This workshop is the third in a series from The MARC of Quality on excellence in cataloging. (The first two sessions are MARC21 in Your Library and Just for Copy Cats offered in February 2006.) Intended for the beginning cataloger or experienced cataloger who wants to learn more about bibliographic description, providing access points, and copy cataloging, this workshop focuses exclusively on books. During this four-day workshop, participants will master straightforward editing of copied records, including CIP records, and be able to make simple original records, including different editions.

As has been said before, “good cataloging doesn’t just happen.” This workshop gets right down to the details about how to make MARC records that work well in each and every MARC-based library automation system.

Whether you are copy cataloging or making original records, this workshop will teach you the essential cataloging rules and MARC standards that you need to know and how they fit together. Not only will you learn how to find your way around the Anglo American Cataloguing Rules (AACR2R), Library of Congress Rule Interpretations (LCRI), and the MARC coding standards (MARC21), but you will also learn these core cataloging skills:

- How to describe a book in enough detail for your users’ needs
- How to assign useful search terms, such as authors, illustrators, etc. (not subject headings)
- How to choose the correct MARC coding for a book record
- How to decide whether or not copied records truly match your items
- How to upgrade CIP records to provide missing data or edit changes
- How to create ‘different edition’ or ‘near match’ records
- What ‘bad’ cataloging looks like, and how to correct it.

Recommended prerequisites: MARC21 in Your Library; Just for Copy Cats
