FRBR Practice

Understanding Conceptual Relationships and putting them into practice

June 2012

What are we doing today?

- Looking at various resources through surrogates, and describing them using the FRBR conceptual model
- We will practice by answering the questions:
 - What is the work(s)?
 - What is the expression(s)?
 - What is the manifestation(s)?
 - What is the item(s)?
 - What are the relationships?

2

What are we not doing today?

- We are not cataloging
- We are not referencing RDA rules
- We are not guiding you on the one true way of FRBR

3

First...

- We will walk through a few examples together, where I am giving you the answers.
- Next we will do a few more examples together, where you work with me to produce the answers.

4

Next...

- Then we will work together in small groups, where you and your colleagues will try to answer those questions from the packet we give you. Each group will have an instructor who can work with you.
- Finally we will share the answers that the different groups have decided on and discuss them, for as long as we have time.

5

Caveats

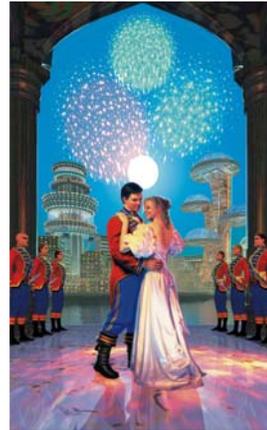

- Just because you define a Work/Expression, etc. does not automatically mean it will show up in the bibliographic record. We are still cataloging in the real world.
- This is a good place to play with the what-ifs, but don't let the what-ifs distract you too much. We are still cataloging in the real world.

Don't panic!

6

Example 1: A civil campaign

- Lois McMaster Bujold wrote a book about her ongoing fictional character Miles Vorkosigan, in which he pursues and wins his chosen lady.
- On her website, you can find out that it not only exists in English, but in a variety of translations. It has also been re-published in an omnibus edition (called Miles in love) with other novels in the series.

7

Example 1: Further signs of existence

- It also exists as a sound recording, both as an audio CD and as a download from audible.com.
- Please note that they are unabridged versions.
- Almost forgot – it is also available as an ebook.

8

Example 1: LC does have a copy

9

So let's answer the questions...

- What is the work(s)?
- What is the expression(s)?
- What is the manifestation(s)?
- What is the item(s)?
- What are the relationships?

10

Example 1: What is the work(s)?

- The story conceived by Bujold about Miles Vorkosigan courting and winning his chosen lady.

11

Example 1: What is the expression(s)?

- Work: A civil campaign
 - The original English
 - The multitude of translations
 - The spoken word version

12

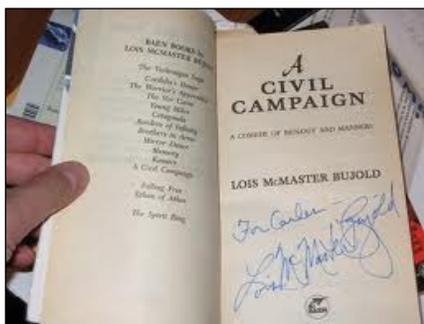

Example 1: What is the manifestation(s)?

- Translations
 - For example, Italian translation: Guerra di strategie
- Spoken word
 - For example, Audible.com MP3 download
- The English text has multiple manifestations:
 - The original 1999 publication
 - The republication in the omnibus edition called Miles in love
 - The ebook formats

13

Example 1: What is the item(s)?

- LC owns one copy of only the original 1999 Baen publication.
- All the other manifestations have items owned by other libraries.

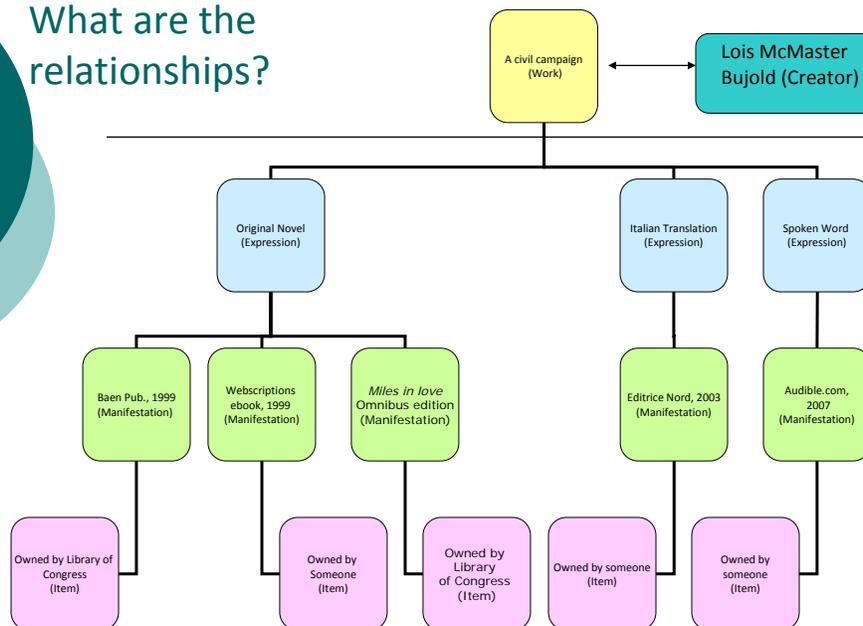

14

Example 1: What are the relationships?

- Bujold is the author (creator) of the Work
- The Work A civil campaign is expressed as text and spoken word, and in multiple languages based on the original English version.
- The Expressions are manifested in multiple publications, in books, ebooks, and audio recordings of various formats.
- The various Manifestations have individual Items that are owned by many. LC owns only one Item, the original English manifestation.

15

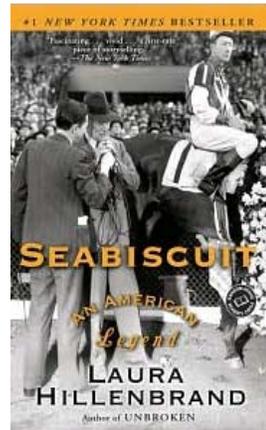

What are the relationships?

16

Example 2: Seabiscuit

- Laura Hillenbrand tells us the true story of a horse who became famous in 1938.
- She researched the story of Seabiscuit and decided to share it.

17

Example 2: Versions other than paper

- Before she even got the story written, a producer was interested in making it into a movie. The movie changed some facts but stuck with the basic story.
- It also exists as an ebook.
- The book was translated into Arabic, too!

18

Example 2: What is the work(s)?

- The story researched by Hillenbrand about a horse named Seabiscuit who became a champion.

21

Example 2: What is the expression(s)?

- Work: Seabiscuit
 - The original English
 - The Arabic translation
 - The movie version
 - Or this could be considered a new Work, since there were some significant changes.

22

Example 2: What is the manifestation(s)?

- English text
 - the ebook text
 - printed texts
 - Large print edition
- Translation
 - the Arabic publication
- Two-dimensional moving image
 - the DVD of the movie

23

Example 2: What is the item(s)?

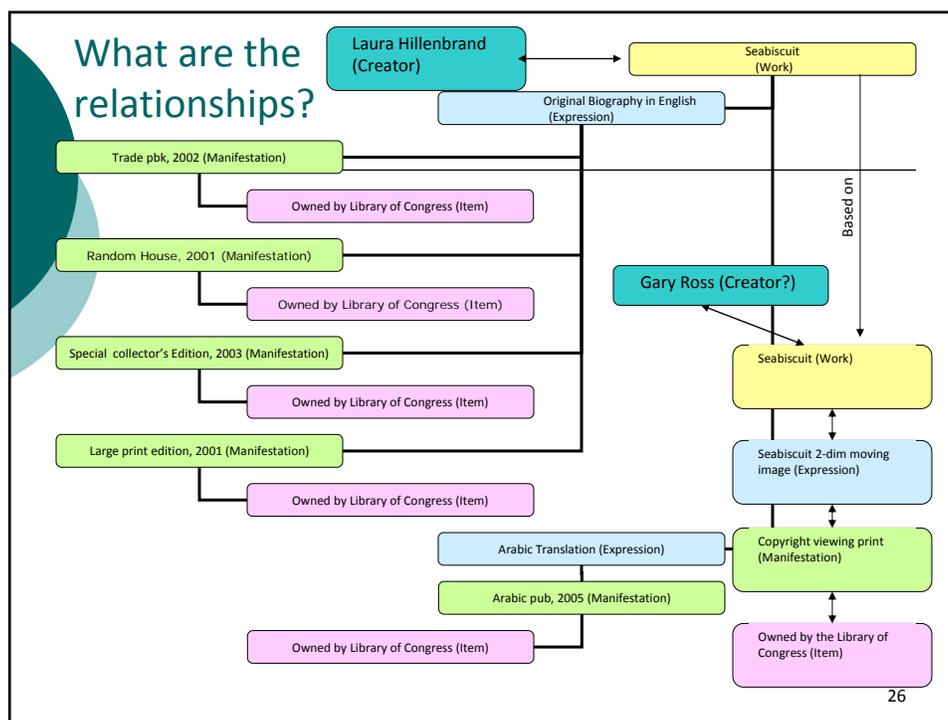

- Printed text
 - LC owns one copy of the original 2001 publication, as well as three others (the 2002 paperback, the 2001 large edition and the 2003 special collector's edition).
- Translation
 - LC owns a copy of the Arabic translation.
- Two-dimensional moving image
 - LC also owns a copy of the movie (viewing print from copyright).

24

Example 2: What are the relationships?

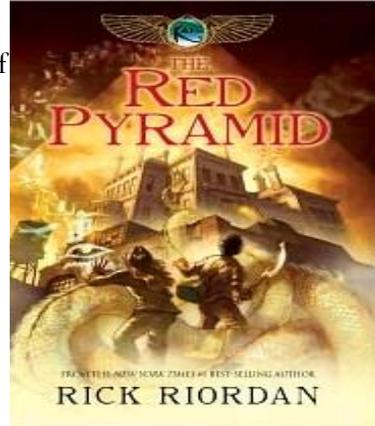

- Hillenbrand is the author (creator) of the Work
- The Work Seabiscuit is expressed as alphanumeric notation and two-dimensional moving image, and in multiple languages based on the original English version.
- The movie, which could be considered a new Work, was created by Gary Ross as writer of the screenplay and director of the movie.
- The Expressions are manifested in multiple publications, in books, ebooks, and video recordings of various formats.
- The various Manifestations have individual Items that are owned by many. LC owns three Items of the original English manifestation, the movie version, and one printed translation.

Example 3: The red pyramid

- Rick Riordan once again delves into the mythology of ancient peoples to come up with an adventure story for kids. The two main characters are Carter and Sadie, siblings separated for many years.
- In this series, he uses Egyptian mythology.

27

Example 3: Versions other than paper

- It also exists as an ebook (multiple booksellers).
- Oh, and a spoken word version as well.
- It is clearly stated that it is Book 1 of a series. So far, book 2 is published and book 3 is in the works.

28

So let's answer the questions...

- What is the work(s)?
- What is the expression(s)?
- What is the manifestation(s)?
- What is the item(s)?
- What are the relationships?

31

Example 3: What is the work(s)?

- The story conceived by Riordan about two children who get involved in an adventure involving Egyptian mythology.

32

Example 3: What is the expression(s)?

- Work: The red pyramid
 - The original English
 - The spoken word version

33

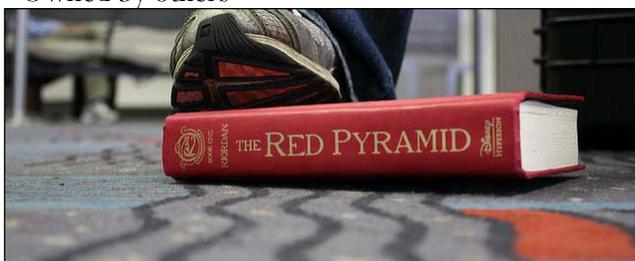

Example 3: What is the manifestation(s)?

- Text
 - The original text publications in hardcover and paperback
 - The ebook publication
 - The large print publication
- Spoken word
 - The audiobook production(s)

34

Example 3: What is the item(s)?

- Text
 - LC owns one copy of the original 2010 publication,
 - LC owns one copy of the large print manifestation.
- Spoken word
 - Owned by others

35

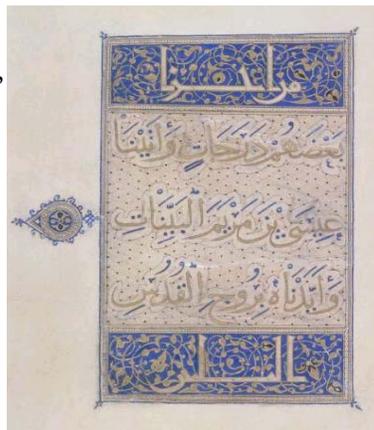

Example 3: What are the relationships?

- Riordan is the author (creator) of the Work
- The Work The red pyramid is expressed as alphanumeric notation and spoken word.
- The two Expressions are manifested in multiple publications, in books, ebooks, and sound recordings of various formats.
- The various Manifestations have individual Items that are owned by many. LC owns two Items of the original English manifestation, the original publication and the large print edition.

36

Example 4: Lámpara de los príncipes

- Al-Turtushi, an Arab from the 11th century Al-Andalus, had some ideas on the conduct and education of princes that he thought worthy to share.
- Arabic was naturally his chosen language.

37

Example 3: Versions other than Arabic

- Eventually someone translated it into Spanish and published it in 1930.
- The translator was Maximiliano Agustín Alarcón Santón. He wrote an essay about the translated work that was included in the 1930 book.

38

Example 3: Versions recent

- In 2010, Instituto de Estudios Albacetenses decided to publish it again, this time with a prologue about the translator, as well as the original publication.

39

Example 3: Versions in multiple formats

- It had two components
- The book contained:
 - The essay by Marín about Alarcón
 - The translator's prologue to the Spanish translation from 1930
- The CD-ROM contained
 - Everything that was in the book
 - The entire Spanish translation of Turtushi's original Arabic text

40

So let's answer the questions...

- What is the work(s)?
- What is the expression(s)?
- What is the manifestation(s)?
- What is the item(s)?
- What are the relationships?
 - P.S. Focus on the 2010 publication as the main point of the description.

42

Example 3: What is the work(s)?

- Turtushi's ideas on princes, called Siraj al-muluk
- Alarcón's ideas on translating the Arabic work
- Marín's ideas on Alarcón's translation

- Three works are in this publication

43

Example 3: What is the expression(s)?

- The Spanish translation of the Siraj al-muluk
- The translator's essay in Spanish
- The commentator's essay in Spanish

44

Example 3: What is the manifestation(s)?

- Each Work/Expression is manifested
- The Spanish translation of Siraj al-muluk is in electronic text (one manifestation)
- The translator's essay is in both printed text and electronic text (two manifestations)
- The commentator's essays is in both printed text and electronic text (two manifestations)

45

Example 3: What is the item(s)?

- LC owns one copy of the publication, which includes three Works/Expressions, and multiple manifestations of two of the Works in two component parts.

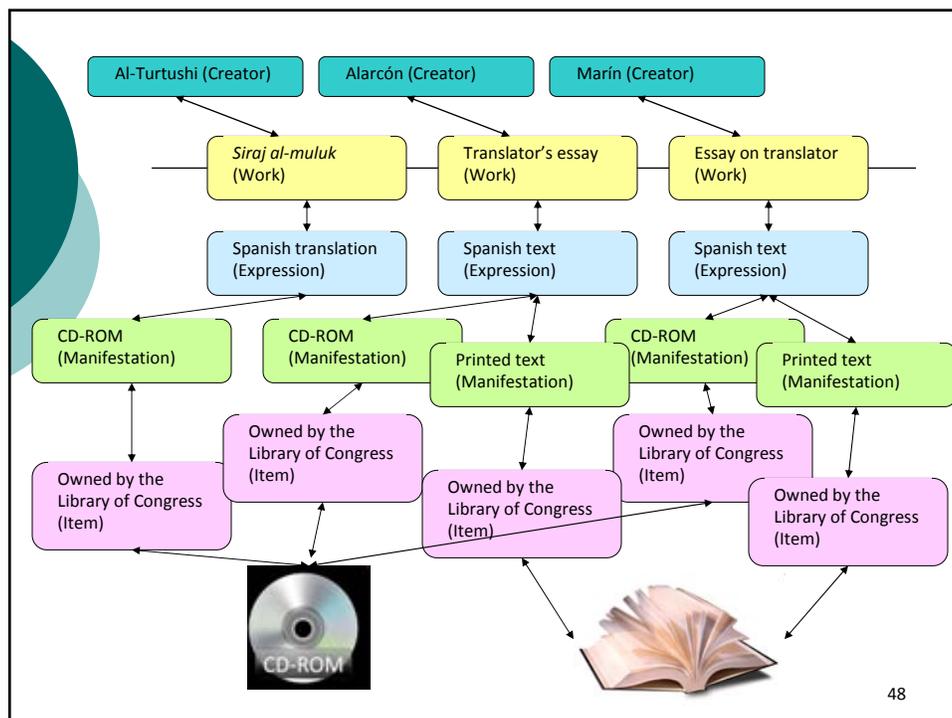

46

Example 3: What are the relationships?

- Turtushi is the author (creator) of the first Work
Alarcón is the author (creator) of the second Work and contributor to the first Work. Marín is the author (creator) of the third Work.
- All three Works are expressed as text, one of them in translation.
- The three separate Expressions are embodied in a combination of printed and electronic text.
- LC owns the Items.

47

48

Next, we move to group work...

- Get in groups of four to five, pick up the exercises, and work on them together to describe them using FRBR. We will discuss them after, as time allows.

Haggadah of Pesach

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Haggadah (Hebrew: הגדה, "telling") is a Jewish text that sets forth the order of the Passover Seder. Reading the Haggadah at the Seder table is a fulfillment of the Scriptural commandment to each Jew to "tell your son" of the Jewish liberation from slavery in Egypt as described in the Book of Exodus in the Torah. ("And thou shalt tell thy son in that day, saying: It is because of that which the LORD did for me when I came forth out of Egypt. " Ex. 13:8)

Sephardi and Mizrahi Jews also apply the term Haggadah to the service itself, as it constitutes the act of "telling your son."

Authorship

According to Jewish tradition, the Haggadah was compiled during the Mishnaic and Talmudic periods, although the exact date is unknown. It could not have been written earlier than the time of Rabbi Yehudah bar Elaay (circa 170 CE) who is the last tanna to be quoted therein. According to most Talmudic commentaries Rav and Shmuel argued on the compilation of the Haggadah,^[1] and hence it had not been completed as of then. Based on a Talmudic statement, it was completed by the time of Rav Nachman (mentioned in Pesachim 116a). There is a dispute, however, to which Rav Nachman, the Talmud was referring: According to some commentators, this was Rav Nachman bar Yaakov^[2] (circa 280 CE), while others maintain this was Rav Nachman bar Yitzchak (360 CE).^[3]

However the Malbim,^[4] along with a minority of commentators, believe that Rav and Shmuel were not arguing on its compilation, but rather on its interpretation, and hence was completed before then. According to this explanation; the Haggadah was written during the lifetime of Rav Yehudah haNasi,^[5] the compiler of the Mishna. The Malbim theorizes that the Haggadah was written by Rav Yehudah haNasi himself.

History

The oldest complete manuscript of the Haggadah dates to the 10th century. It is part of a prayer book compiled by Saadia Gaon. The earliest known Haggadot produced as works in their own right are manuscripts from the 13th and 14th centuries, such as "The Golden Haggadah" (probably Barcelona c. 1320) and the "Sarajevo Haggadah" (late fourteenth century). It is believed that the first printed Haggadot were produced in 1482, in Guadalajara, Spain; however this is mostly conjecture, as there is no printer's colophon. The oldest confirmed printed Haggadah was printed in Soncino, Italy in 1486 by the Soncino family.

FRBR Follow-up 1: Practicum: Applying the Concepts

Exercise 1

Although the Jewish printing community was quick to adopt the printing press as a means of producing texts, the general adoption rate of printed Haggadot was slow. By the end of the sixteenth century, only twenty-five editions had been printed. This number increased to thirty-seven during the seventeenth century, and 234 during the eighteenth century. It is not until the nineteenth century, when 1,269 separate editions were produced, that a significant shift is seen toward printed Haggadot as opposed to manuscripts. From 1900–1960 alone, over 1,100 Haggadot were printed.^[6]

While the main portions of the text of the Haggadah have remained mostly the same since their original compilation, there have been some additions after the last part of the text. Some of these additions, such as the cumulative songs "One Kid" ("חזק גדיא") and "Who Knows One?" ("אחד מי יודע"), which were added sometime in the fifteenth century, gained such acceptance that they became a standard to print at the back of the Haggadah.

FRBR Follow-up 1: Practicum: Applying the Concepts

Exercise 9

80144331: Menschen des 20. Jahrhunderts : Portraitphotographien von 1892-1952 / August Sander ; hrsg. von Gunther Sander ; Text von Ulrich Keller.

August Sander was a photographer who did a project of photographing people in portraits that reflected the professions of the 20th century. Each photograph can be considered a work (e.g. 98519192), but so can the overarching Work that was presented together as one concept, Menschen des 20. Jahrhunderts.

Genre Art Online

Sander, August

Sander, August

(b Herdorf, nr Siegen, 17 Nov 1876; d Cologne, 20 April 1964).

German photographer. After seven years as a miner and a period of national service, he studied painting in Dresden from 1901 to 1902, which allowed him to approach photography artistically. He had developed an interest in photography through work in photographic firms in Berlin, Magdeburg, Halle and Dresden from 1898 to 1899. In 1901 he went to Linz, where he first worked in the Greif Studio, which he ran from 1902 with his partner Franz Stukenberg as the Studio Sander & Stukenberg, until he founded the Studio August Sander für Kunstphotographie und Malerei in 1904. He sold the studio in 1909 and returned to Cologne, where he ran the Studio Blumberg & Hermann, and in 1910 he founded his own studio in Lindenthal.

At this point Sander started his major project, Menschen des 20. Jahrhunderts, with which he was involved until the 1950s. The theme for the project grew out of the portraits he made of Westerwald farmers, in whom he saw the archetypal contemporary man. Building on this, Sander developed a philosophy that placed man within a cyclic model of society. In these terms, the peasant class constituted the basis of society, hence his title for the series of 12 peasant portraits, Stamm-Mappe (see G. Sander, 1980, nos 1–12). The next group, of skilled workers, is the foundation of civic life, from lawyer to member of parliament, from soldier to banker. These are followed by intellectuals: artists, musicians and poets. The cycle closes with the Letzte Menschen, the insane, gypsies and beggars.

Although this cyclic model of society was anything but progressive, Sander came into conflict with the Nazis. The political activities of his son Erich were also held against him, and he had to interrupt work on this project between 1933 and 1939, when he devoted himself mainly to the themes of the Rhine countryside and the city of Cologne. The unusual quality of his portraiture is, above all, its systematic manner; this made the work a well-designed unity, not only in a sociological and philosophical sense, but also in photographic terms.

FRBR Follow-up 1: Practicum: Applying the Concepts

Exercise 9

August Sander: High School Student, gelatin silver print, 28.1 x...

Sander's portraits, whether half- or full-length, are always set in a simple environment (see fig.). He gave a controlled and intentional hint at the origin and profession of the sitter through the background or through clothes, hairstyle and gesture. There is no doubt of the peasant origin of the Three Young Farmers in Sunday Dress, Westerwald (1913; Cologne, Mus. Ludwig) on their way to a dance, for example, despite their clothing. They are given away by the landscape background, their physiognomy, their clumsy shoes and the rough walking-sticks they are carrying. In contrast, Three Generations of a Farming Family (1912; see G. Sander, 1980, no. 12) shows clearly that the group had sat on their chairs especially for the photograph. In the same way, the Master Cobbler (c. 1924; see G. Sander, 1980, no. 97) is sitting almost demonstratively at his work table, looking into the camera. In the picture of the Publisher (c. 1923–4; see G. Sander, 1980, no. 280), posing nonchalantly with stick and newspaper, it is apparent that the subject's relationship with the countryside behind him is not that of a farmer but of a walker.

Sander tried in all his works to incorporate this relationship of sitter to setting up to the last detail, with great confidence but at the same time with caution. Unfortunately he did not manage to publish his cycle during his lifetime. Through publication of Antlitz der Zeit and Deutschenspiegel in 1929, he could at least exhibit excerpts of his idea in book form. His son Gunther worked on Sander's archive of more than 540 portraits and published them under the title that August had originally planned, Menschen des 20. Jahrhunderts, in Munich in 1980.

After the demolition of his studio by bombing in 1944, when 40,000 negatives were destroyed, Sander retired to Kuchhausen in the Westerwald, where he carried on working under primitive conditions. His name was almost forgotten in Cologne, when L. Fritz Gruber, the organizer of the Photokina photographic exhibitions there, brought his photographs back to public attention by showing them at Photokina in 1951. He also convinced the city of Cologne to purchase for the Stadtmuseum the whole archive of views of the city, taken between 1935 and 1945, including the negatives. A publication titled Das alte Köln was to commemorate this purchase but was only completed posthumously in 1984. This part of Sander's work also shows a systematic approach, giving proof on the one hand of his closeness to his home town and, on the other hand, of a very specific and unusual mode of perception. His series of landscape photographs of the Rhine area, taken between 1934 and 1939, is an analogous case, forgotten for a long time and only published in book form in 1975.
