be used by U.S. publishers who principally publish materials in Spanish

CIP Data Block Changes

- After over a year of analysis and input from stakeholders, the CIP Data Block layout will be changed between July 1 and September 30, 2015.
- CIP Data Block Committee composed of LC experts and outside experts representing interests of school, public, special, and academic libraries.
- Changes proposed and vetted at 2015 ALA Midwinter; currently shared with multiple listservs and ALCTS Online Newsletter for input through June 1, 2015.
- The changes do not impact the MARC record – just the layout of the data block in the print or electronic book.
- Key changes:
 - Use of labels
 - Print and electronic merged
 - Addition of RDA elements
 - URL that links directly to LC catalog for retrieval of records
- More information on the proposed changes can be found at:
 - <http://www.loc.gov/publish/cip/news/>

CIP/Dewey Reorganization

- Proposal to merge the CIP and Dewey Sections within the USPRLL Division, effective October 1, 2015 being reviewed by Library management.
- Convergence between CIP and Dewey sections:
 - Most of DDC assignments are for ECIPs
 - Cross training between CIP and Dewey staff already taking place
 - Recruiting more partners who classify using DDC to bolster DDC assignments at LC
- Greater flexibility in how the staff in both sections perform their functions
- Requested hiring of two more CIP Program Specialists; one position is about to be posted internally
