Established in 1789 by Thomas Jefferson, the first Secretary of State, the Ralph J. Bunche Library is the oldest federal library. It has a rich collection that documents the history of the Department, and a mission today of providing services to a worldwide audience of more than 70,000. Spend the morning learning about the services and resources provided by the Library, and its priorities and plans as it balances its proud history with plans for future growth.

On the day of the event, all federal government attendees must bring their government issued photo IDs to obtain a badge from the Security Office.
