

flicc MEETING ANNOUNCEMENT MA2005-10

Library and Information Technology Association (LITA) Regional Institute

Wireless Networks in Libraries

This one-day institute will provide in-depth and practical information on wireless networking technologies, focusing on how to provide flexible access to network-based services and electronic resources in an increasingly mobile society. The workshop will look at the underpinnings of wireless networking, networking concepts that help put wireless networks into perspective and suggestions on how libraries can use wireless networks to enhance services and access to electronic resources. Points covered will be:

- Networking basics
- Basics of wireless networks and protocols
- Security issues in a wireless environment
- Library applications and implementations
- Deciding between wired and wireless networks
