4475.A1 Collected works
Of the five editions quoted in bibliographies under the head of collected works ("opera omnia") only two: Basileae 1554 and 1581, contain both the Italian works and the Latin works
The editions Basileae, 1496; Venetiis, 1501 and 1503 contain the Latin works only
Poetical works
4475.A2 Comprehensive editions (Italian and Latin works)
4475.A3 Selected works
Italian works
4476 Comprehensive editions
Title varies: Petrarca'a autograph collection (Codice vaticana latino 3195) entitled "Rerum vulgarium fragmenta," and "Triumphi"; in later editions the titles "Rime" or less frequently "Canzoniere" comprised both the Canzoniere proper and the poem Trionfi. The Canzoniere comprising 317 sonetti, 29 canzoni, 9 sestine and 7 ballate was divided by Petrarca into two parts, by later editors (Vellutello 1525 and Mansard 1819) in three or four parts respectively): 1. Sonetti e canzoni in vita di Madonna Laura; 2. Sonetti e canzoni in morte di Madonna Laura; 3. Sonetti e canzoni sopra vari argomenti or 1. and 2. as above; 3. Trionfi in vita ed in morte di Madonna Laura; 4. = 3. as above

The phase "comedia de ruido" refers to the machinery used in their exhibition; so that comedia de capa y espada, and especially comedia de santos, which often demanded a large apparatus, were not infrequently called comedia de ruido (de caso or de fabrica)
In the same way comedias de apariencias were plays demanding much scenery and scene-shifting.
