GENERAL INFORMATION

The Judge Advocate General's Corps has provided legal service to the Army community since 1775. However, it was not until World War II that an effort was made to provide formal training and instruction to lawyers in the military. In February 1942, as the uniformed lawyer's responsibilities increased in volume and complexity, specialized training courses were commenced at the National University Law School (now George Washington University National Law Center) in Washington, D.C.. "The Home of the Army Lawyer" then moved to the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor in August 1942, and some 2,684 attorneys received training there. The School was deactivated in 1946 during the general demobilization after World War II.

Following deactivation, a study on the administration of military justice indicated a requirement for continued formal training of lawyers in the military. The passage of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the beginning of the Korean conflict emphasized this need. As a result, the School was reactivated at Fort Myer, Virginia. The Army decided to establish a permanent branch service school for Army lawyers, located in an academic environment near Washington, D.C.. A site at the University of Virginia was selected, and on 2 August 1951, The Judge Advocate General's School was established in Charlottesville. During the ensuing years the School operated from a facility which housed only administrative offices and a few Bachelor Officer Quarters. Classes were held in other University buildings, predominantly Clark Hall at the University of Virginia School of Law.

In 1969 the School initiated planning for a new facility. Early in 1973 construction on a new building began. It was completed in May 1975 and dedicated on 25 June 1975. It is located near the University of Virginia School of Law and the Darden School of Business Administration. The building, owned by the University, is leased by the Army. Facilities include classrooms and seminar rooms with seating capacities from 10 to 200, two practice courtrooms, an auditorium, a library, a post exchange, and 80 motel-type rooms for individuals attending continuing legal education courses.

The Judge Advocate General's School teaches the fundamentals of military law to attorneys newly commissioned as judge advocates and provides graduate legal training for career military officers. Numerous continuing legal education courses and seminars, lasting from three days to three weeks, are given annually. The School also administers an extensive correspondence course continuing legal education program. More than 2,200 attorneys attend resident courses during the year. Correspondence course enrollment exceeds 2,200.

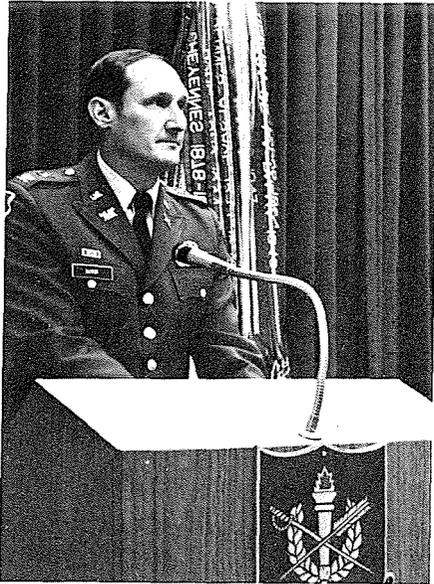

Functions of the School are divided among four departments: Academic; School Support; Developments, Doctrine and Literature; and Reserve Affairs.

The Academic Department develops and conducts all of the School's resident courses and is responsible for all nonresident instruction including administration of correspondence courses and preparation of training material for judge advocates attending Army reserve schools or serving in reserve component units. The department also manages development of legal subject training materials for use Army-wide.

The School Support Department serves as the principal administrative staff, controlling administrative, personnel, logistical, and budget matters. This department is also responsible for conference planning, local claims and legal assistance service, and the School's law library, and the TJAGSA Community Club.

The Developments, Doctrine and Literature Department determines in concept the tasks and problems likely to arise in the discharge of judge advocate functions in the Army of the future. This responsibility includes identification of problem areas in judge advocate mission performance, development of responses to existing or anticipated problems, as well as review of and participation in studies by other Army agencies to insure legal accuracy and sufficiency. Additionally, this department publishes professional literature such as the Military Law Review and The Army Lawyer, and manages the Army Law Library Service.

The Reserve Affairs Department is responsible for developing and providing programs to improve the readiness capability of Army Reserve and National Guard Judge Advocate General's Corps personnel. The department provides career management advice and assistance for all Judge Advocate General's Corps reserve component officers and assists in the development and administration of technical training programs. The department also supervises the operation of the Individual Mobilization Augmentee (IMA) Program for the School, the Office of The Judge Advocate General, the U.S. Army Legal Services Agency, and the U.S. Army Claims Service. It approves assignments of JAGC, USAR, officers to all other IMA positions; monitors policies and projects which involve the operation of Judge Advocate General's Service Organization Detachments; and reviews applications for branch transfer and direct appointment into the JAGC, USAR, and for Federal Recognition.

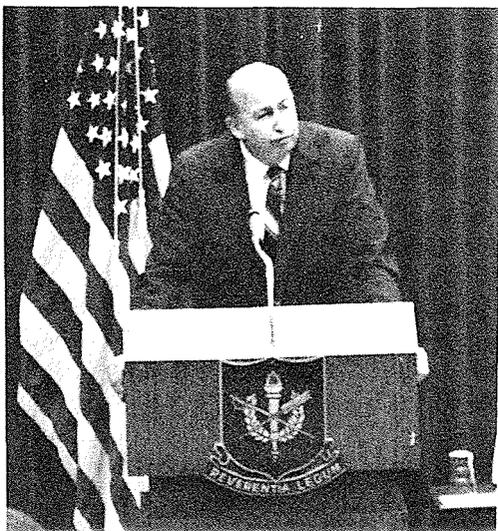

COMMANDANT'S REPORT

The demands of contemporary legal practice upon a law school are reflected in the three primary objectives of The Judge Advocate General's School. These are to insure the competency of newly admitted Army lawyers, to prepare experienced attorneys for supervisory positions and assignments of special responsibility within the Judge Advocate General's Corps, and to provide specialized continuing legal education to resident and nonresident students.

During the past year, The Judge Advocate General's School provided instruction to 3,120 students in 37 resident courses. The 31st Graduate Course, which consisted of 87 students including visiting military attorneys from Australia, Korea, and the Philippines, began using a new curriculum which placed all core subjects in the first two quarters of instruction and elective subjects in the last two quarters. Another change this year was the need for only two basic courses. A total of 148 attorneys were graduated from the 99th and 100th Basic Courses. Special ceremonies marked the opening reception and graduation of the Centennial Basic Course, and the graduates received distinctive diplomas. Lawyers from Great Britain, Thailand, and Jordan attended the Basic Courses this year. The continuing legal education courses, which range in length from three days to three weeks, were attended by more than 2,000 students from all branches of the military services, numerous government agencies, as well as the Canadian Armed Forces. Faculty members presented instruction at the Pre-Command Course at Fort Leavenworth, in addition to visiting 27 cities to present on-site instruction for some 1,700 Reserve Component judge advocates. The faculty also taught courses in Europe, Korea, and the PACOM area to active duty and civilian attorneys. Over 1,900 students were enrolled in the correspondence course program, and 1,800 videotapes were dubbed by the School and sent to legal offices throughout the world.

The Administrative and Civil Law Division expanded its extensive continuing legal education program this past year by offering two sessions of the new Administrative Law for Military Installations Course, and by adding a second session of the Federal Labor Relations Course. The Legal Assistance Branch, which taught two CLE courses, continues in its efforts to provide timely assistance and materials to legal assistance offices. The All States Consumer Law Guide, The Military Legal Assistance Officer's Federal Income Tax Guide, The Guide to Residential Real Estate Transactions, and The Army Legal Assistance Information Directory were added to the collection of publications written specifically for practitioners. These excellent guides have been distributed to every Army legal assistance office and to the other branches of the Armed Forces as well. Also, a series of videotapes dealing with wills, powers of attorney, and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act was produced for use in legal assistance briefings. The division sent two instructors to Europe for both the Administrative Law and Legal Assistance Conferences and teamed with the Criminal Law Division to provide CLE instruction at several locations in the Pacific. Instruction was also provided as part of the Advanced NCO Course at Fort Benjamin Harrison and the Pre-Command Course at Fort Leavenworth. One of the highlights of the academic year was the Seventh Charles L. Decker Lecture presented by Professor Henry J. Abraham, Woodrow Wilson School of Government and Foreign Affairs, University of Virginia.

The Criminal Law Division continued to provide specialized training to newly commissioned judge advocates in the Basic Course and to experienced judge advocates attending the Graduate Course. The Basic Course students each received five weeks of criminal law instruction, including a demanding clinical training program consisting of nine trial technique exercises and two practical court presentations. The core curriculum for the Graduate Course was modified to provide all students with general familiarity with criminal law subjects during the first two quarters, while providing eight advanced criminal law electives during the final two quarters. Because of increased demand, three sessions of the Criminal Trial Advocacy Course were offered to a total of 144 trial and defense counsel, and the Military Judge Course was offered to selected officers from all of the Armed Services. The Criminal Law New Developments Course brought over 90 judge advocates up-to-date on recent criminal law developments. This resident instruction was complemented by a guest speaker program that included Chief Judge Robinson O. Everett, U. S. Court of Military Appeals; Mr. Louis Natali, Regional Director, National Institute of Trial Advocacy; Dr. Robert Buckhout, Center for Responsive Psychology, Brooklyn College; and Professor Edward J. Imwinkelried, Washington University School of Law, who presented the Twelfth Kenneth J. Hodson Lecture in Criminal Law. In addition, a complete revision of DA

Pamphlet 27-10, Military Justice Handbook, The Trial Counsel and Defense Counsel, was published and distributed to the field.

The Contract Law Division sponsored seven CLE courses covering areas from Fiscal Law to the government's "contracting out" policies. The 1983 Government Contract Law Symposium featured recent and proposed changes affecting government contract law, particularly in the areas of disputes, debarments, suspension of contractors, and labor standards. In addition, the division provided training in contract law to Reserve Component judge advocates enrolled in the Advanced Course and the JAGSO Teams, and taught a Fiscal Law Course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Fort Benning, and Fort Monroe. Also, a new edition of DA Pamphlet 27-153, Procurement Law, was prepared.

The International Law Division offered a substantially revised and improved curriculum to the Graduate Course this year. Although the hours of core instruction were reduced slightly, the material taught is current and directly related to the judge advocate field mission, while the elective courses were expanded. A new CLE course, The Advanced Law of War Seminar, was added to continue "operationalizing" international law for middle-grade judge advocates and line officer counterparts. The division worked closely with Reserve Component personnel in developing mobilization and pre-mobilization training programs which are designed to increase the availability of properly trained forces. In addition, the Waldemar A. Solf Chair of International Law was established in October 1982. Mr. Solf's many contributions to the Army, the Corps and the international law community are legendary.

The Developments, Doctrine and Literature Department continued to publish The Army Lawyer and Military Law Review, while it managed the assets of the 257 libraries of the Army Law Library Service, planned SJA operations and force design through the year 2000, and expanded automatic data processing capabilities within the School.

The Reserve Affairs Department managed Triennial Training at the School for 82 Reserve Component judge advocates from International Law teams and Contract Law teams located throughout the United States. One hundred and twenty-eight Reserve Component JAGC officers also attended Phase VI of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course in residence. The number of positions in the Individual Mobilization Augmentee Program (formerly known as the Mobilization Designee Program) increased to 732. The Reserve Affairs Department assisted the National Guard Bureau in conducting a mobilization workshop involving Army National Guardsmen from the states and territories. In April 1983, the JAGC USAR Workshop was conducted by the Reserve Affairs Department. The Special Legal Assistance Officer Program was expanded to include assistance to the Claims Service and the Administrative and Civil Law Division of the School. The Law School Liaison Program was increased to include recruitment for the JAGC Reserve Program, without concurrent active duty, in addition to recruitment for active duty.

The School Support Department continued to provide total logistical and administrative support for the staff, faculty, and students.

A comprehensive plan to expand the JAG School building was developed and coordinated with the University of Virginia. An architectural report was submitted to the University in April 1983.

The past academic year has been a very full one for The Judge Advocate General's School. The staff and faculty of the School continue to provide quality professional legal education for today's lawyer while continuing to plan for the future.

ACCREDITATION

The Judge Advocate General's School curriculum provides continuing legal education for military lawyers. The Graduate Course was approved by the American Bar Association as a graduate law program on 25 February 1958. After an inspection in April 1981, the Accreditation Committee of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar of the American Bar Association sanctioned continued approval of the Judge Advocate Officer Resident Graduate Course as a specialized program beyond the first degree in law.

FACULTY

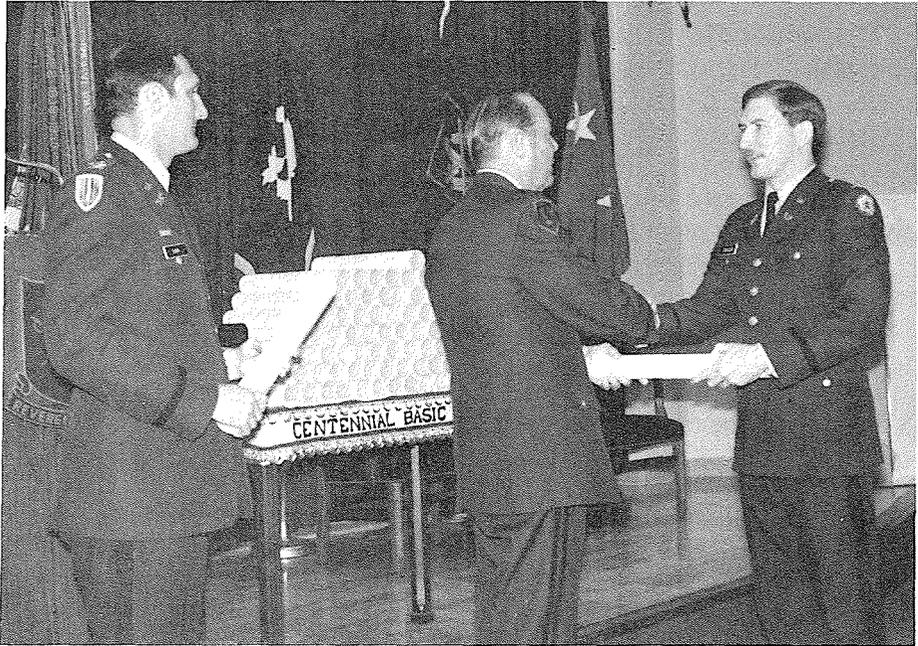

The Judge Advocate General's School Academic Department faculty consists of 30 military attorneys and two combat arms officers. Other attorneys on the School staff provide instruction periodically in areas of individual expertise. The faculty is supplemented by an extensive guest lecturer program. Faculty selections are based on academic qualifications, experience, and interest in teaching. Over 99 percent have completed graduate programs in law beyond the first professional degree. Most faculty members have considerable practical experience in the areas of the law they teach. Many of the instructors in the Criminal Law Division, for example, have served as military judges and all have extensive courtroom trial experience. Faculty members typically spend three to four years teaching, then return to other forms of legal practice. This rotation system aids in keeping instruction current and tied to the realities of military legal practice.

LIBRARY

The Judge Advocate General's School Library provides a place for research and study to faculty and students. The facility specializes in federal and military legal matters and maintains an extensive set of legal periodicals. The library provides ready access to the primary research materials needed in military legal practice. For more extensive research, students and faculty use the nearby Arthur J. Morris Law Library and the Alderman Library on the main grounds of the University.

RESIDENT PROGRAM

The Basic Course

The Basic Course is offered three times each year. It is a twelve-week introduction to the practice of law in the military society. Newly commissioned attorneys spend two weeks at Fort Lee, Virginia, learning basic military skills and becoming familiar with the day-to-day functions of the soldier and commander. The balance of the course is taught at the School in Charlottesville. The curriculum is designed to teach legal rules and skills and to illustrate the nature of legal problems likely to occur in military legal practice in judge advocate offices throughout the world. Approximately one half of the course focuses on criminal law with emphasis on preparing the student to be a trial attorney in the military court-martial system. One third of the course introduces the student to civil and administrative law practice. The remainder of the program covers the military lawyer's role in government contract law and international law. These subjects are wide-ranging and realistically prepare the student for military practice. Each attorney participates in at least two practice courts, in several sessions built around specific courtroom evidentiary problems, and in exercises structured to involve the student in typical law office situations. A graduate of the course can begin active practice with a minimum of "on-the-job" orientation.

The Graduate Course

The Graduate Course is comparable to an LL.M. program. The class consists of between 75 and 85 students selected from the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. All students are attorneys with about four to eight years of experience as practitioners. Attendance at the Graduate Course is competitive, with selection of Army lawyers made by a board of officers convened by The Judge Advocate General of the Army. The Graduate Course consumes a full resident academic year. It prepares experienced attorneys for first-line supervisory positions and other positions of special responsibility within the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

Instruction in the Graduate Course varies in form, with lecture and socratic dialogue predominating. Emphasis is placed on use of the seminar approach when possible, and the case method where time and subject permit. Contract Law instruction is primarily technique and fact oriented. Its goal is to give students specific practical skills in reviewing government contract law actions and solving performance problems arising under government contracts at military installations located in the United States. International Law emphasizes practical application of the theory of both public and private international law principles concentrating on the law of war and status of forces agreements. The Criminal Law Division presents a balanced offering of procedural and evidentiary subjects. Second quarter material emphasizes new developments in military justice management and problem solving. The mandatory curriculum is supplemented by electives in military jurisprudence, professional responsibility, scientific evidence, constitutional evidence, advanced trial advocacy, and substantive criminal law. The Administrative and Civil Law Division presents core instruction in the legal aspects of command of military installations, military and civilian personnel law, government information practices, labor relations, management, and selected additional subjects. Administrative law elective offerings go into some of the core topics in greater detail and individually cover legal assistance, nonappropriated funds, claims, and military personnel law.

Graduate Course students also receive extensive instruction in the area of both oral and written communications. They write an extensive research paper and present an information briefing to their fellow students on their paper. They also write a number of short papers.

Graduate Course instruction is presented in the form of core courses required of all students and electives scheduled in the spring semester. In lieu of some of the electives, Graduate Course students may prepare a thesis on a topic relevant to the practice of military law.

Continuing Legal Education Courses

Each year the School offers more than twenty specialized continuing legal education courses. They vary in length from three days to three weeks. The courses provide a practice-oriented continuing legal education program for military attorneys. Most of the courses provide an update in the law of a particular field, while some serve as advanced qualification courses for positions such as a military judge. Some of the courses are designed to acquaint non-lawyers with the role of the law in military activities. Some 2,200 students attend these resident courses annually.

Attendance at Resident Courses

Selection for attendance at the resident Basic and Graduate Courses is made by a board of officers convened by The Judge Advocate General. Attendance at most resident continuing legal education courses is primarily managed through the allocation of quotas to various Army commands. Attendance at the Military Judge Course is controlled by the U.S. Army Judiciary. The Judge Advocate General controls attendance at the Staff Judge Advocate Course. The School does not normally accept individual applications from attorneys or judge advocate offices. Interested Army lawyers should request a quota assignment through the training office of their organization.

Allocation of quotas is made on an annual basis. The size of most short courses is controlled in order to insure quality education through direct contact between the instructor and the student, and through seminar discussion among students. In June of each year the School furnishes Army major commands, other services, and selected federal agencies with a course schedule and a quota allocation by course. Prerequisites for attendance are listed in this bulletin. Determinations as to who will attend courses offered by the School are made by the various commands and agencies based on their needs. All funding and publication of travel orders are accomplished by the attendees' parent organizations.

NONRESIDENT PROGRAM

General Information

The Nonresident Instruction Program closely parallels resident instruction and provides a means for students to increase their knowledge, acquire new skills, and improve job proficiency. Instructional materials are mailed to the student postage-paid, and prepaid envelopes are provided for returning the materials.

A subcourse consists of one or more lessons pertaining to a specific subject. Each lesson has a study assignment in texts provided with the subcourse, or contains a practical exercise. After studying the text assignment, the student completes the lesson to test understanding of the text material, and then consults the approved solutions (which are furnished in the subcourse packet) to ascertain whether the lesson objective has been accomplished. When the student has completed all the lessons, the examination (which is also furnished with the subcourse materials) is taken.

A course consists of a series of subcourses or separate lessons designed to provide comprehensive instruction at a particular grade level, or in a particular job-oriented subject area. Normally, three subcourses are mailed at one time to a student enrolled in a course. As subcourses are completed and returned, additional subcourses are mailed.

Eligibility

The following individuals are eligible for enrollment:

■ Members of all components of the armed forces of the United States and retirees.

■ Civilian employees of any agency of the federal government whose official duties require knowledge obtainable through correspondence course study.

Restrictive eligibility requirements and course prerequisites are listed at the beginning of each course when applicable.

Enrollment Procedures

Applications for enrollment should be submitted on DA Form 145. This form is available through normal military distribution. The DA Form 145 should be submitted through one of the following channels:

■ Individuals on extended active duty with the U.S. Army should submit applications to their commanding officer.

■ Members of the USAR not on extended active duty should send applications to the commanding officer who is the custodian of their military personnel records jacket.

■ Non-unit reservists should send applications to: U.S. Army Reserve Component Personnel and Administration Center, 9700 Page Boulevard, St. Louis, Missouri 63132.

■ Members of the Army National Guard not on extended active duty should submit applications to their commanding officer.

■ Members of any component of the Armed Forces of the United States other than a component of the U.S. Army should submit applications as prescribed by the individual's branch of service.

■ Civilian employees of the U.S. Government should submit applications to their supervisors.

■ Retirees should submit their applications directly to the School.

Maintaining Enrollment

Students enrolled in selected subcourses must complete all subcourses in which enrolled or 30 credit hours, whichever is less, during each enrollment year.

Advanced Course students must complete 120 credit hours in each enrollment year. Basic Course students must complete the entire course in a one-year period.

Students enrolled in any course must complete the course in the time limitation listed at the beginning of each course.

Failure to participate for a period of six months constitutes a basis for canceling the enrollment.

Awards of resident credit will apply toward the annual requirements for enrollment for the enrollment year in which the award is made. Awards of constructive and equivalent credit will not apply toward annual requirements for enrollment. USAR school credit for common military subjects does not count toward annual credit hour requirements.

Miscellaneous Enrollment

An applicant who does not meet the eligibility requirements for enrollment in one of the judge advocate correspondence courses or who wishes only to take selected subcourses may enroll in specific subcourses provided the applicant's duties or prospective duties require the training that may be accomplished by means of such subcourse. Enrollment as a miscellaneous student requires that the student complete 30 credit hours per year or the individual subcourse, whichever is less.

Constructive and Equivalent Credit

Equivalent credit may be awarded for portions of the Basic and Advanced Courses. Equivalent credit will be granted upon satisfactory completion of essentially the same program of instruction at another military or civilian institution, and for completion of individual subcourses covering the same material when the subcourse was taken previously and not as part of either the Basic or the Advanced Course.

Equivalent credit will also be given for completion of the following resident courses at The Judge Advocate General's School:

Resident Course	Equivalent Credit for Subcourse
Criminal Trial Advocacy	JA 134
Contract Attorneys Course	JA 112
Fiscal Law Course	JA 115
Federal Labor Relations Course	JA 125A, JA 125B
Legal Assistance Course	JA 26, JA 129
Administrative Law for Military Installations	JA 121, JA 122, JA 123, JA 124, JA 126, JA 127
Law Office Management Course	JA 58
Military Judge Course	JA 36, JA 131, JA 132, JA 133, JA 134, JA 137
Law of War Workshop	JA 142

Constructive credit may be granted for truly unique, in-depth, specialized experience. Inasmuch as the purpose of this School is to provide military legal education and not to award credit for education, constructive or equivalent credit will be given principally when little purpose would be served by insisting that the student undergo a program of instruction for which the student already has met the qualifications or when the student has taken a similar course at another institution. Normal military legal experience will not qualify for constructive credit. Legal briefs prepared in the general practice of law will not normally satisfy the constructive credit requirement for JA 150.

Written applications for constructive or equivalent credit may be submitted along with a resume of qualifications. Address such requests to the Correspondence Course Officer.

Information for Reserve and National Guard Officers

Judge Advocate General's Corps officers in the Army Reserve and Army National Guard may fulfill military educational requirements for promotion through correspondence course programs. Completion of the Officer Basic Correspondence Course meets the requirements for promotion to captain. Completion of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Correspondence Course is required for promotion to major.

Members of the USAR and ARNGUS not on active duty may earn retirement points by participating in the Army Correspondence Course Program. One retirement point is earned for successful completion of three credit hours of correspondence course work. This School forwards statements of credit hours earned by reserve students to the servicing data processing centers within two weeks after the end of the reservist's retirement year. Retirement points for Army National Guard personnel are computed by National Guard Headquarters from copies of subcourse completion reports the School sends to students through their enrollment channels.

A reserve officer who wishes to attend a resident course phase should submit DA Form 1058, Application for Active Duty for Training. A National Guard officer should complete NGB Form 64, National Guard Bureau Application for School Training. The applicant should indicate in block 14 of the form the resident course for which application is made. An information copy of the form should be forwarded directly to: Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, U.S. Army, ATTN: Director, Reserve Affairs, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901.

Individuals who desire more information about the Army Judge Advocate reserve program should correspond with the Director, Reserve Affairs.

Correspondence Course Programs

The nonresident program includes an officer Basic and Advanced Course, an introductory course for legal clerks, and a course for Army warrant officers in the legal field. The detailed structure of each of these appears on the next several pages, and descriptions of individual subcourses follow.

The Basic Course is designed for the new reserve component military attorney. It offers fundamental legal instruction and serves as a brief overview of military legal practice. The course is not intended as a substitute for the resident class for those officers going on active duty.

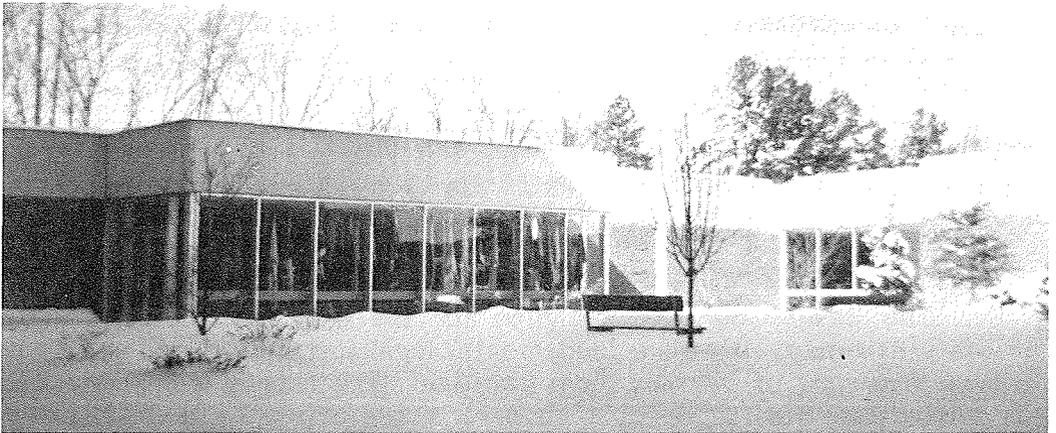

The Advanced Course is the nonresident version of the Graduate Course, described under the resident program in this booklet. The course provides graduate level instruction in criminal, contract, international, and administrative and civil law. Many of the subjects are offered in resident continuing legal education courses taught at the JAG School, and the School hosts a USAR school each summer to cover one of the legal subject phases. The common military subjects of Phases I, III, and V are also presented at USAR schools. Students may complete the Advanced Course by any combination of resident and nonresident work. A more detailed memorandum covering the relationship of the correspondence course program, USAR school courses, and resident CLE courses is provided to students when they enroll.

The Law for Legal Clerks Correspondence Course is the introductory phase of the resident Military Lawyer's Assistant Course and consists of basic material in legal research, criminal law, and organization of a staff judge advocate office.

The Legal Administrative Technician Correspondence Course covers communication skills, management, and selected legal subjects. It is designed to cover skills needed by the Army military law office manager.

Enrollment in two or more courses at the same time is not permitted.
