FOREWORD

The Judge Advocate General's School not only seeks to develop in its students superior technical proficiency but also attempts to create an understanding of the relationship between law and military decision making. Naturally enough, curricula are designed to give students specialized training in all phases of the military practice. But, more importantly, the School instills in its graduates the responsibility of guiding command decisions into harmony with the rule of law. The judge advocate is taught to appreciate and understand the mission of the Army and to apply his talents in accomplishing that mission in a legally acceptable manner.

This mission is broader than resident instruction. As defined by Army Regulations 350-115, it includes the following functions: (1) assisting The Judge Advocate General in the performance of his duties; (2) conducting resident instruction in military law; (3) planning, preparing, and monitoring Reserve judge advocate training programs; (4) conducting research in military legal matters; (5) preparing essential military legal publications; and (6) preparing course materials in legal subjects for other military service schools.

This report, like its predecessors, has a three-fold purpose:

1. To summarize the operations of the School during the past fiscal year.
2. To preserve in printed form a record of the School and its staff and faculty, students, and enlisted personnel.
3. To describe the various courses of instruction offered at the School.

HISTORY OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

Although judge advocates have served the United States Army since 1775, no effort was made to provide them with formal training in military law until the opening days of World War II. In preceding years, newly appointed judge advocates were trained empirically, but the Army's swift expansion soon emphasized the need for instructing attorneys entering the Corps in the manifold aspects of their new specialty.

In February 1942, as the uniformed lawyer's burden increased in complexity, specialized and refresher training courses for active duty personnel were commenced at the National University Law School, Washington, D. C. In August 1942, operations were transferred to The Judge Advocate General's School, physically located at the University of Michigan Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan, and commanded by Colonel Edward H. Young, JAGC. In the following months, hundreds of officers were trained at Ann Arbor. Indeed, by June 1944 over two-thirds of the active duty strength of the Judge Advocate General's Corps were graduates of the School. The end of the war, however, substantially reduced the need for trained military lawyers, and in 1946 the School, which had been initiated only on a temporary basis, was discontinued.

Nevertheless, plans were soon being devised in the Office of the Judge Advocate General to implement the recommendation of a committee, appointed in 1946 to study the administration of military justice, that provision be made for the training of Army lawyers in military law. The passage of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the coming of the Korean conflict accentuated the need for judge advocate training facilities. As a consequence, another temporary training facility was established at Fort Myer, Virginia, again under the guidance of Colonel Young. Approximately 200 officers attended several five-week courses in basic military law taught by five officer-instructors.

By this time, the decision had been made to establish a permanent branch service school. Although the advisability of locating the School within 200 miles of Washington was recognized, sites as far away as Fort Crockett, Texas, and Fort Rodman, Massachusetts, were considered. In the spring of 1951, a survey was made of the facilities offered by the University of Virginia, and on 2 August 1951 the present Judge Advocate General's School was established. Colonel Charles L. Decker was appointed as first Commandant. He served until 15 June 1955 when he was succeeded by Colonel Nathaniel B. Rieger. Colonel Rieger was in turn succeeded by Colonel John G. O'Brien who served from 1 March 1957 to 13 May 1961. Colonel John F. T. Murray, the present Commandant, began his tour of duty on 1 July 1961.

ORGANIZATION OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

The Judge Advocate General's School, U. S. Army, is located on the Grounds of the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. The School, the center for military legal education, is an approved law school rated by the American Bar Association inspectors as offering the highest quality specialized graduate program in law to be found in the United States. It provides a graduate law school atmosphere where the modern Army lawyer is professionally trained in the totality of military law.

The School's function is to orient the Army lawyer in the fundamentals of military law, to keep his training current and to give him specialized advanced legal training. In addition to formal instruction, legal publications, including texts and periodicals, are used in this instructional program.

The Judge Advocate General's School operates on a year-round basis. Over 7,500 students have graduated from courses offered at the School in its 13 years of operation at Charlottesville. (If we add the 2,684 graduates of courses held at Ann Arbor during the period 1942-1946, it is noted that the School graduated its 10,000th student during the current year. The honor falls to Captain Arthur H. Taylor of the Twelfth Career Class.) During Fiscal Year 1964, 832 students were graduated from courses offered at the School. Classes are held in the University of Virginia Law School, where many of the JAG School faculty maintain their offices. There, in the Law School, the JAG students can avail themselves of the largest law library in the South.

All newly commissioned officers in the Judge Advocate General's Corps receive an introductory course at the JAG School. This 10-week course is designed to train these newly commissioned lawyers in the fundamentals of military law and prepare them to advise the commander and his staff on legal problems, to perform the duties of trial and defense counsel before general courts-martial, to review reports of investigations and cases tried before summary and special courts-martial, and to give legal assistance to servicemen.

The course includes instruction on military justice, military administrative law, claims, procurement law, military science, international and comparative law, and staff judge advocate operations. Two such courses are held each year, one in the fall and one in the spring.

These students come from all over the United States and from allied nations. They bring to their classes their varied experiences as citizens and lawyers and the training of many different law schools. Upon their graduation, they are assigned to military posts throughout the United States, to such places as San Francisco, Chicago, San Antonio, New York City, Washington, and to stations in such foreign countries as Germany, Korea, Panama, and Viet Nam.

Outstanding career military lawyers return to the JAG School for a nine-month course in military law. This course is similar to a law school master's program. The student thoroughly pursues many subjects of importance to the military: legal history, jurisprudence, admiralty, military justice, military administrative law, procurement law, international law, comparative law, claims, civil affairs, legal assistance, military reservations, military training, and counterinsurgency. In addition, each career class student is required to write and defend a thesis on a significant problem area in military law. These students also participate in an annual logistical field exercise with career course students from other service schools.

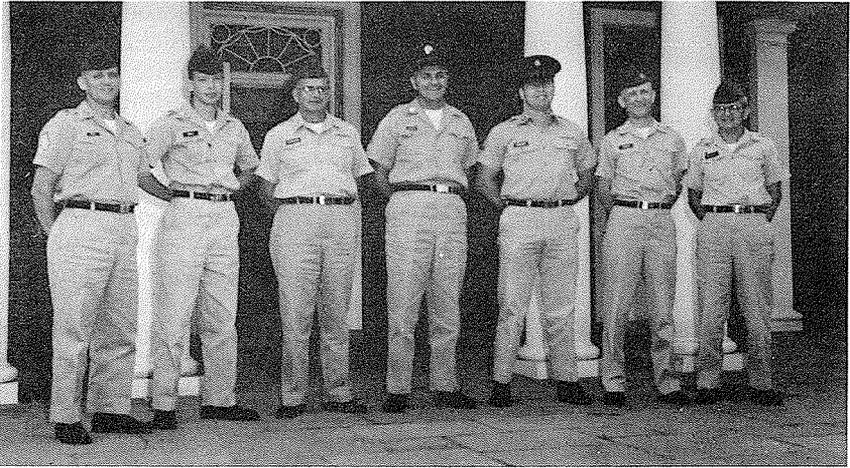

The School also conducts several two-week courses for judge advocates and for civilian attorneys employed by the armed services and federal government whose work lies within a specialty. Military justice, procurement law, international law, civil affairs law, civil law, and military affairs are among those courses offered.

Reservists not on active duty may also attend a two-week continuing legal education course in the summer, which course emphasizes current trends and developments.

The Academic Department. This department conducts resident instruction for all active Army and reserve judge advocates and prepares texts for resident instruction. Resident courses include the Judge Advocate General (Special) Course and the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course, which cover the entire field of military law. The department also conducts several specialized courses including courses in military justice, procurement law, international law, civil law, military affairs, civil affairs law, a combination resident and nonresident course, and refresher courses for reserve component officers. The department is comprised of the International and Comparative Law, Military Affairs, Military Justice, Military Training, and Procurement Law Divisions.

are offered by the School. Judge advocates in the field continue their military training by taking extension courses utilizing the "home study" method. Reservists not on active duty attend one of the many branch reserve military legal training schools located in population centers throughout the country where, in 24 two-hour sessions, they are kept informed on current military legal trends and developments.

the continued high level of professional legal competence required of military lawyers. In this connection, the department administers the judge advocate portion of the Army extension course program and maintains liaison through periodic staff visits with the USAR School Judge Advocate Branch Departments to which it distributes the instructional materials prepared by the School. The department prepares and distributes the judge advocate nonresident training material used in extension courses and USAR schools as well as the staff training material used by the Judge Advocate General Service Organization (JAGSO) Detachments and the Judge Advocate Sections of USAR and Army National Guard Divisions and other units.

The Plans and Publications Department. This department is responsible for the conduct and coordination of centralized research in the military legal field; prompt dissemination of the results of such research to members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps; formulation of policies and procedures to aid in maintaining a superior level of staff work by judge advocates; special project activities; the preparation of permanent and periodical military legal publications; the development and preparation of common course legal and quasi-legal instructional material including training films; and the planning and execution of an annual logistical exercise.

The Office of the School Secretary. This office formulates policies and, upon approval, executes policies concerning personnel, administration, security, management, and logistics. These responsibilities include the proper allocation and use of personnel, effective and efficient use of physical facilities, budget preparation and review, and analysis and control of fiscal matters.

Board of Visitors. To insure that the high standards of the School are maintained and to assist in the determination of areas requiring improvement, an annual inspection is made by the Board of Visitors. The Board, composed of five senior reserve officers who are leading practitioners and legal educators, examines the varied operations of the School and sums up its findings, with criticisms and recommendations, in a report submitted at the end of its inspection.

ACADEMIC ACTIVITIES

During Fiscal Year 1964, 13 resident courses were conducted with 832 students in attendance. (See Appendix V for the FY 1964 schedule of courses.) Attending these courses were 614 Army commissioned officers, 1 Army warrant officer, 17 Navy and Marine Corps officers, 68 Air Force officers, 117 civilians, and 15 allied officers from Canada, Thailand, Pakistan, Philippines, Turkey, Vietnam, Korea, and Iran. (See Appendix VI for a breakdown of students in residence at the School during FY 1964.) Civilian personnel from government agencies outside of the Department of Defense represented at the School during Fiscal Year 1964 included the Department of Justice, the Post Office Department, Federal Aviation Agency, the Small Business Administration, the General Services Administration, the National Aeronautics and Space Agency, the General Accounting Office, the Departments of the Interior and Commerce, Atomic Energy Commission, and the National Science Foundation. Of the 615 Army officers attending courses, 311 were active duty personnel while the remaining 304 were Reserve component officers.

Courses conducted during Fiscal Year 1964 included the nine-month Judge Advocate Officer Career Course (18-A-C22); two cycles of the ten-week Judge Advocate General (Special) Course (18-A-8101); the two-week Judge Advocate Officer Refresher (Reserve

Courses scheduled to be conducted during Fiscal Year 1965 are set forth in a chart in Appendix VII.

The official source of information concerning courses of instruction offered at all Army service schools, including The Judge Advocate General's School, is the Army School Catalog (Department of the Army Pamphlet

That catalog provides detailed information for staff officers, commanders, and personnel officers who are concerned with the selection of individuals for school attendance; for commissioned officers, both Active and Reserve, of the Armed Forces and civilian employees of the Government who are interested in attending particular courses; and for others who may wish to acquaint themselves with the Army's training opportunities. In addition, Army regulations govern related matters such as attendance by military personnel from foreign countries. These authorities should always be consulted for the latest official information. Quotas for all the numbered courses mentioned above are handled by the United States Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Virginia. Particular inquiries concerning this School may be addressed to the Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, United States Army, Charlottesville, Virginia.

Judge Advocate Officer Career Course. In this course, selected judge advocates are educated for leadership in the broad fields of military law. This course offers a year of graduate legal study in all areas of law relevant to military legal practice. It is fully accredited by the American Bar Association as meeting the highest standards required for a graduate legal study program. It is open to highly qualified and carefully selected career judge advocates or legal specialists of the Armed Forces of the United States and allied nations. The course is intended to deepen and broaden a philosophical appreciation of the role of law in its application to all phases of military life through recognition of the continual impact of legal principles and standards at all levels of command, and thus to prepare the officer student to render legal services to higher commanders under varying conditions of present and future military operations and organizations.

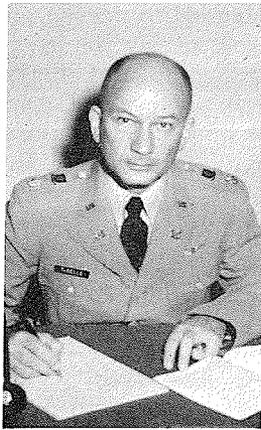

The curriculum of this thirty-four-week course (September-May) includes the study of military criminal law and practice, the philosophy of penology, public contract law, statutory and regulatory controls and directives for procurement, taxation, military administrative law concerning military and civilian personnel, investigative powers, administrative board procedures, administration of military reservations, nonappropriated fund activities, property, claims, litigation, individual legal assistance, civil affairs, domestic emergencies, international law, the legal aspects of counterinsurgency, comparative law, selected foreign legal systems, and jurisprudence.

In addition, successful completion of the course requires the submission of a thesis of graduate level quality that makes a substantial contribution to military legal scholarship. This requirement is regarded as the heart of the Career Course. Members of the Twelfth Career Course were given more than 300 scheduled hours to prepare and present their theses. Topics and scope notes for theses written by members of the Twelfth Career Course may be found in Appendix VIII. Several will be published in forthcoming issues of the Military Law Review.

The Twelfth Career Class began on 3 September 1963 and graduated on 15 May 1964. There were 32 students in attendance: 24 U. S. Army male judge advocates, 2 U. S. Army female judge advocates (for the first time in the School's history), 2 U. S. Navy law specialists, 4 foreign military lawyers: 2 from Turkey, 1 from the Philippines, 1 from Thailand. The design of the course fell into a two-semester format—that part of the curriculum coming prior to Christmas recess and that part following the recess. These two semesters will be described in the following paragraphs:

a. First Semester (3 September-19 December 1963):

(1) Block Instruction. Each of the four law teaching divisions

(Military Justice, Military Affairs, Procurement Law, and International and Comparative Law) was assigned a period of time in which that division would concentrate its instruction and give a four-hour examination at the end of its block. Military Affairs taught 3 September-12 October 1963, Military Justice from 14 October-9 November 1963, International and Comparative Law from 12 November-2 December 1963, and Procurement Law from 3 December-19 December 1963. During the block periods a jurisprudence course and some military training instruction were also scheduled as described below.

(2) The Judge Advocate General's Conference. The block instruction was interrupted by attendance of the class at all sessions of the JAG Conference 9-12 September 1963.

(3) Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. The block instruction was interrupted by attendance of the class at a Joint Civilian Orientation Conference conducted at Fort Benning, Georgia, 24-27 September 1963. The JCOC consisted of demonstrations of weapons, tactics and equipment (means of mobility).

(4) Jurisprudence. A thirty-hour course on jurisprudence, followed by a four-hour examination, was conducted by Professor Edwin W. Patterson, Scholar in Residence at the University of Virginia Law School, and Cardozo Professor Emeritus of Jurisprudence, Columbia University, during the period of 13 September-14 December 1963. His usual pattern was to conduct three hours during each week in which he taught.

(5) Military Training. Fourteen hours of command and staff procedures were taught by the Military Training Division during the block instruction periods.

(6) Choice of Thesis Topic. At the beginning of the course, the students were issued a list of thesis topics (with scopes) under each of the law teaching division's headings (Military Justice, Military Affairs, Procurement Law, and International and Comparative Law). They could choose one of the suggested topics or could submit one of their own creation for approval by the teaching division most directly related to the subject. Every student was required to select a thesis topic by 2 December 1963. Upon approval of his selection of a topic, a thesis adviser was assigned to him.

(7) Choice of Seminar Topic. Scheduled for 30 March-27 April 1964 was a period of elective-type seminars. During this period each student attended four seminars twice weekly. Each seminar met for two hours. In order for the divisions adequately to prepare the seminar content, and to dovetail the Career and Fortieth Special Class schedules during the seminar period, it was deemed necessary to ascertain as early as possible what seminars would be chosen by the students. Therefore, a description of 16 seminar topics (four per law teaching division) was issued to the students. Each student was required to select four seminars—one under each law teaching division. All selections were required to be submitted to the Director by 18 December. As a result of the students' selections, the seminars planned for the second semester were as follows:

Commander's Problems in Installation Administration
 Constitutional Law and the Armed Forces
 Research in Foreign and Comparative Law
 Problem Areas in International Relations
 Legal Control of International Conflict
 The Right to Counsel
 Model Penal Code and the UCMJ
 Wiretapping and Electronic Eavesdropping
 The Effect of Sovereignty on Government Contracts
 Factors Affecting Competition in Government Procurement Government Contract Administration

b. Second Semester (6 January-15 May 1964):

(1) Thesis Research Period. A relatively uninterrupted period of time for concentrated thesis research and preparation of a first draft was scheduled from 6 January-14 February 1964. A first draft of the thesis was required to be submitted by 14 February to thesis advisers. The only activities scheduled during this period were:

(b) Admission of 15 students to the U. S. Supreme Court on 7 January 1964, on motion of Colonel George S. Prugh, Jr., Executive, Office of The Judge Advocate General of the Army.

(c) Participation by 24 of the 28 U. S. students as law officers in the Thirty-Ninth Special Class moot courts. (The remainder were given an opportunity to so participate during the Fortieth Special Class.)

(d) Three hours of instruction on Federal income taxation by a guest speaker in a joint meeting with the Special Class.

(e) Attendance at luncheons where two division chiefs from the U. S. Army Judiciary spoke informally at the conclusion of the meals: Colonel Bruce C. Babbitt, Chief, Government Appellate Division, and Colonel Joseph L. Chalk, Chief, Defense Appellate Division.

(2) Classroom Instruction and Oral Thesis Presentations. In the period of time from 17 February through 28 March 1964, activities scheduled were:

(a) Instruction in military training subjects (requirements for which are set forth in Annex S, USCONARC Training Directive), Staff Judge Advocate Operations, and History of Military Justice.

(b) Guest speakers.

(c) Thesis oral presentations. These began on 24 February and lasted until 6 March 1964. Each student was allotted two hours in which to discuss the main points of his thesis and submit to questioning by a faculty committee composed of the Director, Academic Department, division chief concerned, and the student's thesis adviser. Other members of the class were permitted but not required to attend as were other members of the staff and faculty.

(3) Turn-In of Thesis. Completion of the thesis was scheduled for 1 April 1964. Thereafter, they were evaluated in turn by thesis adviser, division chief, Director, Academic Department, and a final grade determined. The thesis was allotted a weight of 32% in determining each student's final over-all grade in the Career Course.

(4) Seminars. The seminars previously described were conducted from 30 March through the week ending 18 April 1964. For each seminar meeting a different student was assigned to be the discussion leader for that meeting. He was responsible for the preparation of an assigned topic and for the conduct of that seminar meeting. His colleagues were also given reading assignments. During the seminar period some additional classroom instruction was presented by several guest speakers and by instructors in military training and military justice subjects.

Classes are supplemented by training films, seminars, moot courts, and practical exercises.

(5) Pre-LOGEX and LOGEX. During the week of 27 April most of the classroom activities were designed to prepare the students for participation in LOGEX at Fort Lee, Virginia, from 3-9 May 1964. Two days of pre-LOGEX week consisted of a civil affairs exercise called CALEX, operated by the International and Comparative Law Division. In this exercise the students were assigned to various staff judge advocate offices from theater army down to division, and to legal positions in civil affairs organizations. During the two days they engaged in solving legal problems involved in civil affairs operations in wartime. The remainder of pre-LOGEX instruction was conducted by the Plans and Publications Department. LOGEX is a controlled logistical exercise annually conducted at Fort Lee, Virginia.

(6) Graduation Week. Only one week of the Career Course remained after LOGEX. During this week instruction was presented on sentencing and penology in the Armed Forces. The speaker at the graduation exercises was Rear Admiral Wilfred A. Hearn, The Judge Advocate General of the Navy, who graduated from the Army's Judge Advocate Officer Career Course in 1956.

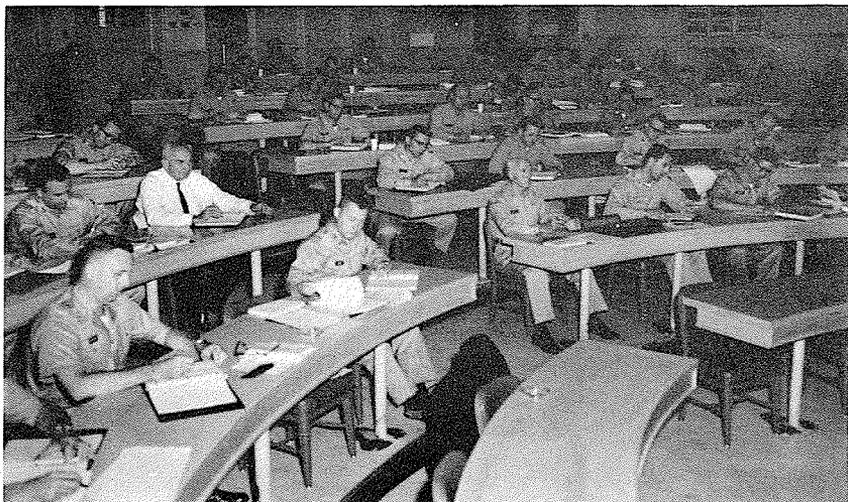

Awards to members of this year's Twelfth Career Course were made as follows:

- a. A certificate for Professional Merit from the American Bar Association to that student with the highest over-all academic standing.
- b. A Book Award from the Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Company to that student with the highest over-all academic standing.
- c. A check for $50.00 from the Federal Bar Association to that student with the highest over-all academic standing.
- d. A Certificate of Achievement and a Book Award from the Commandant to that student with the second highest over-all academic standing in his class.
- e. A Certificate of Achievement from the Judge Advocates Association to the outstanding student in military justice subjects.

Judge Advocate General (Special) Course. In this 10-week course, conducted twice a year primarily for officers newly commissioned in or transferred to the Judge Advocate General's Corps, officers are trained in the fundamentals of military law. The content of the course stresses those areas of military practice with which newly appointed judge advocates are most likely to be concerned in their first duty assignments. Accordingly, the course is devoted primarily to the fundamentals of military criminal law and practice in order to equip the graduate with a working knowledge of the duties of trial and defense counsel before general courts-martial. Instruction is also given on the provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, problems of domicile as affected by military status, domestic relations, immigration, adoption, wills, insurance, personal taxation, family financial problems, debt counseling, suits for and against servicemen, and the mechanics of the Army's legal assistance program. The course also includes those laws and regulations concerning many aspects of the military personnel process, including appointment, enlistment, promotion, reduction, retirement, discharge, pay, death and disability benefits, and matters of practice and procedure before administrative boards concerned with such matters. Special attention is also given to the problems of the administration of military reservations, including the powers and duties of a post commander to regulate traffic, make arrests, regulate ingress and egress, deal with property both public and private, and manage and control the operation of such nonappropriated fund activities as post exchanges, commissaries, clubs, and other associations. A substantial block of instruction is also given on those laws and regulations covering claims for and against the Government. However, the course includes only an introductory coverage of the law of public contracts, civil affairs, and international law. A graduate of the Special Course is expected to return to the School at a later time for instruction on these subjects by attendance at an appropriate short course, as described below, should his duties so require.

Since most of the students who attend the Special Course have had no prior military experience, attendance at a nine-week Combat Arms Officer Basic Course at either The Infantry School or The Armor School is a prerequisite to attendance at the Judge Advocate Special Course. The primary purpose of this requirement is to increase the newly commissioned officer's appreciation of those problems of military command that affect the disciplinary decisions of a military commander, provide him with a working knowledge of the basic command and staff concepts followed in all Army organizations, and with some appreciation of military customs, courtesies and traditions. It is believed that the better a lawyer understands his client's business, the better he can serve that client and the greater the client's respect and confidence will be in his lawyer's advice and judgment.

JAGEX, a command post exercise begun in 1960, was conducted again this year for the Thirty-Ninth and Fortieth Special Classes. Play of that exercise requires one and one-half days. Students are divided into small groups and organize themselves into typical post judge advocate offices. An instructor assigned to each group acts both as the staff judge advocate and as the group controller to supervise and pace the play, introduce problems into play, furnish advice, play the role of any staff officer or commander from whom the player should obtain additional facts for solution of a particular problem, and to review and critique player solutions for accuracy, completeness, and practicality. Problems typical of those encountered in the day-to-day operations of a post judge advocate office were prepared by the four law-teaching divisions of the department. Realism was further heightened by the introduction of several "live" problems using additional staff and faculty personnel as actors.

A continuing feature of the instruction given Special Course students is the moot court program. This program is designed to give newly commissioned judge advocate officers practical experience in military trial practice and procedure. Moot courts are simulated general courts-martial based on factual situations prepared by faculty members. The positions of trial and defense counsel, members of the court, and witnesses are filled by members of the Special Course. Each student has at least one opportunity to act as trial or defense counsel. The law officer's part is normally played by a member of the staff and faculty. This year, members of the Twelfth Career Class also participated as law officers.

Awards were made to members of the Thirty-Ninth and Fortieth Special Classes as follows: (See Appendix IX for the names of the recipients of these awards) .

a. A Certificate for Professional Merit from the American Bar Association to that student with the highest over-all academic standing.

b. A Book Award from the Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Company to that student with the highest over-all academic standing.

c. A check for $50.00 from the Federal Bar Association to that student with the highest over-all academic standing in his class.

d. A Certificate of Achievement and Book Award from the Commandant to that student with the second highest over-all academic standing in his class.

The speaker at the graduation exercises for the Thirty-Ninth Special Class was Colonel Sam H. Barrow, Professor of Military Science, University of Virginia, and for the Fortieth Special Class was the Honorable Homer Ferguson, Judge, U. S. Court of Military Appeals.

Procurement Law Course. This three-week course was given three times in Fiscal Year 1964. This course concentrates on the legal aspects of government procurement. These include a study of the general principles of government contract law, legal principles pertaining to appropriated funds, procurement policies, types of contracts, procurement by formal advertising and by competitive negotiation, mistakes in bids, modification of contracts, cost principles, subcontracts, price revision, disputes, claims, remedies, termination for default or convenience, taxation, labor law, and the utilization and disposition of government property.

This course enjoys an outstanding reputation throughout the Government. Although some of the other short resident courses also utilize guest lecturers one of the distinctive features of this course is its extensive use of guest speakers who are in key positions in government procurement and can thus speak with added authority as specialists in their fields. Almost one-half of the students attending these courses in FY 1964 were civilian attorneys employed by the various departments of the Department of Defense and other departments and agencies of the Government. Approximately 21% were Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training. The remainder were Active Army, Navy, or Air Force officers.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to procurement duties and to commissioned officers of the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component who are lawyers. Although they are encouraged to attend the entire three weeks, Army Reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course are permitted to attend the first two weeks of this course in satisfaction of the requirement of that course for the study of procurement law. Active Army officers who attend incur an obligation to remain on active duty for one year from the date the course ends.

Military Justice Course. This two-week course is designed to prepare lawyers to perform duties involving the application and interpretation of military criminal law. The curriculum includes the study of the law of evidence, substantive crimes, defenses and instructions, procedure, the jurisdiction of courts-martial, punishments, and appellate review of court-martial records.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring a knowledge of military criminal law and practice, and to commissioned officers of the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component who are lawyers. Army Reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of military justice. In FY 1964, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

International Law Course. This two-week course is concerned with the interpretation and application of international law. Coverage is more or less equally divided between the study of those fundamental principles of international law that govern the peaceful relations between nations and those concerning the international law of war.

This course is open both to lawyers and non-lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government or commissioned officers of the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component whose actual or anticipated assignment is to duties requiring a knowledge of international law. Army Reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of international law. In FY 1964, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Civil Law Course. This two-week resident course is concerned with claims, litigation, domestic emergencies, legal assistance, and the administration of military reservations.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring such knowledge and to commissioned officers in the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component who are lawyers. Army Reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of these subjects. In FY 1964, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Civil Affairs Law Course. This four-week resident course provides instruction in the aspects of international law, comparative law, and the legal aspects of civil affairs activities. The course is divided into two phases of two weeks each. Phase I is not a prerequisite to Phase II. The phases are given in alternate years.

This course is primarily designed to provide instruction for lawyers who are commissioned officers of the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component assigned to civil affairs units as legal functional specialists or who have demonstrated aptitude for such assignment. The course is also open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government whose duties may require a knowledge of international law, comparative law, and the legal aspects of civil affairs operations. In FY 1964, the student body attending Phase I of this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty for training.

Military Affairs Course. This two-week course provides instruction in military administrative law. The curriculum includes a study of the organization of the United States for national security, delegation of authority, administrative due process, and the laws and regulations governing the many aspects of the personnel process, including appointment, enlistment, promotion, reduction, discharge, pay, death and disability benefits, and matters of practice and procedure before administrative boards concerned with such matters.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring knowledge of military administrative law, and to commissioned officers of the Active Armed Forces or a Reserve component who are lawyers. Army Reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of requirements of that course for such subjects. In FY 1964, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty for training.

Contract Termination Law Course. The Contract Termination Law Course originally scheduled for 28 October-1 November 1963 was cancelled and will not be conducted in the future. It was inaugurated in August 1953 at a time when military and political conditions throughout the world had resulted in substantially increased emphasis on contract terminations. The course was originally concerned primarily with termination for the convenience of the Government. Although the subject was included in the three-week Procurement Law Course, the more comprehensive treatment of convenience terminations afforded by a specialized one-week course was justified by agency interest and needs. Moreover, the increased number of students caused by the temporary emphasis on contract termination could not have been accommodated in the regular course. This situation no longer prevails. The portions of the Contract Termination Course not previously covered in the Procurement Law Course were relatively minor and have now been included in the Procurement Law Course by redirecting the emphasis placed on certain phases of the instruction without the necessity of a formal change to the Program of Instruction or an increase in the hours of instruction.

Law Officer Seminar. This two-week seminar is concerned with the study of recent developments in the military justice field. Emphasis is placed on the role of the law officer in the administration of trials, pretrial procedure, evidence, motions, defenses, guilty pleas, instructions, and punishments. Round table seminar discussions are a prominent portion of the program.

Participation in this seminar is limited to judge advocates or legal specialists of the Active Armed Forces assigned or about to be assigned to law officer duties and to Army Reserve judge advocates who are mobilization designees to the Army Field Judiciary. Attendance is controlled by The Judge Advocate General of the Army. This seminar is not one of the courses listed in the Army School Catalog.

Judge Advocate Officer Refresher (Reserve Component) Course.

This two-week survey course provides refresher training in all areas of law pertinent to military legal practice. Emphasis is placed on current trends and developments. It is part of the program of continuing legal education for Reserve component officers. It is attended only by Reserve component officers of the Armed Forces. In FY 1964, Air Force reserve component officers comprised 74% of the student body; the remainder were Army reserve component officers.

This course is not a credit course for branch qualification of Reserve officers. No attempt is made to cover subjects in depth. The content of the curriculum is subject to continuous revision. Substantially new instructional material is provided at least every two years.

Guest Speaker Program. During the course of each academic year, a large number of eminent guest speakers present lectures of interest to the faculty and student body. The subjects of their addresses cover such widely diverse topics as guerrilla warfare, Army intelligence, CBR warfare, electronic warfare, development in weaponry and rockets, sea and aerospace power, congressional relations, penology in the Armed Forces, psychiatry and the law, jurisprudence, judicial philosophy and practice, and the ethics of the defense lawyer.

Each speaker is selected for the experience he has accumulated, his recognized status as an authority in his field, and the importance of his subject as it bears upon the practice of military law. Among those who addressed various courses at The Judge Advocate General's School during FY 1964 were: Professor Edwin W. Patterson, Scholar in Residence, University of Virginia Law School; the Honorable Homer Ferguson, Judge, U. S. Court of Military Appeals; the Honorable Alexander Holtzoff, United States District Judge, District Court for the District of Columbia; Major General F. C. Weyand, Chief, Legislative Liaison, Department of the Army; Rear Admiral Wilfred A. Hearn, The Judge Advocate General of the Navy; Mr. Gerritt W. Wesselink, General Counsel, Department of the Air Force; and Mr. Merritt H. Steger, General Counsel, Department of the Navy.

A complete list of the 58 guest speakers who addressed various courses conducted at the School during FY 1964 is contained in Appendix X.

Text Preparation Program. Long range plans were formulated and work begun in FY 1961 upon an ambitious program to prepare a series of textbooks for publication as Department of the Army pamphlets covering every subject in the curriculum of this School. It was recognized at the outset that the task would be a formidable one requiring many months to complete and that it would absorb a very substantial part of the total intellectual energies of every member of the resident faculty. The task of revision and expansion of these texts will never be complete at any one time. These volumes are the foundation for both resident and nonresident instruction.

Consolidation of the substance of military law into this series of definitive textbooks is vital to efficient instruction—even more so for subject matter not readily available from other sources.

A list of the 21 textbooks, indicating the present stage of their development, is at Appendix XI. Only two, Procurement Law and Evidence, were completed in FY 1961; the evidence text was revised and republished in FY 1962 and six more texts were completed that year; two were completed in FY 1963; three were completed in FY 1964 (but not yet printed); and the remaining eight are still in various stages of preparation.

Thesis Lending Library. The Military Training Division operates the Thesis Lending Library for the School. Copies of theses written by members of the Judge Advocate Officer Career Courses are available for temporary loan. A Catalog of Theses is available upon request.

Foreign Student Orientation Program. On 9 October 1963, the Commandant appointed the Chief, Military Training Division, as the Foreign Military Advisor for this School. This officer immediately began drafting a detailed information program for the orientation of foreign students who attend this School. His appointment and preparation of the program were in accordance with Department of the Army instructions to all service schools to initiate such a program. The program's objective is to give the foreign military students, in addition to their military training, a balanced understanding of United States society, institutions and ideals. To accomplish this objective, the students visited local points of interest (historical and industrial), observed civilian trials and met the lawyers and judges engaged in the trials, observed an Army general court-martial, toured a local TV station and newspaper plant, watched films depicting highlights of the history and geography of the United States, and visited Washington, D. C., West Point, and New York City with allied officers from other service schools. Implementation of this new program was initiated with the foreign students in the Twelfth Career and Thirty-Ninth Special Classes.

NONRESIDENT TRAINING

In General. The mission of the Nonresident Training Department includes the development and publication of training programs required for Reserve component judge advocates, and provides members of the Active Army with programs of continuing legal education and specialized training. Active Army personnel are provided with training support in three vital areas.

First, extension courses and programs are designed to provide continuing legal education either in new fields or in depth for Active Army personnel unable to attend resident courses of instruction.

Second, the Active Army judge advocate officer alerted for overseas movement may obtain extension courses and material which will familiarize him with the politics, customs, and culture of his new area of assignment. For example, extension subcourses are offered concerning Southeast Asia and Korea.

Third, enlisted personnel and warrant officers who perform legal and administrative duties may also obtain extension courses.

A systematic effort is being made to insure the foregoing programs are both adequate and up to date. Extension courses and material for the training of personnel in legal administrative duties are now undergoing major revision to align them more realistically with field requirements.

During the report period, the Nonresident Training Department continued to expand its program for the training of Reserve component judge advocates. There are now more Reserve component judge advocates in an active Reserve status who are participating in some phase of the Judge Advocate Reserve Component Training Program than ever before. Staff liaison visits conducted during the past year by representatives of the Nonresident Training Department to observe the training being conducted by judge advocate reservists indicated that the present Judge Advocate Reserve Training Program is providing training which is closely aligned to the needs of both the Army and the individual reservist.

tinued throughout the year revising, updating, and expanding the content of the three Nonresident Judge Advocate Officer Career Course Programs—the four-year USAR School Judge Advocate Officer Career Course, the Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course (18-A-E24), and the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course, (18-A-C24.) These career course programs which are the equivalent of the resident career course are designed to furnish Reserve component judge advocates with the basic military legal skills required for complete branch training and promotion eligibility through the grade of colonel. These three separate, but substantively parallel training programs, provide an interchangeable, integrated, and flexible training medium for some 1,300 Reserve component judge advocates.

The four-year USAR School Judge Advocate Officer Career Course is the preferred way for a judge advocate Reserve officer to complete his branch training. During the past year the third year of the course was conducted for some 700 students in 73 Judge Advocate Branch Departments of United States Army Reserve Schools, located in population centers throughout the country.

The Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course is composed entirely of extension course material with certain exceptions for completion of resident courses at the School. This course is 511 credit hours in length, of which at least 70 hours a year must be completed to maintain satisfactory enrollment. Approximately 500 students are currently enrolled in this course.

The Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course consists of seven phases which must be completed within four years. Though it is basically an extension course, a student is required to complete at least three of the phases by resident courses at the School. Over 100 students are participating in this course.

Programs of Continuing Legal Education for Reservists. To provide a program of continuing legal education for those Reserve component judge advocates not assigned to troop program units who have completed branch training, and require meaningful training to preserve their mobilization readiness, a number of post-graduate training programs have been created, reorganized, or revitalized in the past year.

(1) Staff Judge Advocate Operations. This post-graduate course was approved by CG, USCONARC, on 22 July 1963. It provides six years of graduate level training in the USAR School (with ANA-CDUTRA at the JAG School) for judge advocate Reservists who have actual or constructive credit for the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course. It provides the student with post-graduate legal training in anticipating, analyzing, and resolving legal problems which confront commanders during the performance of their mobilization missions. This course is designed primarily to increase the mobilization readiness of judge advocates assigned to the Ready Reserve Mobilization Reinforcement Pool. During the reserve duty training phase of the 1963-64 USAR school year, this course was taught in 11 USAR schools.

(2) USAR School Judge Advocate Reserve New Developments Course. This one-year graduate course is designed to cover new trends and developments in various aspects of military law and to provide a training vehicle for Reserve judge advocates who have actual or constructive credit for the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course. The 1963-1964 Reserve duty phase included instruction on military affairs, procurement law, military justice, and civil and international law followed by attendance at a resident functional course at the School. It was taught in nine USAR schools to 72 enrolled students.

(3) Specialization Courses—Special Studies for Senior JAGC Officers. Within the Extension Course Program there are specialization courses now offered in international law, military justice, and military affairs. In these courses the student is furnished selected reference material and is required to take an examination or prepare a treatise based on his analysis of the material. This program will soon include specialization courses in Procurement. Presently there are 15 Reservists studying these courses.

(4) Legal Area Specialist Program. A Legal Area Specialist Program is available to reservists with foreign language proficiency who have actual or constructive credit for the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course or its equivalent. Four reservists are assigned projects which contemplate the study of foreign legal systems and foreign legal documents. Three are engaged in translating the punitive articles of the UCMJ into Spanish to assist the Active Army in orienting Puerto Rican enlistees. The fourth has been assigned a project in Greek law.

(5) Thesis Program. A Thesis Program is also available to "graduate" reservists interested in researching current legal problems and writing theses of interest to both military and civilian lawyers. The following two articles have been published during the period covered by this report: Whelan, Major John W., JAGC, USAR, Public Contracts of the United Kingdom Government: A Comparative Survey and Introduction, 32 GEO. WASH. L. REV. 82 (1963); and Bishop, Lieutenant Colonel Joseph W., Jr., JAGC, USAR, Court-Martial Jurisdiction Over Military-Civilian Hybrids: Retired Regulars, Reservists, and Discharged Prisoners, 112 U. PA. L. REV. 317 (1964). Because of the administrative difficulties in operating this program under the provisions of AR 140-305, the CG, USCONARC, at the request of the Commandant of this School, established the Judge Advocate General's Corps Reserve Component Military Legal Thesis Program as an independent training program, incorporating it into CONARC Regulation 135-16, dated 15 June 1964. Now, the entire administration of the program, other than the recording of the points awarded, is under the jurisdiction of the Commandant.

(6) Command and General Staff College Course. Reserve component judge advocates may broaden their knowledge of their client's mission by completing the Command and General Staff College Courses offered in either the USAR school or the extension course programs.

Troop Program Unit Training. There are approximately 1,100 judge advocate Reserve Component officers assigned to some 200 troop program units.

(1) Staff Training Program. An improved Staff Training Program has been designed to provide a realistic training program for the Staff Judge Advocate Sections of appropriate Troop Program Units. The staff training material consists of 250 practical legal problems of the type which unit commanders may expect to encounter during various phases of the unit's operations from preparation for mobilization through accelerated training, combat, occupation, and demobilization. Approximately 140 program units, including all 12 JAGSO Detachments, are now utilizing the staff training problems.

(2) Command Post Exercise. The Nonresident Training Department is presently planning a Command Post type exercise for the 12 JAGSO Detachments' ANACDUTRA during the next training phase. The exercise will consist of simulated problems faced by all TOE 27-500E teams after mobilization. It will last for approximately five days of the unit's ANACDUTRA and will provide military as well as legal training.

The Judge Advocate Army Extension Course Program. The Army Extension Course Program utilizes the medium of "home study" to provide nonresident instruction for Army personnel to whom resident instruction at the School or at USAR schools is not available.

In addition to the Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course, the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course, and Specialization Courses—Special Studies for Senior JAGC officers, previously discussed, the School offers a broad extension course program as follows:

- a. Miscellaneous Enrollment.
- b. The Judge Advocate Basic Indoctrination Extension Course.
- c. Special Extension Courses.
  - (1) Military Law for Commanding Officers.
  - (2) Legal Administrative Technician.
  - (3) Legal Clerk.
  - (4) USAR School Students.

During Fiscal Year 1964, the steady increase in student participation in the Judge Advocate Extension Course Program continued. The number of lessons expected to be processed during the current fiscal year is 20,000. The number of subcourses that will be completed during the same period is expected to be 2,500. Student enrollment is expected to also increase to an estimated 1,500 students as of 30 June 1964.

As of 1 May 1964, the breakdown of students enrolled by course and component was as follows:

By Component	By Course			Total
	JAOCEC (18-A-E24)	JAOC (RC) C (18-A-C24)	Misc.
Active Army	26	0	310	336
USAR	390	92	205	687
National Guard	63	13	36	112
U. S. Air Force	5	0	95	100
USN & USMC	5	0	41	46
Civilians	0	0	102	102

Liaison Visits. During this report period, staff liaison visits were made to 40 USAR schools in the Reserve duty training phase of the 1963-1964 school year. Additionally, Hq, USCONARC, the several CONUS Army and U. S. Army Corps Headquarters were visited. Finally, visits were made to all of the USAR school and JAGSO detachment ANACDUTRA 1963 training sites, as well as to the summer training camps of various selected National Guard and USAR Divisions and nondivisional troop program units. Members of the department traveled approximately 60,000 miles to accomplish these visits. The list of USAR schools and troop program units visited during this period is set forth in Appendix I to this report.

Planning and Career Guidance.

(1) Reserve Affairs Conference. On 17 through 19 February 1964, The Judge Advocate General's Reserve Component Training Conference was held in Charlottesville. The Judge Advocate General addressed the conferees on 18 February 1964. This was the first Judge Advocate General's Conference on Reserve Component Training at which Reserve Component Judge Advocate General's Corps officers participated as conferees. Conferees included the Commanding Officers of the 12 Judge Advocate General's Service Organization Detachments, 13 Judge Advocate Branch Department Directors and Instructors from USAR schools, one member of the Board of Visitors of this School, the Staff Judge Advocate of a Reserve Component logistical command, as well as representatives of the School, the Office of the Judge Advocate General, the National Guard Bureau, and the Deputy Staff Judge Advocate of USCONARC and the Executive Officer for Reserve Affairs of each Continental Army. The conferees, organized into six separate committees, considered and reported upon crucial problems peculiar to JAGC Reserve activities. These included problems incurred in USAR schools, the formulation of a program to rotate assignment of judge advocate positions in troop program units, the establishment of effective MOS training for Reserve component legal clerks, court reporters, and legal administrative warrant officers, methods of securing and recording information requisite for meaningful career management, standardization of effective operating procedures in the offices of the Executive Officers for Reserve Affairs, and the requisites and proper administration of law libraries. The proceedings of this conference have been summarized, printed, and distributed to appropriate active Army agencies and all conferees and USAR schools.

(2) Reserve Issue of the Judge Advocate Legal Service. The annual issue of the Judge Advocate Legal Service devoted exclusively to Reserve affairs was published in October 1963. It contained information concerning the operation of the judge advocate Reserve program and a roster of ARNGUS and USAR judge advocate officers by state.

(3) Records of Reservists. All available pertinent records of judge advocate Reserve component officers were surveyed to determine the extent to which officers of the various grades were progressing toward meeting the minimum educational qualifications for promotion and assignment, and to identify the grades in which deficiencies exist. From the survey and analysis, a program is being evolved by which officers not making satisfactory progress will be identified and individually alerted and advised of the requirements and the programs available to meet them. As a concomitant of this program, standardization of data compiled by machine records units and submitted to this School from the six CONUS Armies has been initiated to provide the most up-to-date official information on judge advocate Reserve component officers. To lessen the diversion of judge advocate officers to non-legal duties and to increase the administrative proficiency of the Extension Course Section, the branch requirements for two of the company grade officers were changed from JAGC to Branch Immaterial. Presently these positions are occupied by two AG officers.

PLANS AND PUBLICATIONS

In General. The Plans and Publications Department has the overall responsibility of handling the School's mission in the conduct and coordination of legal research and its dissemination to Army judge advocates. The fulfillment of this function has resulted in The Judge Advocate General's School becoming a center for the development of scholarship in the field of military law.

To distribute the results of this legal research, the School prepares and publishes various military legal publications. Publications are of both a permanent and periodic nature. The permanent pamphlets are designed to serve as reference materials for judge advocates, while the periodic publications bring to these judge advocates current developments in problem areas of military law.

Training films produced by the department are an additional means used to acquaint personnel throughout the Army with the function and operation of the military legal system and with the services the Judge Advocate General's Corps provides.

Finally, the School prepares an integrated course of instruction in military legal subjects for use in Army service schools, supervises the instruction in military law given ROTC students, plans and conducts the annual Judge Advocate General's Conference as well as other smaller specialized conferences for senior judge advocates, and coordinates the judge advocate phase of LOGEX, the annual logistical exercise for service school and Reserve component personnel.

Publications.

(1) The Judge Advocate Legal Service is a Department of the Army pamphlet series designed to rapidly disseminate new developments in the field of military law to active and Reserve component Army judge advocates. The Legal Service is printed locally in Charlottesville in order to facilitate its needed immediate distribution. The School, therefore, maintains not only responsibility for its content but in addition handles over-all supervision of its printing and distribution.

All cases decided by the United States Court of Military Appeals are digested in the Legal Service, reaching judge advocates in the field much earlier than the printed advance sheets. In addition, important decisions of the boards of review, significant civilian decisions, administrative opinions of The Judge Advocate General and the Comptroller General, and administrative matters of importance to the Judge Advocate General's Corps are included in the Legal Service format.

Between 1 July 1963 and 30 June 1964, 27 issues of the Judge Advocate Legal Service were published and distributed. A Staff Judge Advocate Special Set of Regulations designed to provide a minimum list of Army Regulations needed in each judge advocate office was published and kept current. A study of the activities of judge advocates in relationship to their respective local bar associations was conducted by the School, and the results of this survey were published in the Legal Service in an effort to create a positive public image of the Corps. The issues of the Legal Service during the past year reflected an attempt to give broader coverage to decisions of civilian courts and military affairs opinions to balance the extremely broad coverage already given to military justice matters.

(2) The Procurement Legal Service is a publication which provides prompt information on current developments in government contract law to legal personnel of the armed forces engaged in procurement activities. It includes digests of opinions of The Judge Advocate General of the Army, decisions of the Comptroller General of the United States, decisions of the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals, and decisions of the federal courts. During the period 1 July 1963-30 June 1964, 12 issues of the Procurement Legal Service were prepared and forwarded to Department of the Army for printing.

(3) The School publishes quarterly the Military Law Review, a Department of the Army pamphlet series. Initial distribution of the Military Law Review is made to all active Army judge advocates and to judge advocate members of the Reserve components in a ready status. Issues of the Review are also sold to interested civilian agencies and individuals by the Superintendent of Documents.

Although the Military Law Review is published as a Department of the Army pamphlet series, its format is identical to that of a civilian law review. During the past year a blue cover was substituted for the white one previously used. The result has been to give the Review a recognizably distinct appearance to make more clear the fact that it is a legal publication of universal value rather than one solely for military use. The articles published in the Review continued to treat subjects of military law in their broadest sense, emphasizing discussions of important legal problems. Contributions for the Review continued to be received from judge advocates in all three armed services, foreign military and civilian lawyers, members of the staff and faculty, law school professors, reserve component judge advocates and civilian attorneys.

Several outstanding articles on foreign law and legal systems highlighted the past year's issues of the Military Law Review. Additionally a definitive work on the effect of government-caused delays in the performance of federal contracts was published in issue number 27-100-22, and a leading article upon the currently important problem of legal aspects of counterinsurgency was published in number 27-100-21.

(4) The past year saw the publication and distribution of The Staff Judge Advocate Handbook, Department of the Army Pamphlet 27-5. This pamphlet is designed to aid the judge advocate in the practical aspects of his duties and to serve as a text for resident and nonresident instruction. The Handbook describes operations of a judge advocate office, including its organization and the functions and responsibilities of its personnel. It also establishes standing operating procedures which can be used in relationships with commanders and non-military agencies and those which are designed to adapt a judge advocate office to function most efficiently overseas. Additions to the Staff Judge Advocate Handbook in the form of a checklist for newly activated units and an index to make the volume more usable for quick reference are presently in the process of preparation.

(5) Military Law and Boards of Officers (ROTCM 145-85) is a pamphlet used for instruction in military justice in ROTC courses. Although the U. S. Army Infantry Training Center has over-all responsibility for ROTC training materials, the School supervises the legal training materials. During Fiscal Year 1964, a completely revised ROTCM 145-85, prepared by the School, was published and distributed to ROTC units.

(6) Distribution was completed of a wallet-sized card summarizing the policies, procedures and authorized punishments under the new Article 15, UCMJ. This card designed by the School provides the commander with ready reference in taking actions under Article 15.

(7) Work continued during the past year on the possible adoption of a tri-service loose leaf military legal service. This work progressed in conjunction with a revision of the Manual for Courts-Martial.

(8) The History of The Judge Advocate General's School, 1951-1961, intended to present a record of the events of importance in the first ten years of the School's existence in Charlottesville, was written during the past year. This history, together with the series of Commandant's Annual Reports, presents a continuing history of the School's activities. It is now at the printers and is scheduled for completion early in Fiscal Year 1965.

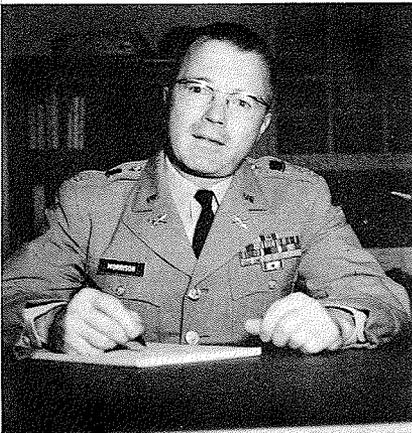

(9) During the period of this report work began on a military legal bibliography, similar in format to the Annual Legal Bibliography, compiled by Harvard Law School. As of 30 June 1964, the list of textbooks had been completed, and work was under way on a listing of periodicals dealing with military law. While the enormity of the project makes it one of long-term duration, the completed work should be of great importance as a research tool for military lawyers.

Instruction in Army Service Schools. In 1962-1963, the School continued its study of the adequacy of training in the Common Subjects for which it had monitoring responsibility. A reorganized program of instruction incorporating what was considered to be desired minimum legal instruction was submitted to the United States Continental Army Command. Although certain changes were ultimately made, suggestions made by the School were adopted and incorporated in Annex "S" to USCONARC training memorandum dated 21 February 1964. This annex implements Army-wide common course subjects. All of the Common Subjects lesson plans for which the School has monitoring responsibility have been rewritten and updated. These lesson plans reflect the need for commanders to be aware of the current refinements in military law and the increasing legal problems brought about by the world-wide commitment of the United States Army. The lesson plans include: the Legal Aspects of Counterinsurgency, Martial Law, Basic Military Administrative Law, the Philosophy of the Military Justice System, the History of the Administration of Military Justice, the Principles and Operations of Nonjudicial Punishment, the Commander's Role in the Administration of Military Justice, the Role of Officers as Court Members and Sentencing.

Training Films. In addition to the films which have already been produced and are available for showing throughout the Army, a new film, "Nonjudicial Punishment," was produced during Fiscal Year 1964 and will be released shortly. The film presents a detailed study of nonjudicial punishment with special emphasis on the commander's expanded authority under the new Article 15. The film is intended for showing to all military personnel of the active and reserve components of the Army.

Special Activities.

(1) Judge Advocate General's Conference. The 1963 Judge Advocate General's Conference was held during the period 9-12 September 1963 at The Judge Advocate General's School. The conference enabled senior judge advocates from throughout the world to meet and discuss important new developments in military law. General Barksdale Hamlett, Vice Chief of Staff, United States Army, was the keynote speaker, and Walter E. Craig, President, American Bar Association, was the principal speaker at the conference banquet. In addition, selected speakers from the Office of the Judge Advocate General and from major continental and overseas commands addressed the conferees on legal problems of current interest.

(2) Army Field Judiciary Conference. The third annual conference for officers of the Army Judiciary was held in Charlottesville immediately prior to the Judge Advocate General's Conference. This conference brought together the Army's law officers for the purpose of discussing problems having special applicability to the Army Judiciary. Members of Army boards of review also participated.

(3) LOGEX. The School was charged with the responsibility of planning and supervising the judge advocate play of LOGEX 1964. The judge advocate sections in this large-scale logistical exercise were manned by the members of the Career Class, by the 1st and 4th Judge Advocate Detachments, and by the judge advocate sections of the 301st, 316th, and 322d Logistical Commands. The play of the exercise was preceded by three days of pre-LOGEX instruction given by the School. LOGEX 1964 was found to be a valuable teaching device in confronting the players with the many legal problems arising in a logistical command. This year's play was highlighted by the integration of active duty and reserve judge advocate personnel. The play by the judge advocate officers also demonstrated the value of the Judge Advocate General's Corps to the other branches of the Army.

(4) The Judge Advocate General's Corps Exhibit. During the last year, the Judge Advocate General's Corps exhibit, which consists of illustrated panels depicting various activities and functions of the Corps, was displayed at the American Bar Association Meeting in Chicago. The exhibit attracted considerable attention at this convention and aided materially in informing the civilian bar and the public of the functions of the Corps.

(5) Enlisted Evaluation Program for MOS Code 713. The Plans Division, together with the Enlisted Evaluation Center, has the responsibility of conducting the enlisted evaluation program for legal clerks and court reporters, MOS Code 713. The purpose of the program is to determine the qualification of an individual for his particular grade and his eligibility for proficiency pay and promotion. The grades achieved by the individual are the composite result of a commander's evaluation report, a paper and pencil test, and, in the case of court reporters, a performance test in reporting and transcribing.

During the past year the Plans Division critically examined with the aid of statistical data the paper and pencil tests, and further refinements were made. In addition, a new 30-minute tape recording utilizing an extract from an actual record of trial was made at the School for the court reporter's performance test. The examinees were required to record the examination of witnesses and final arguments and to transcribe them in the proper format. The finished transcripts are graded at the School. Work is now being done on the preparation of a new test tape for 1965.

(6) Organizational Studies. Numerous studies involving the reorganization of Army combat units were reviewed by the School for judge advocate interest. Recommendations were made as to judge advocate operations in both the combat support to the field army and administrative support to the communications zone. Beginning 15 January 1964, however, this function was transferred to the newly created Judge Advocate Combat Development Agency. The School extensively supports JA CDA in this area.

(7) Law Day USA. The School has the responsibility for coordinating the Law Day activities of the Department of the Army. This year Law Day chairmen were appointed at each installation, command, and activities, and these chairmen were placed on the mailing list for the American Bar Association's Law Day materials. In addition, the School mailed to the chairmen display materials illustrating the activities of the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

(8) Court Reporter Classes. The School continued to monitor the instruction of Army court reporters conducted by the United States Naval Justice School, Newport, Rhode Island.

(9) Automatic Data Processing Systems. The School has continued to monitor developments in the important and rapidly evolving field of automatic data processing. During the last year, a study was submitted to the Office of the Judge Advocate General outlining the applicability of developments in this area to legal research in the Army.

(10) Court Reporting Equipment. A detailed investigation has been made to determine the type of equipment which would best fulfill the Army's court reporting needs. The views of staff judge advocates were solicited by means of a questionnaire which was sent to all general court-martial jurisdictions. This was followed by extensive field testing of electronic recording equipment at the 82d Airborne Division, Fort Dix, and the United States Naval School of Justice. The results of the testing and questionnaires have now been compiled, and procurement of improved court reporting equipment will begin in the very near future.

(11) Planning. The School conducts, coordinates and supervises research in the field of military law and prepares miscellaneous studies for internal use as well as for the entire Judge Advocate General's Corps. Additionally, the School assists in the development of broad, long range continuity plans and procedures for the Corps.

ADMINISTRATION

In General. The Office of the School Secretary, working under the direction and guidance of the Commandant, is responsible for all matters pertaining to administration, personnel, finance, billeting, transportation, logistics, and security, insofar as facilities and personnel permit.

This office also administers the following programs: records administration, reports control, voting, and command management.

It handles the official correspondence of the School, controls classified material, maintains personnel records and record files, prepares training aids, and reproduces materials published by the School.

Finally, the office is responsible for coordinating supply activities, preparing all budget and fiscal matters, operating the School reading rooms, and coordinating with the University of Virginia administration in arranging suitable classroom facilities.

Facilities of the School.

(1) The Judge Advocate General's School Building. This structure, dedicated on 26 September 1956, is a three-story red brick building of Georgian architecture. It contains 43 offices and 26 furnished rooms which are used as living quarters for personnel on temporary duty at the School. There is also a supply room, a bookstore, and a suite which is made available for visitors to the School. The Judge Advocate General's School Officers' Open Mess consists of a lounge and an outdoor patio on the fourth floor of the building.

MAJOR
School Secretary

Two rooms on the second floor of the building are set aside for reading and study purposes. These rooms contain a selected collection of military law books and periodicals as well as related materials in the fields of military history, military tactics, leadership and discipline, and international law.

Among the offices located in The Judge Advocate General's School building are Office of the Commandant, Office of the School Secretary, the Plans and Publications Department, the Nonresident Training Department, several offices of the Academic Department, and the Office of the Combat Developments Command, Judge Advocate Agency.

(2) Clark Hall. Located directly opposite the JAG School Building, Clark Memorial Hall houses the University of Virginia Law School. The JAG School utilizes two classrooms in this building on a full-time basis. One of these is designed to accommodate 96 students, and the other has a seating capacity of 60.

The larger room is used principally for the Special Classes and the smaller room is occupied nine months of the year by the Career Class. Both rooms are used year-round and are available in the evenings for study purposes.

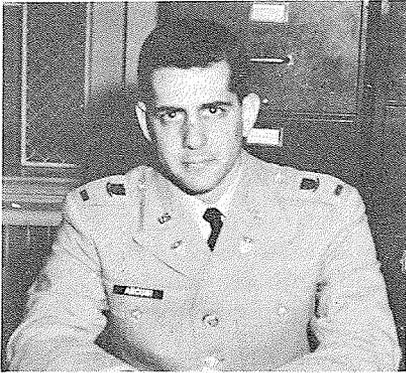

(3) Cabell Hall. The School maintains for its use one classroom in Cabell Hall, which is located at the end of the lawn opposite the Rotunda of the University of Virginia. This classroom, with a capacity of 45, is used for seminar meetings and is adaptable for use in the conduct of the functional courses held at the School.

(4) Libraries. The School generally furnishes each student with the basic textbooks and other classroom materials which he will need during a course. However, where additional references are required, and for general research purposes, students attending The Judge Advocate General's School are permitted and are encouraged to utilize both the Law Library of the University of Virginia and Alderman Library, the general library of the University.

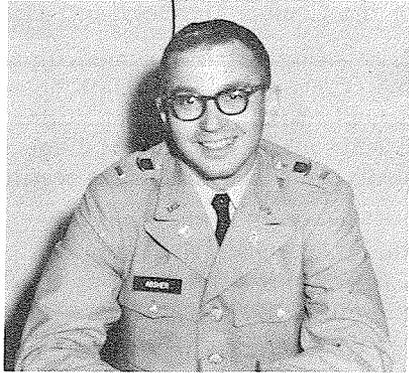

Housed in Clark Hall, the Law Library of the University of Virginia contains over 150,000 volumes. It has an extensive collection of published reports of the American federal and state courts, the reports of the courts of the United Kingdom, treatises, digests, encyclopedias, and indices and citator services. It also contains the statutes of the United States, of the several states, and of Great Britain. The Library receives every current legal periodical of general interest printed in the English language. The program of The Judge Advocate General's School requires frequent recourse to the Library; the use of the Library is subject to regulations, copies of which are available at the circulation desk.

Chief of Logistics

The Alderman Library has about 1,360,000 volumes and a particularly fine collection of official Government publications. It has been designated by the United States Government as a depository of public documents.

Quarters. Bachelor officers' quarters are available in The Judge Advocate General's School Building. Assignment of rooms may be effected through the School Secretary. Linens, towels, maid service, and other conveniences are provided.

The JAG School has been authorized to lease 30 sets of quarters to be utilized as government quarters in lieu of BAQ. For approximately a year some of these units have been occupied by authorized enlisted personnel stationed at the School, and from September 1963 to June 1964 the remaining units were occupied by student officers of the Twelfth Career Class and their families. This program has met with enthusiastic reception. The School Secretary and the University Housing Division maintain lists of available apartments and houses in the Charlottesville area.

Messing. Government messing facilities are not available at The Judge Advocate General's School. However, there is a snack bar in the Officers' Open Mess serving breakfast and light lunches. There are also available a number of dining halls and snack bars operated by the University of Virginia, as well as many convenient commercial restaurants.

Officers' Open Mess. The top floor of The Judge Advocate General's School Building, consisting of two large rooms and an open-air patio, is set aside as the Officers' Open Mess. The rooms are tastefully furnished with large comfortable chairs and sofas of the Jeffersonian style, writing tables, a television set, piano, radio and record player, and other accessories. These rooms are open daily for the use of all members. In the evening hours, refreshments and snacks are available.

During the year, the Mess sponsors a full program of activities and social events for the benefit of its members, including dances, picnics, class receptions, social hours, and bridge nights.

Bookstore. A small bookstore is operated in the west end of the JAG School Building on the first floor. Various drug items, uniform equipment, stationery supplies, cigarettes and tobacco, souvenir items, gifts, and books are available for purchase. Uniforms may be ordered through the Bookstore. Various catalogues are also available for ordering particular items at a discount.

Logistical Support. Government storage facilities are not available nor is there a transportation officer assigned to the School. However, the Chief of Logistics can provide necessary assistance and advice in arranging for shipment and/or storage of household goods, concurrent travel, and other items of logistical support, subject to available time and facilities.

Adjutant's Office. The Adjutant's Office is responsible for the processing of all incoming and outgoing personnel. Billeting arrangements and assistance are also handled by this office. The School Mail Room is operated by the Adjutant.

The School has no finance officer. However, the Adjutant is available to provide necessary assistance and advice in matters relating to pay and allowances. This office also maintains the School's personnel and health records and prepares travel and per diem vouchers for students.

Medical and Dental Facilities. The Judge Advocate General's School is satellited on Fort Lee, Virginia, for medical and dental care, where a complete Army hospital is located. Locally, a contract surgeon located in the Student Health Center of the University of Virginia provides out-patient services for military personnel. Finally, because of the distance from a U. S. Army hospital, dependents of military personnel stationed at the JAG School are entitled to full coverage of all benefits provided under Medicare.

Dental care and eye examinations for military personnel assigned to the School are available from any local dentist and eye doctor on an individual contract basis. However, there are no provisions for such care for dependents.

Drugs are generally available from the stocks maintained at the Student Health Center and by means of a mail service with the Fort Lee Hospital Pharmacy.

Athletic Facilities. Assigned and attached military personnel and all students are permitted to use all athletic facilities of the University of Virginia, including the tennis courts, bowling alleys, swimming pools, and all the indoor facilities at the University's Memorial Gymnasium. Both the School and the Intramural Department of the University have a limited amount of athletic equipment for the use of students and the staff and faculty, and lockers in the University Gymnasium may be rented on a limited basis by personnel attached to the JAG School. Additional golf, tennis, bowling and swimming facilities are also available in the Charlottesville area.

In addition to providing athletic equipment and facilities, the School sponsors a bowling league which during the last year provided organized recreation for the staff and faculty and the Career Class. A golf team representing the School competes in the local Industrial Golf League, and tournaments in handball, squash, and other individual sports are conducted by the School for personnel stationed here.

The Alumni Association. The Association of Alumni of The Judge Advocate General's School, U. S. Army, was established by the Commandant on 15 January 1963. To date there are approximately 1,250 members. All students, past and present, and members of the staff and faculty are eligible for membership. The School Secretary is also the Secretary of the Association and all inquiries or requests for membership should be addressed to him.

Revision of Civilian Employee Grade Structure. As a result of a desk survey conducted at the beginning of FY 1964, the necessity for upgrading the positions of civilian personnel at the School was established. The grades then held by these civilians were determined to be inadequate in comparison with the importance of their duties. Further, these increases were felt to be justified by the stabilizing effect they would have through the increased retention of civilian employees by The Judge Advocate General's School.

The School's administrative personnel acted in accordance with the results of this survey in changing the civilian grade structure. The results of these changes may be seen in the following charts:

(1) Beginning of Fiscal Year 1964
G.S. Level	4	5	6	7
Number of employees in grade	22	5	4	0
(2) End of Fiscal Year 1964
G.S. Level	4	5	6	7
Number of employees in grade	7	13	7	2

The new grade structure has created greater promotion possibilities for civilian employees, and coupled with increased financial benefits has made a definite career pattern possible.

JUDGE ADVOCATE AGENCY, COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND

The U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Judge Advocate Agency was activated at Charlottesville, Virginia, on 15 January 1964. Located at The Judge Advocate General's School, this agency assists the Combat Developments Command in providing answers to three questions vital to the Army, viz, How should the Army fight? How should the Army be equipped? and How should the Army be organized? This agency is one of nine separate field agencies under the USACDC Combat Service Support Group at Fort Lee, Virginia, whose over-all development mission is primarily directed toward logistical and administrative support of the field army.

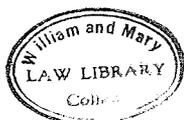

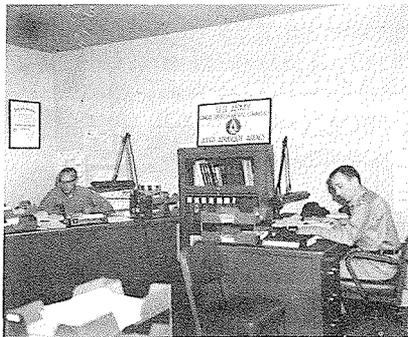

Included among the functions of the Judge Advocate Agency are the preparation, review, and contribution to field manuals, TOE's and other organizational documents; preparation and review of MOS and manpower authorization criteria, and preparation of studies relating to legal services for the Army.

With the establishment of this new agency, the Judge Advocate General's Corps is able to participate more fully in combat developments from concept to implementation by furnishing guidance when necessary and initiating actions designed to improve legal services for the Army.
