The Judge Advocate General's School
United States Army
Charlottesville, Virginia

Your excellent arrangements made my visit . . . most enjoyable and informative. The opportunity . . . was a rewarding experience.

. . . I appreciate your assistance . . . and the hospitality shown me by all the Judge Advocate General's School personnel.

W. C. WESTMORELAND
General, USA
Chief of Staff

I knew you would be interested in hearing of the high esteem in which your representatives are held. . . . [T]he instruction given is among the best anywhere. I . . . pass along my congratulations!

HONORABLE J. J. PICKLE
House of Representatives
10th District, Texas

I would like to express my deep appreciation for the warm welcome you . . . gave to me . . . on our recent visit . . . .

I am . . . grateful . . . most of all, for the education . . . you . . . have offered our Vietnamese students since 1958.

FOREWORD

The Judge Advocate General's School now begins its twentieth year of operation on the Grounds of the University of Virginia. These years have included the major defense expansions for the conflicts in Korea and Vietnam. More significantly for the Armed Forces attorney, the period has seen two great landmark legislative advances in military justice and an enlarged mission for the Judge Advocate General's Corps in all fields of legal endeavor.

In no year have greater demands been placed upon the School than the past, which saw the Military Justice Act of 1968 implemented. The School trained a larger number of judge advocate officers both in resident and nonresident instruction than in any similar period in its history. More educational materials were published and distributed by the School for the use of the Corps than ever before.

In his three-year tenure as Commandant, Colonel Kenneth C. Crawford led the School to new heights of service and achievement. In addition to implementation of the Military Justice Act, he is particularly to be remembered for the advances made by the School in the continuing legal education of our reservists. As a result, the Judge Advocate General's Corps is the Army's recognized leader in reserve education and training.

As the School begins a new year, we look forward to meeting new and growing challenges of service to the Army by developing and graduating ever more capable judge advocates, our most important product. Resident instruction will place additional emphasis on professional responsibility, practical application of the military lawyer's arts, comparative civilian practices and legal office management. The School will publish more quality research tools and materials for students and for the practicing judge advocate wherever he serves. Only by response from the field will we know if these efforts are successful.

Relations with and service to commanders, the Army reserve, judge advocates of sister services and allied nations, alumni, and the academic community will continue to be stressed. Further emphasis will be given to these which play such an important part in improving the role, responsibility, and prestige in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. I look forward to being a part of the School's educational leadership and professional service.

HISTORY OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

Although judge advocates have served the United States Army since 1775, no effort was made to provide them with formal training in military law until the opening days of the World War II. In preceding years, newly appointed judge advocates were trained empirically, but the Army's swift expansion soon emphasized the need for instructing attorneys entering the Corps in the manifold aspects of their new specialty.

In February 1942, as the uniformed lawyer's burden increased in complexity, specialized and refresher training courses for active duty personnel were commenced at the National University Law School, Washington, D.C. In August 1942, operations were transferred to The Judge Advocate General's School, physically located at the University of Michigan Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan, and commanded by Colonel Edward H. Young, JAGC. In the following months, hundreds of officers were trained at Ann Arbor. By June 1944, over two-thirds of the active duty strength of the Judge Advocate General's Corps were graduates of the School. The end of the war, however, substantially reduced the need for trained military lawyers, and in 1946 the School, which had been initiated only on a temporary basis, was discontinued.

Nevertheless, plans were soon being devised in the Office of The Judge Advocate General to implement the recommendation of a committee, appointed in 1946 to study the administration of military justice, that provision be made for the training of Army lawyers in military law. The passage of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the coming of the Korean conflict accentuated the need for judge advocate training facilities. As a consequence, another temporary training facility was established at Fort Myer, Virginia, again under the guidance of Colonel Young. Approximately 200 officers attended several five-week courses in basic military law taught by five officer-instructors.

By this time, the decision had been made to establish a permanent branch service school. Although the advisability of locating the School within 200 miles of Washington was recognized, sites as far away as Fort Crockett, Texas, and Fort Rodman, Massachusetts, were considered. In the spring of 1951 a survey was made of the facilities offered by the University of Virginia, and on 2 August 1951 the present Judge Advocate General's School was established. At present, The Judge Advocate General's School is a class II activity of the Office of The Judge Advocate General.

Colonel Charles L. Decker was appointed as first Commandant. He served until 15 June 1955 when he was succeeded by Colonel Nathaniel B. Rieger. Colonel Rieger was in turn succeeded by Colonel John G. O'Brien who served from 1 March 1957 to 13 May 1961. Colonel John F. T. Murray was Commandant from 1 July 1961 to 31 December 1964. Colonel John W. Burtchaell was Commandant from 1 January 1965 until his retirement on 30 June 1966. Colonel Lewis F. Shull served as Commandant from 25 July 1966 to 3 September 1967. Colonel Kenneth C. Crawford was Commandant from 3 September 1967 until his retirement on 1 June 1970. Colonel John Jay Douglass, the present Commandant, began his tour as Commandant on 1 June 1970.

ORGANIZATION OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

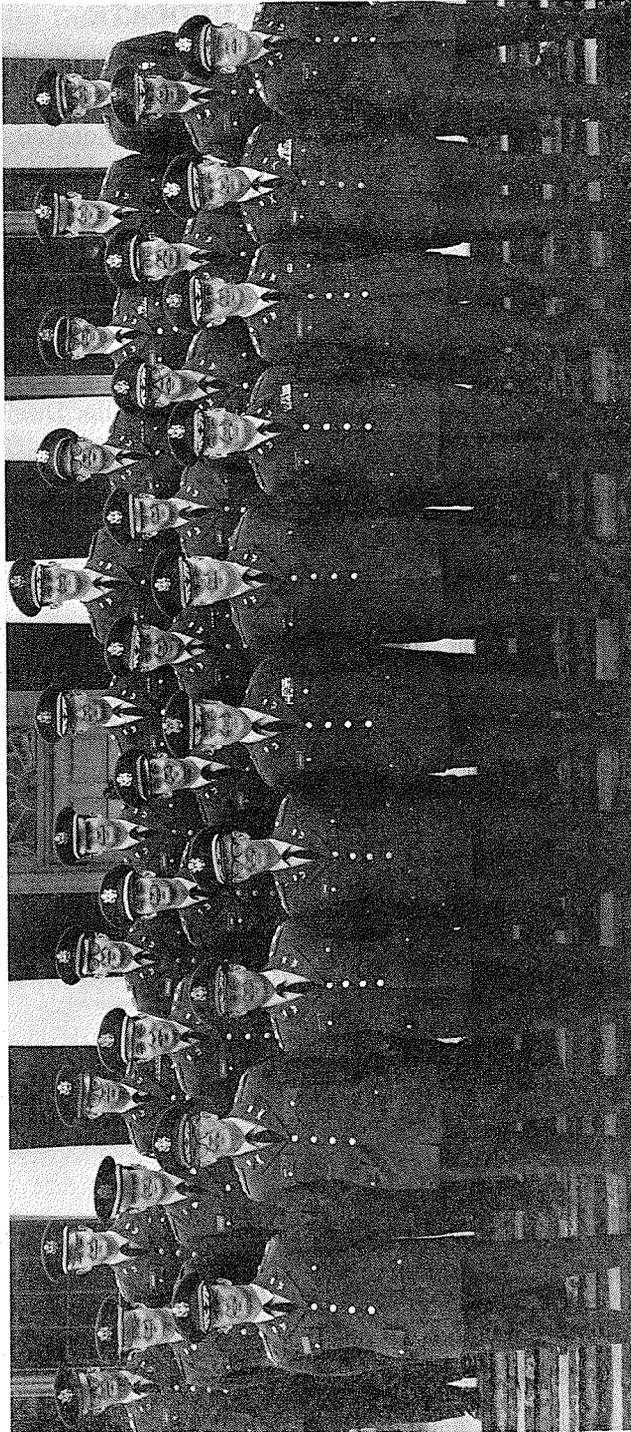

The Judge Advocate General's School, U. S. Army, is located on the grounds of the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Its function is to orient the Army lawyer to the fundamentals of military law, to provide current training material, and to inform him of the latest developments in the law. Formal instruction and legal publications, including texts, periodicals, and extension courses, are used to fulfill this purpose.

The Judge Advocate General's School operates on a year-round basis. Over 13,416 students have graduated from courses offered at the School in its 19 years of operation at Charlottesville. During Fiscal Year 1970, 1,260 students were graduated from courses offered at the School.

The Judge Advocate General's School is composed of three departments and the Office of the School Secretary.

The Academic Department. This department conducts resident instruction for all active Army and reserve judge advocates, as well as some Naval and Air Force officers. It also prepares academic texts. Resident courses include the Judge Advocate General Basic Course, for the orientation of newly commissioned judge advocates, and the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course, which covers the field of military law in greater depth. The department also conducts several specialized courses, generally two weeks in length, including courses in military justice, procurement law, international law, civil law, labor law, military affairs, civil affairs law, a combination resident and nonresident reserve course, and refresher courses for reserve component officers. The department is composed of the International and Comparative Law, Military Affairs, Military Justice, Military Training, and Procurement Law Divisions.

The Nonresident Training Department. This department is responsible for developing nonresident training programs to insure the continued high level of professional legal competence required of military lawyers. In this connection, the department administers the judge advocate portion of the Army extension course program and prepares and distributes the judge advocate nonresident training material used in extension courses, USAR Schools, and staff training materials used by the Judge Advocate General Service Organization (JAGSO) Detachments, the Judge Advocate Sections of USAR, and National Guard units. The department also provides liaison through periodic staff visits with the USAR School Judge Advocate Branch Departments, the JAGSO Detachments, and National Guard units. The department is composed of the Individual Training and Career Management Division and the Nonresident Materials Preparation Division.

The Plans and Publications Department. This department is responsible for the conduct and coordination of research in the military legal field; prompt dissemination of the results of the research to members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps; formulation of policies and procedures to aid in maintaining a superior level of staff work by judge advocates; special projects such as the Judge Advocate General's Conference and the conference for common subjects legal instructors; the preparation of permanent and periodical military legal publications, including the Military Law Review and the Judge Advocate Legal Service; the development and preparation of common subjects and quasi-legal instructional material including training films; and the planning and execution of an annual logistical exercise. The department consists of the Plans and Publications Divisions.

The Office of the School Secretary. This office formulates policies and, upon approval, executes policies concerning personnel, administration, security, management, and logistics. These responsibilities include the proper allocation and use of personnel, efficient use of physical facilities, budget preparation and review, and analysis and control of fiscal matters.

Board of Visitors. To insure that the high standards of the School are maintained and to assist in the determination of areas requiring improvement, an annual inspection by the Board of Visitors has been reinstated. The Board, composed of leading civilian practitioners and legal educators, examines the varied operations of the School and sums up its findings, with criticisms and recommendations, in a report submitted at the end of its inspection.

The present Board of Visitors is:

Eberhard P. Deutsch, Attorney at Law and senior partner of the firm of Deutsch, Kerrigan & Stiles, New Orleans, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army from Louisiana.

Birney M. Van Benschoten, Colonel, JAGC, USAR (Ret.), Attorney at Law, New York City. General Counsel for American Overseas Petroleum, Ltd.

Major General George W. Hickman, USA (Ret.), Professor of Law, University of San Diego School of Law; Director of Committee Services of the American Bar Association; The Judge Advocate General of the United States Army (1957-1960).

ACADEMIC ACTIVITIES

General. During Fiscal Year 1970, 23 resident courses were conducted with 1260 students in attendance. (See Appendix V for the FY 1970 schedule of courses.) Attending these courses were 989 Army commissioned officers, 158 Navy and Marine Corps officers, 30 Air Force officers, 72 civilians, and 11 allied officers from Iran, Korea, Liberia, Thailand and South Vietnam. (See Appendix VI for a breakdown of students in residence at the School during FY 1970.) Civilian personnel from Government agencies outside of the Department of Defense represented at the School during Fiscal Year 1970 included the Post Office Department, the Commerce Department, the Federal Aeronautical Administration, the Small Business Administration, the Atomic Energy Commission, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the General Accounting Office, and the Maritime Administration. Of the 989 Army officers attending courses, 723 were active duty personnel while the remainder were reserve component officers.

COL ALBERT S. RAKAS
Deputy Commandant and Director, Academic Department

Courses conducted during Fiscal Year 1970 include the nine-month Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course (5-18-C22); five cycles of the Judge Advocate General Basic Course (5F-8101); two cycles of the three-week Procurement Law Course (5F-F6); five cycles of the two-week Military Judge Course (5F-F9); two cycles of the new two-week Labor Law Course (5F-F10); the two-week International Law Course (5F-F3); the two-week Civil Affairs Law Course (5F-F5); the two-week Foreign Law Course (5F-F7); the two-week Judicial Seminar; the two-week Military Affairs Course (5F-F2); the one-week Law in Vietnam Course (5F-F8); the two-week Judge Advocate General Field Grade Refresher Course (5-18-C8), and the two-week Military Justice Course (5F-F1). Courses scheduled to be conducted during Fiscal Year 1971 are set forth as Appendix VII.

The official source of information concerning courses in instruction offered at all Army service schools, including The Judge Advocate General's School, is the U. S. Army Formal Schools Catalog (Department of the Army Pamphlet 350-10). That catalog provides detailed information for staff officers, commanders, and personnel officers who are concerned with the selection of individuals for school attendance; for commissioned officers, both active and reserve, of the armed forces, and civilian employees of the Government who are interested in attending particular courses; and for others who may wish to acquaint themselves with the Army's training opportunities. In addition, Army regulations govern related matters such as attendance by military personnel from foreign countries. These authorities should always be consulted for the latest official information. Quotas for the numbered courses mentioned above, except for the Military Judge Course (5F-F9), are handled by the United States Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Virginia. Quotas for the Military Judge Course are handled by the School. Particular inquiries concerning this School may be addressed to the Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, United States Army, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901.

Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course. In this course, selected judge advocates are educated for leadership in the broad fields of military law. This course offers an academic year of graduate level study in all areas of law relevant to military legal practice. It is approved by the American Bar Association as meeting the standards required for a graduate level study program. It is open to highly qualified and carefully selected career judge advocates or legal specialists of the armed forces of the United States and allied nations. The course is intended to deepen and broaden a philosophical appreciation of the role of law in its application to all phases of military life through recognition of the continual impact of legal principles and standards at all levels of command, and thus to prepare the officer student to render legal services to higher commanders under varying conditions of present and future military operations and organizations.

The curriculum of this thirty-six week course (September-May) includes the study of military criminal law and practice, the philosophy of penology, public contract law, statutory and regulatory controls and directives for procurement, taxation, administrative law concerning military and civilian personnel, investigative powers, administrative board procedures, administration of military reservations, non-appropriated fund activities, property, claims, legal assistance, civil affairs, domestic emergencies, international law, the legal aspects of counterinsurgency, comparative law, and jurisprudence.

In addition, successful completion of the course requires the submission of either a thesis of graduate level (LL.M.) quality which makes a substantial contribution to military legal scholarship or the completion of a research project in a designated area of military law. The topics and scope notes of the theses and projects prepared by members of the 18th Advanced Course may be found in Appendix VIII. Several will be published in forthcoming issues of the Military Law Review.

The Eighteenth Advanced Class began on 2 September 1969 with 29 students in attendance: 25 U. S. Army judge advocates, 1 U. S. Navy judge advocate, 2 U. S. Marine Corps judge advocates, and 1 allied officer from Iran. The class was graduated on 22 May 1970. The course is conducted in a two semester format described in the following paragraphs:

1. First Semester (2 September-19 December 1969).

Instruction was presented by the Military Affairs and Procurement Law Divisions. The Military Affairs Division presented 117 hours of classroom instruction on such subjects as claims, military reservations, personnel law, administrative proceedings, legal assistance and taxation. The students also participated in seminars and took a four hour essay-type examination.

Seventy-four (74) hours of classroom instruction were presented dealing with all aspects of procurement law. In addition, procurement law institutes were conducted in such areas as social and economic policies, competition and discrimination. A four hour essay type examination concluded the procurement instruction.

2. Second Semester (4 January-22 May 1970)

The Military Justice Division presented 142 hours of instruction and the International and Comparative Law Division presented 90 hours of instruction. A final examination was conducted in each course.

The Military Justice instruction included lectures and seminars on evidence, procedure, substantive criminal law, jurisdiction and review of courts-martial. Guest speakers supplemented the classroom instruction with presentations on psychiatry, narcotics and drug abuse, and organization and procedures of the appellate divisions of the Army Judiciary. Included in the military justice instruction was a condensation of the Military Judge Course which was presented to qualify the class for certification as military judges.

International and Comparative Law Division instruction included presentations on the Hague and Geneva Conventions, the United Nations, the various Status of Forces and other agreements entered into by the United States and a background study on United States involvement in overseas military operations. The classroom instruction was supplemented by visiting lecturers of note in the international law field.

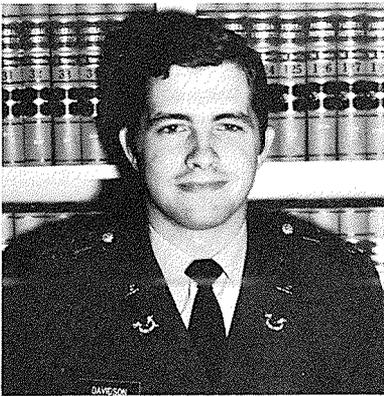

A new block of instruction, Personnel Management, was introduced into the Advanced Class curriculum during the second semester. The twelve hours of classroom instruction were supplemented by practical exercises and the solution of factual personnel problems.

3. Military Training. During both semesters the Military Training Division presented sixty-four (64) hours of instruction covering division operations and common subjects. In addition to formal instruction, the class attended Exercise Brass Strike IV at Fort Bragg, North Carolina during the period 25-26 September 1969.

4. Thesis Program. At the beginning of the semester, the students were issued a list of approximately one hundred suggested thesis topics covering a wide spectrum of military law. Students could choose one of the suggested topics or could submit one of their own creation for approval by the academic division most closely related to the subject. Class members were also given the opportunity to select a research project to complete during the period allotted to thesis preparation.

Students were required to select a topic by 29 September 1969. Upon approval of the selection, a thesis adviser or project adviser was assigned from the faculty. During the academic year three weeks were set aside solely for thesis research. The first drafts were submitted on 9 February 1970. Research projects were submitted under the same schedule.

Each paper was evaluated in turn by the adviser, the division chief and the department head and a final grade determined. The graded thesis or project is allotted a weight of approximately 30% in determining each student's final overall grade.

5. Graduation. The Eighteenth Advanced Class was graduated on 22 May 1970.

Judge Advocate Officer Basic Course. In this course, conducted five times during Fiscal Year 1970 for officers newly commissioned in the Judge Advocate General's Corps, training is provided in the fundamentals of military law. The content of the course stresses those areas of military practice with which newly appointed judge advocates are most likely to be concerned in their first duty assignments. Accordingly, the course is devoted primarily to the fundamentals of military criminal law and practice in order to equip the graduate with a working knowledge of the duties of trial and defense counsel before general and special courts-martial. Instruction is also given on the provisions of the Soldier's and Sailor's Civil Relief Act, problems of domicile as affected by military status, domestic relations, immigration, adoption, wills, insurance, personal taxation, family financial problems, debt counseling, suits for and against servicemen, and the mechanics of the Army's legal assistance program. The course also includes those laws and regulations concerning many aspects of military personnel administration including appointment, enlistment, promotion, reduction, retirement, discharge, pay, death and disability benefits, and matters of practice and procedure before administrative boards concerned with such matters. Special attention is also given to the problems of the administration of military reservations, including the powers and duties of a post commander to regulate traffic, make arrests, regulate ingress and egress, deal with property both public and private, and manage and control the operation of such nonappropriated fund activities as post exchanges, commissaries, clubs, and other associations. A substantial block of instruction is also given on those laws and regulations covering claims for and against the Government. The course includes only an introductory coverage of the law of public contracts, civil affairs, and international law. A graduate of the Basic Course is expected to return to the School at a later time for instruction on these subjects by attendance at an appropriate short course, as described below, should his duties so require.

The students attend a two and one-half week Officer Training Course at Fort Lee, Virginia, as a prerequisite to the Basic Course. The primary purpose of this requirement is to increase the newly commissioned officer's appreciation of the problems of military command and acquaint him with military customs, courtesies and traditions. Additionally, non-ROTC graduate students are normally required to take the nine-week Armor Officer Basic Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

JAGEX, a command post exercise begun in 1960, was conducted again this year for the Fifty-Second through Fifty-Sixth Basic Classes. Play of that exercise requires five days. Students are divided into small groups and organize themselves into typical staff judge advocate offices. Advanced Class students assigned to each group act as the staff judge advocate, deputy staff judge advocate, and as group controllers to supervise and pace the play, introduce problems, furnish advice, and review and critique player solutions for accuracy, completeness, and practicability. Problems likely to be encountered in the day-to-day operations of a staff judge advocate office were prepared by the four law-teaching divisions of the department. Realism was further heightened by the introduction of several "live" problems using staff and faculty personnel as actors.

A continuing feature of the instruction given Basic Course students is the moot court program. This program is designed to give newly commissioned judge advocate officers practical experience in military trial practice and procedure. Moot courts are simulated general courts-martial based on factual situations prepared by faculty members. The positions of trial and defense counsel, members of the court and witnesses are filled by members of the Basic Course. Each student has at least one opportunity to act as trial or defense counsel. The military judge's part is played by a member of the staff and faculty, the Advanced Class and members of the U. S. Army Judiciary.

JAGEX play and the moot court program are combined over this five-day period to add realism to the operation of the "staff judge advocate's office."

Procurement Law Course. The three-week course was given twice in Fiscal Year 1970. This course concentrates on the legal aspects of government contract law, legal principles pertaining to appropriated funds, procurement policies, types of contracts, procurement by formal advertising and by competitive negotiation, mistakes in bids, modification of contracts, cost principles, sub-contracts, price revision, disputes, claims, remedies, termination for default or convenience, taxation, labor law, and the utilization and disposition of government property.

The course enjoys an outstanding reputation throughout government agencies. Although some of the other short resident courses also utilize guest lectures, one of the distinctive features of this course is its extensive use of guest speakers who are in key positions in government procurement and can thus speak with authority as specialists in their fields. About 30 percent of the students attending these courses in Fiscal Year 1970 were civilian attorneys employed by the various departments of the Department of Defense and other agencies of the Government. Approximately 15 percent were Army reserve judge advocates on active duty training. The remainder were active Army, Navy, or Air Force officers and government civilian employees.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to procurement duties and to commissioned officers of the active armed forces or a reserve component who are lawyers. Although they are encouraged to attend the entire three weeks, Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course are permitted to attend the first two weeks of this course in satisfaction of the requirement of that course for the study of procurement law.

Military Justice Course. This two-week course is designed to prepare lawyers to perform duties involving the application and interpretation of military criminal law. The curriculum includes the study of the law of evidence, substantive crimes, defenses and instructions, procedure, the jurisdiction of courts-martial, punishments and appellate review of court-martial records.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring a knowledge of military criminal law and practice, and to commissioned officers of the active armed forces or a reserve component who are lawyers. Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of these subjects. In FY 1970 the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

BRIGADIER GENERAL HAROLD E. PARKER, Assistant Judge Advocate General for Military Law, visits TJAGSA.

International Law Course. This two-week course is concerned with the interpretation and application of international law. Coverage is more or less equally divided between the study of those fundamental principles of international law that govern the peaceful relations between nations and those concerning the international law of war.

This course is open both to lawyers and non-lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government or commissioned officers of the active armed forces or a reserve component whose actual or anticipated assignment is to duties requiring a knowledge of international law. Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of international law. In FY 1970 the student body attending his course was predominantly composed of Army reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Civil Law Course. This two-week course is concerned with claims, litigation, domestic emergencies, legal assistance, and the administration of military reservations.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring such knowledge and to commissioned officers in the active armed forces or a reserve component who are lawyers. Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of these subjects. In FY 1970 the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Civil Affairs Law Course. This two-week resident course is concerned with the legal aspects of civil affairs with particular reference to international law as it may be pertinent to civil affairs in foreign countries.

This course is open to employees of the Government with an actual or anticipated assignment to duties requiring knowledge of the legal aspects of civil affairs. The course is open to both active and reserve component officers of the armed forces. It is not necessary that one be a lawyer to attend. Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of these subjects. In FY 1970, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve Judge Advocates on active duty training.

Foreign Law Course. This two-week resident course is concerned with foreign law, with particular reference to the legal systems of those areas in which United States forces are or may be stationed.

Active or reserve officers of the armed forces, and lawyer or non-lawyer employees of the Government with actual or anticipated assignment to duty requiring a knowledge of the legal aspects of particular local law may attend.

Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of the requirements of that course for the study of these subjects.

In FY 1970, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Military Affairs Course. This two-week course provides instruction in military administrative law. The curriculum includes a study of the organization of the United States for national security, delegation of authority, administrative due process, and the laws and regulations governing the many aspects of the personnel process, including appointment, enlistment, promotion, reduction, discharge, pay, death and disability benefits, and matters of practice and procedure before administrative boards concerned with such matters.

This course is open to lawyers who are civilian employees of the Government engaged in or about to be assigned to duties requiring knowledge of military administrative law, and to commissioned officers of the active armed forces or a reserve component who are lawyers. Army reserve judge advocates enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career (Reserve Component) Course may attend this course in satisfaction of requirements of that course for such subjects. In FY 1970, the student body attending this course was predominantly composed of Army reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Judge Advocate Officer Refresher (Reserve Component) Course. This two-week survey course provides refresher training in all areas of law pertinent to military legal practice. Emphasis is placed on current trends and developments. It is part of the program of continuing legal education for reserve component officers and is attended only by these officers.

This course is not a credit course for branch qualification of reserve officers. No attempt is made to cover subjects in depth, and the content of the curriculum is subject to continuous revision. In FY 1970, the student body of this course was predominantly composed of Army Reserve judge advocates on active duty training.

Law in Vietnam Course. This one-week course was offered for the first time during FY 1967. The special need for knowledge caused by our commitments in this South East Asian country gave rise to the creation of this course. Two cycles were offered in FY 1967 and FY 1968 and again in FY 1969. It was offered one time during FY 1970. The course was conducted mainly by guest speakers recently returned from South Vietnam with firsthand knowledge of the country and the problems involved.

This course is designed primarily for lawyers who will be stationed in South Vietnam. This is not a credit course for branch qualification of reserve officers.

Judicial Seminar. This two-week seminar is concerned with the study of recent developments in the military justice field. Emphasis is placed on the role of the military judge in the administration of trials, pretrial procedure, evidence, motions, defenses, guilty pleas, instructions and punishments. Round table seminar discussions are a prominent portion of the program.

Participation in this seminar is limited by The Judge Advocate General of the Army to judge advocates or legal specialists of the active armed forces assigned or about to be assigned to military judge duties and to Army reserve judge advocates who are mobilization designees to the U. S. Army Judiciary. This seminar is not listed in the U. S. Army Formal Schools Catalog.

Military Judge Course. Five cycles of this two-week course were conducted during FY 1970. This course was inaugurated in FY 1969 to provide military lawyers advanced schooling to qualify them to perform duties as military judges at courts-martial, with emphasis on special courts-martial. The curriculum includes a study of the Military Justice Act of 1968 and the Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised edition), substantive crimes and defenses, rules and principles of evidence and pretrial, trial and post-trial procedure.

GENERAL HODSON swears in COL DOUGLASS, the Distinguished Graduate of the Fourth Military Judge Course—now the School's Commandant.

The course is open to active duty or Reserve Component commissioned officers who are judge advocates or law specialists having the training and background indicating judicial temperament. The United States Navy, United States Marine Corps, the United States Coast Guard, and the United States Air Force have requested quotas for their judge advocates and legal specialists to attend this course. In FY 1970 the student body attending this course was composed entirely of active duty personnel of the various armed services.

Labor Law Course. This newly-developed resident course was presented during a two-week period in December 1969 and again in April 1970. It was designed to acquaint military and civilian lawyers within the Department of Defense with the federal civilian personnel system, legal aspects of federal contractor labor relations and the rapidly developing area of labor relations within the federal government.

The course is open both to active and reserve component commissioned officers of the Armed Forces who are members of a state or federal bar and to lawyers who are civilian employees of the federal government engaged in or about to be assigned duties requiring knowledge of labor law. It is not a credit course for branch qualification of reserve officers. The majority of the students attending the course in FY 1970 were active duty JAGC officers from all four services.

COL BRUCE C. BABBITT, Assistant Judge Advocate General for Civil Law, visited the School several times this year.

Guest Speaker Program. Each academic year a large number of eminent guest speakers present lectures of interest to the faculty and student body. The subjects of the lectures take in such diverse areas as Appellate Process, Investments, Narcotics and Drug Abuse, Environmental Control, Criminal Investigation Techniques and Treatment of Prisoners of War.

Each speaker is selected for his experience, his reputation as an authority in his field, and the importance of his subject as it relates to the overall education of the judge advocate. A complete list of the guest speakers who addressed the various school courses during FY 1970 is contained in Appendix X.

Educational Advisor. Dr. John Sanderson, Associate Professor and Assistant Dean, School of Education, University of Virginia, serves as Educational Advisor to the School Academic Department. Dr. Sanderson is a highly qualified educator holding an Ed.D. with specialization in educational psychology and test construction.

The role of the Educational Advisor is to provide a source of information on new developments in the educational field, particularly methods of instruction, and to introduce appropriate innovations and developments into the academic program.

The Educational Advisor performs continuing consulting service to the School on his own initiative. On the basis of his educational background and his experience, he analyzes the effectiveness of teaching techniques, including classroom presentation methods, educational materials, examination and grading procedures. He also prepares, distributes and evaluates critiques of the School program to analyze student response to the methods of instruction. After consideration of all factors he then makes recommendations for changes appropriate to the particular circumstances at the School and in accordance with its designated mission.

Text Preparation Program During FY 1970. Textbook revisions required with the passage of the Military Justice Act of 1968 and the promulgation of the Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised edition) were substantially completed during FY 1970. Those publications not yet available to the field are currently awaiting publication. The task of revision and expansion of the numerous military law textbooks could never be complete at any one time. Several of the publications prepared in the initial phase of the textbook program are currently under revision with republication scheduled for FY 1971. A tabular report on the status of DA Pamphlets on military legal subjects appears as Appendix XII.

Thesis Lending Library. The University of Virginia School of Law Library serves as the thesis lending library. Copies of theses written by members of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Courses are available on a temporary loan basis from this library.

Reserve Training at Hattiesburg. The Judge Advocate General's School directed two weeks of instruction for reserve judge advocates and enlisted men at the University of Southern Mississippi at Hattiesburg. Over 1100 members of JAG reserve detachments were assembled in Hattiesburg to receive extensive instruction in military law and legal administration. Approximately 350 reserve judge advocates were taught selected subjects in the fields of Military Affairs, International Law, Military Justice and Procurement Law. Instruction in these fields emphasized the changes in substantive and procedural law and regulation since the FY 1969 training. For purposes of the instruction officers were grouped according to their levels of judge advocate experience, a procedure which permitted students to devote extensive time to the in-depth study of problems typically encountered at the various levels of judge advocate experience. This procedure further enabled instructors to address themselves to the experience level and educational background of the members of each class.

The formal instruction was also divided in a manner to allow reserve JAG teams to devote a portion of their time to the resolving of practical problems in their legal specialty. This team training was designed to allow each detachment the maximum freedom in the development of their solutions and advice. All phases of the formal instruction were synthesized by participation in a Moot Court exercise.

The instruction provided by The Judge Advocate General's School was supplemented by speakers from the National Strategy Information Center and by personnel from other service schools who provided expertise in the areas of legal administration. The courses provided for enlisted personnel included: Legal Clerks Course, Court Reporters Course, Clerk-Typist Course, Unit Supply Course and 201 File Maintenance Course. In addition to their classroom participation enlisted personnel were given on-the-job training in their detachment offices, in supplementation to the officers' team training and in the Moot Court exercise.

The training concept utilized during the period 14-27 June 1970 at the University of Southern Mississippi was acclaimed by the reserve participants and the officials who observed the instruction. Representatives of the Army areas, of state organizations, the reserve commands, and Major General Lawrence J. Fuller, The Assistant Judge Advocate General, visited the training at Hattiesburg.

NONRESIDENT TRAINING

General. Army Regulation 350-115 provides that The Judge Advocate General's School will formulate, develop and provide Reserve nonresident training programs. It further provides that the School will prepare and distribute instructional material in support of such programs and will monitor the effectiveness of such training through liaison visits to the field. This portion of the School's mission is carried out by the Nonresident Training Department. This includes the responsibility of insuring that approximately 4200 reserve component judge advocate officers and other reserve component personnel, not on extended active duty, are provided meaningful training to enable them to perform their duties in the event of national mobilization. The department also contributes to the legal education of active duty judge advocate officers and enlisted personnel in the other services as well as civilian employees of the Government. The Nonresident Training Department accomplishes its mission through a variety of programs administered by its two divisions—the Nonresident Materials Preparation Division and the Individual Training and Career Management Division. Effective in March 1970, the department was delegated additional functions formerly performed in the Office of The Judge Advocate General.

Nonresident Materials Preparation Division. The Nonresident Materials Preparation Division is responsible for the legal writing and editing of instructional and student material for the USAR schools and extension courses. In performing these duties, the division acts in conjunction with the appropriate academic divisions. It is estimated that this division prepares or reviews approximately 2000 hours of instruction each fiscal year. Some of the courses prepared by this division include: The USAR School Branch Officer Advanced Course; The Judge Advocate Basic Indoctrination Extension Course; The Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course; The USAR School Judge Advocate Reserve New Developments Course; The USAR School Staff Judge Advocate Operations Course; The Extension Specialization Courses; and the USAR School and Extension Common Subjects Courses. Through General's School and its Nonresident Training Department seek to provide the reserve Judge Advocate with the equivalent educational opportunities available to his active duty counterpart.

a. Extension Courses. As part of a program of continuous updating of its extension courses, the Nonresident Materials Preparation Division, in cooperation with the Academic Department, revised 16 subcourses and post-graduate courses used in The Judge Advocate General's School Extension Course Programs and four common subjects subcourses during the past fiscal year.

b. USAR School Courses.

(1) USAR School Branch Officer Advanced Course. This course, introduced into the USAR schools in September 1968, replaced the Branch Officer Career Course and the former USAR School Judge Advocate Officer Career Course. Materials for all of the 320 hours of military legal subjects taught in the Branch Officer Advanced Course are distributed by the Nonresident Training Department. The department has also prepared the instructional materials to be used during 1970 in Phase IV of Annual Training (AT).

(2) New Developments Course. The Nonresident Training Department is responsible for administering the USAR School Judge Advocate Reserve New Developments Course which is offered as a graduate course to reserve component judge advocates who have previously completed a Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course. Subject matter includes military justice, military affairs, procurement law, and international law. The course is offered in alternate years beginning in the school year 1969-1970. During the 1969-1970 school year, the military justice portion of the course gave emphasis to the new Manual for Courts-Martial and the new Military Justice Act.

(3) Staff Judge Advocate Operations Course. Instructional material is provided for this post-graduate course which will also be offered in alternate years beginning in 1970-1971. The new course will emphasize the operational aspects of the modern judge advocate office and the effect of contemporary changes in the duties and responsibilities of the judge advocate officer and include special consideration of new SJA and command responsibilities under the revised Manual for Courts-Martial.

(4) New Course Material. In recognition of the demands in volume and performance placed on legal clerks as a result of the new Manual for Courts-Martial and the Military Justice Act of 1968, the Nonresident Training Department continues to offer a Legal Clerk's Military Justice Specialization Training (Inferior Court-Martial Administration) Course. This program guides the legal clerk in his application of procedures involved in the military justice system emphasizing the performance of responsibilities encountered at the special court-martial jurisdictional level.

Individual Training and Career Management Division. The Individual Training and Career Management Division is charged with Reserve officer training on an individual level, including the administration of the JAGC extension course program. The division is also responsible for providing career guidance for all JAGC officers in the Ready Reserve.

a. Individual Training. As a part of its training function, the division administers a variety of extension courses for armed forces personnel and federal government employees:

(1) The Judge Advocate Basic Indoctrination Extension Course is designed to provide newly commissioned JAGC Reserve officers with a basic understanding of the military legal system. This course, or its equivalent, is presently an educational prerequisite for promotion to captain. On 1 July 1972 this course plus completion of 25% of a judge advocate officer career course will be required for promotion to captain.

(2) The Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course (5-18-E23) is the extension equivalent of the nine-month resident Advanced Course. It is designed educationally to qualify career JAGC Reserve officers to perform all judge advocate functions. To enroll in the course, an applicant must be a commissioned officer of the Armed Forces whose assignment, actual or anticipated, is to the Judge Advocate General's Corps or his service's equivalent. In addition, the applicant must have actual, constructive or equivalent credit for the Judge Advocate Basic Indoctrination Extension Course. Students enrolled in this course must complete a minimum of 120 credit hours each enrollment year. At least 40 of the 120 required annual credit hours must be completed by extension subcourses. The remaining 80 credit hours may be earned either by completing extension subcourses or attending one of the equivalent short resident courses offered by The Judge Advocate General's School. Successful completion of one-half of the career extension course will currently qualify a reserve component judge advocate officer for promotion to the grade of major. Completion of the entire course qualifies a JAGC officer for promotion to the grade of lieutenant colonel. Effective 9 June 1969, completion of an appropriate Command and General Staff College course became a prerequisite for promotion to colonel. On 1 July 1972 educational requirements will change so that 25% of the career course will be required for promotion to captain and completion of the entire course will be required for promotion to major. One-half of the Command and General Staff College course will be required for promotion to lieutenant colonel, and the entire Command and General Staff College course will be required for promotion to colonel. The Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course is interchangeable with the USAR School Branch Officer Advanced Course which began operation in the USAR schools on 1 September 1968.

(3) Specialization Extension Courses are available to reserve component judge advocate officers who have completed a judge advocate officer career course. These courses provide in-depth study of selected subjects in international law, military justice, military affairs, and procurement law.

(4) Special Extension Courses provide training in military-legal and related subjects to certain military personnel who are not judge advocate officers.

(a) Military Law for Commanders and Staff Officers is designed for officers who are not members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps but who, by virtue of their duties, require some knowledge of military law and procedure.

(b) The Legal Administrative Technician Course (MOS 713A) provides training to personnel holding or preparing for the military occupational specialty of Legal Administrative Technician.

(c) The Branch Senior NCO Course provides training to enlisted grades E-6 and above who hold MOS 71D.

(d) The Legal Clerk Course provides training to enlisted personnel holding or preparing for the military occupational specialty of Legal Clerk (MOS 71D). This course consists of the following three parts: Legal Clerk Course (MOS 71D20), Legal Clerk Course (MOS 71D40), and Legal Clerk Course (MOS 71D-50).

(e) The Legal Clerk Military Justice Specialization Training Course provides guidance for the legal clerk in the principles and procedures involved in the operation of the military justice system. Emphasis is placed on new responsibilities at the special court-martial level due to changes in the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

(5) Miscellaneous enrollments are also available to enable all active duty and reserve component military personnel and civilian employees of the federal government, whose actual or prospective duties require knowledge of the subject matter, to complete extension subcourses offered by the School, even though they may not meet the eligibility requirements of any of the above-mentioned courses.

(6) As of 25 May 1970 the breakdown of extension course enrollments was as follows:

(7) The division also administers the following special training projects for JAGC reserve officers who have completed the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course or its equivalent:

(a) The Military-Legal Thesis Program enables reservists to write scholarly articles on military-legal subjects, for which retirement points are awarded. The purpose of the program is to encourage the preparation and publication of scholarly articles or treatises on military jurisprudence.

(b) The Legal Area Specialist Program, offered to judge advocate reservists with a foreign language proficiency, involves the translation of legal codes, treatises, cases, and other civilian or military-legal materials from a foreign language into English or vice versa.

(c) Miscellaneous training projects, consisting of the preparation and presentation of military-legal instruction, have also been assigned to judge advocate reservists.

(8) The division has been designated project coordinator for the JAG School training film project. The printing of all supplemental materials (student and instructor materials) is coordinated through this division. Initially the printing and distributing was done at the Army level. However, to avoid possible confusion and to assure uniform quality printing, this division is now responsible for all printing and distribution to the Armies. The printing consists of approximately 1500 student packets and 250 instructor packets for each of the 123 hours of film. Distribution of the films is accomplished at the Army level; however, this division has provided assistance to each Army in formulating a program of distribution.

b. Career Management.

(1) To provide prompt and accurate career advice to reserve judge advocates, the Individual Training and Career Management Division maintains detailed records for each reservist assigned to the Judge Advocate General's Corps. At the present time separate detailed personnel files and locator cards are maintained on each of 1,565 judge advocate reservists. Each file includes all available written material pertaining to an officer's career from the time of his appointment until his retirement. An additional file is maintained for each reservist, officer and enlisted, and each active duty enrollee in the extension course program. These files include all information pertinent to the enrollee's military education. The files are maintained throughout the individual's extension course enrollment and for a period of six years thereafter. In the period 1969-1970 approximately 4,350 such files were maintained by the Individual Training and Career Management Division.

(2) In November 1969 the Individual Training and Career Management Division prepared a special Reserve issue of the Judge Advocate Legal Service to provide guidance and assistance to reservists in areas such as retirement points, unit training, educational opportunities, mobilization designation assignments, promotions, and constructive credit.

(3) The Individual Training and Career Management Division engages in a constant flow of correspondence with individual reservists concerning their career development. In addition, every effort is made to contact reserve officers on a personal basis whenever possible. Each judge advocate reservist attending a resident short course at the School is interviewed by a member of the division. Such interviews often alert reservists to important career matters and contribute to the orderly development of their reserve career.

(4) During the past year officers from the division attended the JAG Detachment training at Hattiesburg, Mississippi, and conducted personal interviews with JAGC Reserve officers in attendance.

c. New Responsibilities of the Individual Training and Career Management Division: Effective March 1970 the following reserve affairs functions of The Judge Advocate General, Department of the Army, were transferred from the Assistant for Reserve Affairs, OTJAG, DA, to the Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School:

(1) Approval of appointments and transfers of reserve component JAGC officers without concurrent call to active duty.

(2) Management of the OTJAG, DA, mobilization designee program which includes processing assignment and AT orders for mobilization designees to OTJAG, The Judge Advocate General's School, the U. S. Army Judiciary, and the U. S. Army Claims Service.

(3) Awards of constructive credit under the provisions of paragraph 6b, AR 135-316.

The Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, has further delegated these functions to the Individual Training and Career Management Division.

PLANS AND PUBLICATIONS

General. Accomplishment of the School's mission in conducting and coordinating legal research and distributing the results of such research to U. S. Army judge advocates in the field is the responsibility of the Plans and Publications Department. During FY 1970 the department strove to maintain the School's reputation as a source of military law and interpretation upon which judge advocates can rely.

Various permanent and periodical military publications, prepared by the department, are the vehicles for disseminating such legal research. Training films, slides and taped scripts are also utilized to carry the latest developments to the field.

Army service schools and senior ROTC students also utilize materials and courses of instruction prepared and published by the Plans and Publications Department. Moreover, the Annual Judge Advocate General's Conference, in addition to other more specialized conferences, receive administrative support from this department.

Publications.

- (1) Judge Advocate Legal Service. Rapidly carrying the latest military law and items of interest to judge advocates in all parts of the world is the function of this Department of the Army pamphlet series. In order to facilitate distribution, the Legal Service is field printed in Culpeper, Virginia. With 7200 copies being printed almost every week, the mailing lists are being revised constantly. The Air Force and Navy receive bulk distribution.

The Legal Service contains digests of all cases decided by the United States Court of Military Appeals, most published Court of Military Review decisions, Federal Court decisions affecting the Armed Services, and since 1 July 1968 is the only source of published opinions of The Judge Advocate General, thus requiring permanent filing by recipients. In order to keep judge advocates informed of issues currently being considered by the Court of Military Appeals, a section on "Grants and Certifications of Review" is published. Administrative matters of importance to the Corps are also published in the Legal Service.

The Military Justice Act of 1968 enables The Judge Advocate General to vacate or modify in whole or in part findings or sentences which have been finally reviewed but not reviewed by a Court of Military Review on grounds set forth in article 69, Uniform Code of Military Justice. This necessitated inclusion of a new section entitled "TJAG Actions Under Article 69."

With the significant changes in military law that occurred within the past year, a special effort was made to get this information to the field at an early date. A special issue of the Legal Service was prepared immediately after the O'Callahan v. Parker decision so that all judge advocates could have the full text of the opinion in their hands as soon as possible. Likewise, Sullivan v. United States, which dealt with the effect of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act on the applicability of local sales and use taxes to nonresident servicemen, was distributed verbatim immediately after the decision was rendered.

(2) Military Law Review. This Department of the Army Pamphlet is a law quarterly identical in format to the leading civilian journals. All judge advocates in the Active Army and the ready reserve receive the Law Review. In addition, the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, sells copies and subscriptions to all interested civilian agencies and individuals. With over 20,000 copies published quarterly, the Military Law Review has a circulation equal to that of the three largest civilian law reviews combined.

The Law Review contains lead articles, comments, and notes of interest to military law practitioners. Theses written by officers taking the Judge Advocate Advanced Course are the primary source of major articles, but excellent articles from outside contributors are also found therein. While contributions from judge advocates in all three armed services, foreign military and civilian lawyers, members of the staff and faculty, law school professors, reserve judge advocates, and civilian attorneys continue to be received, the Review seeks more comments and notes of superior quality and encourages all who are so motivated to write.

During the preceding fiscal year Volumes 45-48 were printed. These volumes contained articles covering a wide scope of subject matter, ranging from an article by Chief Judge Quinn of the U. S. Court of Military Appeals comparing the military and civilian systems of justice, to the Army's experience in labor law arbitrations with civilian employees. Several outstanding articles in other law reviews have been considered for reprint in the Military Law Review. An article appearing in Volume 45 of the Military Law Review, "The Military Oral Deposition and Modern Communications," by Lieutenant Commander Peter J. McGovern, USN, won the 1969 Federal Bar Association Writing Award for Military Justice.

(3) Common Subjects Lesson Plans. The department is jointly responsible with the Academic Department for the preparation and review of common subjects lesson plans in "Military Justice" and "Legal Aspects of Counterinsurgency" for use in Army service schools, USAR schools, and Army ROTC. During FY 1970, extensively revised C20, C22, C23, and OCS courses in Military Justice, intended for uniform use in all Service Schools, have been drafted. Similar common subject courses in Military Justice for noncommissioned officers are also in the planning stage.

(4) Legal Clerk's Handbook. Although it was published initially as a School text, the widespread demand for the Handbook resulted in its adoption and publication as Department of the Army Pamphlet 27-16. The Handbook is designed as a step-by-step guide for legal clerks in the field and for use in resident and non-resident training of legal clerks. A revision of this pamphlet is currently being prepared.

(5) SJA Special Set of Regulations. Containing a list of Army regulations frequently used in staff judge advocate offices, this publication is an Annex to Special Catalog Staff Training Material for Reserve Components. It was distributed to both active and reserve judge advocates beginning in February, 1970. The Special Set is an annual publication.

(6) Pocket Card on Article 15, UCMJ. Under prior arrangements made by the department the wallet-size card, GTA 27-1-1, was revised to reflect more accurately criteria to be considered by the commandant when imposing punishment under article 15 and to emphasize that acceptance of nonjudicial punishment is not an acknowledgement of guilt. Further revision is contemplated to reflect changes in AR 27-10.

(7) Staff Judge Advocate Handbook. The department's Publications Division also took part in Task Force Challenge by revising Department of the Army Pamphlet 27-5, The Staff Judge Advocate Handbook. This practical guide for all phases of judge advocate operations is still in the draft stage, but should be released within FY 1971.

Special Activities.

(1) The Judge Advocate General's Conference. The 1969 Judge Advocate General's Conference was held in Charlottesville during 14-18 July 1969, just before the Military Justice Act of 1968 went into effect (1 August 1969). Two hundred and thirty-three conferees from duty stations around the world assembled to discuss the Military Justice Act and its implementation. Other developments in military law were also discussed. Principal speakers were General William C. Westmoreland, Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., and Congressman Alexander Pirnie. The usual excellent presentations were made by selected personnel from the Office of the Judge Advocate General, and from continental and overseas commands.

(2) LOGEX. Due to budgetary restrictions, LOGEX 70 was cancelled, after the completion of considerable administrative preparation. It is expected that this work product will be utilized in future logistical exercises.

(3) TJAGSA Alumni Association. The Alumni Association continued to flourish in FY 1970. In addition to bestowing small tokens of appreciation to deserving persons and institutions related to the School and the surrounding community, five more Alumni Newsletters were published during the past fiscal year. These activities were financed by annual dues of one dollar per member, together with the generous contributions of interested members. Coordination and financing of Association activities, and writing the Alumni Newsletter, are the responsibilities of the Plans and Publications Department. Using the Alumni Association to improve relations with the public, the School hopes to further its mission of "Service to the Corps."

(4) Enlisted Evaluation Program for MOS Codes 71D20, 71D40, 71D50, and 71E20. The purpose of the enlisted evaluation program is to test the proficiency of enlisted personnel in the grades E-3 and above holding military occupational specialty of Legal Clerk (MOS 71D) and Court Reporter (MOS 71E). The grades achieved by the individual are the composite result of evaluation reports, a written objective test, and in the case of an enlisted court reporter, a performance test in recording and transcribing court proceedings. The results are used to determine the qualifications of an individual in his particular grade and his eligibility for superior performance pay and promotion.

The Plans Division is responsible for preparing questions for the written tests, and for preparing a 30-minute tape recording, extracted from an actual record of trial, for the court reporter's performance test. The recording consists of opening statements, examination of witnesses, arguments, and instructions. The objective test (125 items) is machine graded at the Enlisted Evaluation Center, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, while the transcripts from the performance test are graded at the School. The Enlisted Evaluation Center is also responsible for the final consolidation and publication of the tests and grades. The division is now in the process of preparing the FY 1971 tests.

(5) Legal Clerk's Course. The Plans Division has prepared a proposed program of instruction for an MOS producing course for legal clerks. This course would be given as resident instruction, and would qualify a student to perform as a legal clerk in a courts and boards section exercising special court-martial jurisdiction or in a staff judge advocate office exercising general court-martial jurisdiction.

(6) Law Day USA. The School has the responsibility for coordinating the Law Day activities of the Department of Army.

This year Law Day chairmen were appointed at each Army installation, command and activity. These chairmen were placed on the American Bar Association's mailing list for Law Day materials. The theme of the 1970 commemoration of Law Day was "Law—Bridge to Justice," emphasizing the importance of the development of proper individual attitudes to make statutory law effective. In addition, the School mailed to the chairmen display materials, illustrating the activities of the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

(7) Special Training Films. During FY 1970, the School completed filming 123 hours of instruction for reserve units. This project was finished at a savings of approximately 20% from estimated cost. These films encompassed the material presented to the resident classes including military justice, military affairs, procurement, claims, and international law. For use with these films the School has prepared study packets so that reserve units will have available a comprehensive lesson plan and course. Also, the School is furnishing technical advisors to the Army Pictorial Center for new training films on the Hague and Geneva Conventions and The General Court-Martial.

(8) Court Reporter Classes. The School continued to monitor the instruction of Army court reporters conducted by the United States Naval Justice School, Newport, Rhode Island.

(9) Notification and Survivor's Assistance. The department is responsible for all notification duties assigned to the School. In FY 1970 the department made notifications to the next of kin of deceased active servicemen in twelve cases. The majority of these cases were Vietnam casualties.

The Plans Division has the responsibility for providing survivor assistance to the next of kin of deceased active and retired servicemen. Fifteen survivor assistance cases were administered during FY 1970.

(10) Public Information Officer. During FY 1970, the Plans and Publications Department conducted a comprehensive public information program with increased emphasis on obtaining the broadest possible coverage of all events occurring at the Judge Advocate General's School. Radio and television as well as printed news media were effectively utilized. Due to increased public interest in the administration of military law and the requirements of the law regarding freedom of information, the public information responsibilities were appreciably greater than in previous years. In addition, routine public information activities were continued, including dissemination of command information to School personnel and preparation of press releases concerning awards to the School's faculty and students, maintenance of speech file services, and preparation of biographical sketches.

(11) Planning. The School conducts, coordinates and supervises research in the field of military law and prepares miscellaneous studies for internal use as well as for the entire Judge Advocate General's Corps. Additionally, the School assists in the development of broad, long-range continuity plans and procedures for the Corps.

MAJ JOHN R. THORNOCK, former Director of the Department and Project Officer for several JAG Conferences, confers with COL CRAWFORD on 1969 Conference.

(12) American Bar Association Activities. The tri-service representatives of the Young Lawyers Section of the ABA initiated jointly within the legal branches of the three armed services a continuing program to enhance the professional activities of young lawyers within the military service, and to foster recognition by the general "legal" public of the high standard of legal work performed by service lawyers. In furtherance of this program, the Chief, Plans Division, served as the Chairman of the Membership Subcommittee of the Military Service Lawyers Committee.

(13) Legal Assistance. During FY 1970 the department continued to assume responsibility for providing legal assistance to armed forces personnel and dependents in the Charlottesville area. Liaison has been established with the local Red Cross and Legal Aid Society to assist the department in their respective fields of expertise. The caseload averages 30 clients per month and consists of the type of problems customarily encountered in legal assistance offices in the field.

(14) Claims. The School's responsibility for processing claims arising from incidents in the Charlottesville area and transit damage for all local military personnel has been delegated to the Plans and Publications Department. With the large turnover of military personnel in the area, the claims load in the department is quite heavy. Under the charge of this department, the School's authority in this field has increased from mere forwarding with recommendations to actual settlement and payment of claims up to $1,000.00. Consequently, claimants in the Charlottesville area have received increasingly faster service.

(15) Judge Advocate Installation Library. The Judge Advocate Installation Library was started in April 1968, with the goal of providing answers to the many questions of young judge advocates concerning pending or future assignments outside the continental United States. To date, thirty-one slide and script programs have been received from overseas, and twenty-three from major CONUS installations.

Three overseas programs and eight CONUS programs were recorded on tape. This enables the young judge advocate to view the furnished slides of any installation while listening to the taped narrative accompanying the slides. In this way some of the uncertainty attendant to PCS moves will be alleviated.

(16) ROTC Subject Schedules. ROTC Subject Schedules S-302, S-402, and S-502 were revised and supplemented during previous years by the Plans and Publications Department. The adoption of the Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised edition), and the passage of the Military Justice Act of 1968 required the preparation of interim supplements for each of the subject schedules which were completed in FY 1970. Current plans call for revision of the subject schedules in line with the extensive revisions planned for the Army common subjects lesson plans in Military Justice for the Service Schools. The emphasis in the revised subject schedules will be upon judicial functions of small unit commanders, rather than on the functions of counsel and investigating officers.

(17) Publications Distribution. Although the School is not a distribution center, it is called upon to distribute a substantial quantity of military legal publications. Distribution projects vary from isolated requests for single copies of publications to distribution of the Manual for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised edition). During FY 1970, the Plans and Publications Department continued to distribute copies of the Manual and specially imprinted loose-leaf binders to active duty, National Guard and reserve component judge advocates. In other projects, the department distributed legal materials to judge advocates in Vietnam, and distributed military justice materials upon request to high ranking allied officers. Finally, an extensive distribution was made in FY 1970 of Military Justice materials to sister services, particularly the U. S. Marine Corps.

(18) Judge Advocate General's Corps Placement Service. In an effort to induce regular officers to serve 30 years of active service, The Judge Advocate General established a placement service for mandatory retirees. The action agency for the service is the Plans and Publications Department. Contact with all ABA accredited law schools, state bar associations, and other placement services has been established. Although the service has been in operation only a short time, promising results already have been obtained. At present, the Service has more offers than interested retirees to fill them.

(19) Military Legal Center. In cooperation with the Law School Library at the University of Virginia, the Military Legal Center continued to grow during FY 1970. Shelf space for 20,000 volumes is available for the collection. Books and materials donated to the center are marked with a distinctive bookplate which identifies the donor and signifies that the book or materials belong to the collection. The Center is intended as a unique source for those persons doing both current and historical military legal research. The School has been very pleased with the many rare and valuable books and collections which have been contributed to the Center so far.

ADMINISTRATION

General. The Office of the School Secretary, working under the direction and guidance of the Commandant, is responsible for all matters pertaining to administration, personnel, finance, billeting, transportation, logistics, and security.

This office administers the following programs: records and forms management, soldier voting, reports control, savings bonds, government leased housing, and command management.

This office handles the official correspondence of the School, controls classified material, maintains personnel records and record files, prepares School regulations, and reproduces material published by the School.

The School Secretary serves as Assistant Equal Employment Opportunity Officer for the School.

Finally, the office is responsible for coordinating supply activities, preparing all budget and fiscal programs, operating the School Library, and coordinating with the University of Virginia in arranging suitable classroom facilities.

Facilities of the School.

- (1) The Judge Advocate General's School Building. This structure, dedicated on 26 September 1956, is a red brick building of Georgian architecture. It contains 41 offices and 25 furnished rooms which are used as living quarters for personnel on temporary duty at the School.

COL RALPH D. PINTO
School Secretary

There is also a School Library, a conference room, a supply room, and a bookstore. The Judge Advocate General's School has a snack bar area, a lounge, and an outdoor patio on the fourth floor of the building.

Among the offices located in the School building are the Office of the Commandant, Office of the School Secretary, the Plans and Publications Department, the Nonresident Training Department, the Academic Department, and the Office of the Combat Developments Command, Judge Advocate Agency.

- (2) Classrooms. Directly across from The Judge Advocate General's School Building stands Clark Memorial Hall which houses the University of Virginia Law School. The Judge Advocate General's School uses two classrooms in this building on a full-time basis. One of these designed to accommodate 96 students, and the other has a seating capacity of 60. East Hall, the larger room, is used primarily for the Basic Classes; the smaller room is occupied nine months of the year by the Advanced Class. During the summer months, both are used for short courses. The rooms are available to students year-round in the evening for study purposes.

(3) Libraries. The School generally furnishes each student with the basic textbooks and other classroom materials which he will need during a course. However, when additional references are required, and for general research purposes, students attending The Judge Advocate General's School are encouraged to utilize the School library, the Law Library of the University of Virginia, and Alderman Library, the general library of the University.

The Law Library, in Clark Hall, contains over 200,000 volumes. It has an extensive collection of published reports of the American federal and state courts, the reports of the courts of the United Kingdom, treaties, digests, encyclopedias, and indices and citator services. It also contains the statutes of the United States, of the several states, and of Great Britain. The Library receives every current legal periodical of general interest printed in the English language. The academic activities of The Judge Advocate General's School, particularly the writing of theses by the members of the Advanced Class, require frequent recourse to the Law Library. The use of the Library is subject to regulations, copies of which are available at the circulation desk.

The Alderman Library has about 2,000,000 volumes and a particularly fine collection of official Government publications. It has been designated by the United States Government as a depository for public documents.

Quarters. Bachelor officers' quarters are available in The Judge Advocate General's School Building and in Courtenay House, one of the University dormitories. Assignments of rooms may be obtained through the Billeting Officer. Linens, towels and maid service are provided.

The School has a number of family housing units under government lease to be utilized as government quarters in lieu of BAQ. About half of these units are occupied by student officers of the Advanced Class and their families. The remaining units are occupied by enlisted personnel and company grade officers stationed at the School. The School Secretary and the University Housing Division maintain lists of available apartments and houses in the Charlottesville area.

Messing. Government messing facilities are not available at The Judge Advocate General's School. There is, however, a cafeteria-style snack bar on the fourth floor. There are also available a number of dining halls and snack bars operated by the University of Virginia, as well as many convenient commercial restaurants.

Officers' Open Mess. The top floor of The Judge Advocate General's School Building is used by the Officers' Open Mess. The rooms are furnished with large comfortable chairs and sofas, a color television set, piano, and other accessories. These rooms are open daily for the use of all members. In the evening hours, refreshments and snacks are available.

During the year, the Mess sponsors a full program of activities and social events for the benefit of its members including dances, buffets, picnics, class receptions, social hours, and other activities.

1LT RICHARD B. THOMPSON
Mess Secretary

Bookstore. A small bookstore is operated in the west end of The Judge Advocate General's School Building on the first floor. Various drug items, uniform equipment, stationery supplies, cigarettes and tobacco, souvenir items, gifts, and books are available for purchase.

Logistical Support. Government storage facilities are not available nor is there a transportation officer assigned to the School. However, the Logistics Office provides necessary assistance and advice in arranging for shipment and/or storage of household goods. Also, this office requisitions items of equipment needed to support the operation of the School and contracts for the printing of certain publications.

Adjutant's Office. The Adjutant's Office is responsible for the processing of all incoming and outgoing personnel. Personnel actions are handled by this office, as well as the maintenance of individual records. The office also acts as liaison with the Staff Civilian Personnel Division in Washington for the civilian employees.

Although the School has no finance officer, the Adjutant's Office is available to provide necessary assistance and advice in matters relating to pay and allowances. Close contact is maintained with the servicing Finance and Accounts office in Washington. The Adjutant's Office also operates the School mailroom and the internal distribution system.

Medical and Dental Facilities. The Judge Advocate General's School is satellited on Fort Lee, Virginia, where Kenner Army Hospital is located for medical and dental care. Locally, a contract surgeon in the Student Health Center of the University of Virginia provides out-patient services for military personnel. Because of the distance from a U. S. Army Hospital, dependents of personnel stationed at The Judge Advocate General's School are entitled to the benefits provided under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS).

MRS. R. VIVIAN HEBERT
Librarian

Dental care and eye examinations for military personnel assigned to the School are available from any local dentist and eye doctor on an individual contract basis. However, there are no provisions for such care for dependents.

Drugs are generally available from the stocks maintained at the Student Health Center and by Fort Lee Hospital Pharmacy.

means of mail service with the Athletic Facilities. Assigned and attached military personnel and all students are permitted to use all athletic facilities of the University of Virginia, including the tennis courts, bowling alleys, swimming pool, and all the indoor facilities at the University's Memorial Gymnasium. Both the School and the Intramural Department of the University have a limited amount of athletic equipment for the use of students and the Staff and Faculty. Lockers may be rented on a limited basis by personnel assigned to the School. Additional golf, tennis, bowling, and swimming facilities are also available in the Charlottesville area.

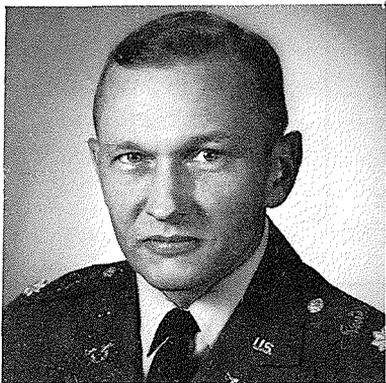

In addition to providing athletic equipment and facilities, the School sponsors a bowling and volley ball league which provides organized recreation for the Staff and Faculty and the Advanced Class. Tournaments in handball, squash, and other sports are arranged for School personnel.

U. S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND JUDGE ADVOCATE AGENCY

The U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Judge Advocate Agency was activated on 15 January 1964 at Charlottesville, Virginia. Located at The Judge Advocate General's School, this Agency assists the U. S. Army Combat Developments Command in providing answers to three questions vital to the Army in the field, viz., How should the Army fight? How should the Army be equipped? How should the Army be organized? This Agency is one of seven separate field agencies under the USACDC Combat Service Support Group at Fort Lee, Virginia, whose over-all development mission is directed toward logistical and administrative support of the Army in the field.

Through the Judge Advocate Agency in coordination with the Judge Advocate General's School, the Judge Advocate General's Corps fully participates in combat developments from concept to implementation by furnishing guidance and initiating action to improve legal services for the Army in the field.

In order to answer the three vital questions of doctrine, equipment and organization, the U. S. Army Combat Developments Command produces studies, such as TASTA-70 (The Administration Support Theater Army 1970), doctrinal literature (field manuals), tables of organization and equipment (TOE), and materiel requirements documents (QMR, SDR). The Judge Advocate Agency provides legal service input to other CDC elements for their developmental actions, and reviews their output, both for legality and for adherence to approved judge advocate concepts and policies, as well as producing studies, manuals, TOE, and materiel requirements within its area of responsibility. During the year ending 30 June 1970, the Agency continued to direct substantial effort

LTC ROBERT G. DORSEY
*Commander, Combat
Developments Command,
Judge Advocate Agency*

toward the development of a court reporting system for the Army in the field which would alleviate the personnel and materiel problems inherent in the closed microphone system. As a result of its study effort, the Agency is recommending adoption of the machine shorthand (stenotype) system, to be manned by warrant officer reporters assigned to the U. S. Army Judiciary. The Agency also submitted a documented recommendation for the inclusion of nonsupervisory legal clerks in TOE judge advocate sections, and participated in a number of classified actions pertaining to the post-Vietnam Army. Production of FM 27-1, The Staff Judge Advocate, and revision of TOE 27-500G, The Judge Advocate General Service Organization, were again deferred due to higher priority doctrinal literature and organizational actions in the Army-wide developmental program.

Judge advocates in the field are urged to correspond directly with the Agency in connection with suggestions for improving legal service to the Army, particularly in the areas of doctrine, organization, and materiel.

APPENDIX VIII

THESIS TOPICS AND SCOPE PROJECTS AND SCOPE EIGHTEENTH ADVANCED CLASS Theses

CAPTAIN MARY LOU BOSILJEVAC, The Military Lawyer in the United States Army Physical Disability System. An analysis of the United States Army Physical Disability System and the duties of the Judge Advocate Officer within that system. The specified legal duties performed at each board level are unique and unfamiliar to most military lawyers. It is the aim of this paper to familiarize the military lawyer with these duties, as well as to point out existing ethical and other problems and to recommend possible solutions to these problems.

MAJOR GEORGE H. DYGERT, Implied Warranties in Government Contracts. A study of implied warranties by the Government in its contracts with regard to the circumstances in which they arise, what is warranted and their consequences.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM G. ECKHARDT, Intrusion Into the Body. An examination of Constitutional problems encountered in the introduction of evidence obtained by intrusion into the body. The thesis of this paper is that the rights of servicemen should be protected with the search and seizure concepts of the Fourth Amendment, rather than with the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination when intrusive bodily searches are required. The United States Supreme Court enunciated a standard for intrusion into the body found in Schmerber v. California, 384 U.S. 757 (1966). The subsequent application of this standard in the federal courts, and its adoption in the Manual for Courts-Martial, 1969 (Revised) are explored. Federal opinion concerning the privilege against self-incrimination is contrasted with opinions of the United States Court of Military Appeals and with the new self-incrimination section of the 1969 Manual. The purpose of this study is to give the practicing Staff Judge Advocate a basis for predicting the law in this embryonic yet rapidly developing legal area.

MAJOR JAMES A. ENDICOTT, JR., Substantial Performance and Federal Supply Contracts. The doctrine of substantial performance of federal supply contracts—what is it today, how does it compare with corresponding doctrine in private commercial law, what should it be, what corrective actions are necessary, and what preventive measures are necessary at the contractor-contracting officer level.

MAJOR LEROY F. FOREMAN, Freedom of Religion in the Armed Forces. An analysis of the serviceman's right to freedom of religion as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the impact of his rights on military training and discipline.

FIRST LIEUTENANT MAHMOUD GRAMI, The Imperial Iranian Justice Department of the Armed Forces. The function, organization and jurisdiction of the Imperial Iranian Justice Department of the Armed Forces.

CAPTAIN JAMES H. GRANGER (USMC), Dissent Within the Armed Forces. This thesis defines the extent to which the commander can lawfully control dissidence affecting his command. Pertinent Constitutional provisions, statutes, regulations, guidance and case law are analyzed. The author examines the major manifestations of dissent encountered within the armed forces and the counter-measures which have been taken by military authorities, and recommends measures for the effective control of dissent.

MAJOR BARRETT S. HAIGHT, Military Drug Offenses—The Legal Issues. An analysis of the military laws dealing with drug abuse and a critique of the prominent current issues related to prosecution of drug offenses.

CAPTAIN WALTER E. HERKENHOFF, State Regulation and Taxation of the Ownership and Use of Motor Vehicles. An exhaustive study and analysis of the problems respecting motor vehicles owned by the serviceman and his dependents contained in section 514 of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act. Includes a complete survey of all statutes, court decisions, and administrative opinions covering automobiles, boats, trailers, or mobile homes, driver's or operator's licenses and automobile inspection stickers.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JULES B. LLOYD, Unlawful Entry and Re-Entry Into Military Reservations in Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1382. An examination of all aspects of an installation commander's power to exclude individuals from his post, and the application of the penal sanctions of 18 U.S.C. § 1382. Includes: the bases on which removal or exclusion can be effected; developing constitutional limitations; appropriate criteria for removal or exclusion; means of dealing with some practical problems; and recommended elements to be included in bar letters.

CAPTAIN ROBERT H. MCNEILL, II, Ministates and the United Nations. An examination of the smaller countries of the world and their relationship, past, present and future to the United States, to include an explanation of the existing membership requirements and their application. To be covered is an investigation into the necessity for full U.N. membership with the advantages and disadvantages thereof and possible alternatives thereto, and recommendations for modification and improvement to the present system of representation. As a vehicle for this study, several of the smaller countries and territories due independent status in the future will be utilized as examples, to show the possible impact upon the present structure of the United Nations.

MAJOR CHARLES H. MITCHELL, JR. (USMC), Justice, Discipline, and Reconsideration—A New Perspective on Article 62 (a). A study of the so-called balance between justice and discipline under the Uniform Code of Military Justice as it relates to the power of a convening authority to direct a military judge to reconsider dismissal of a specification with emphasis on the historical and legislative development of Article 62(a); the nature and extent of the power to direct reconsideration; the conflicts generated between the convening authority, prosecutor, and military judge; and an evaluation of Article 62(a) in the light of current trends in military justice.

MAJOR LEONARD R. PIOTROWSKI, Duty Connected Offenses—Legal Concept or Treaty Term. An analysis of duty connected offenses as a means of allocating jurisdiction under United States Status of Forces Agreements and the trend to limit the extent of the concept.

MAJOR JAMES F. PRICE, The Relevance of International Law to the Tactical Use of Helicopters in Warfare. A study of helicopter warfare and the relevance of international law as it pertains to the tactical use of armed helicopters.

MAJOR THOMAS M. RANKIN, The All Writs Act and the Military Judicial System. This thesis concerns itself with the concept of extraordinary relief generally and the All Writs Act specifically, as it relates to both the practice in the military and civil courts. The thesis traces the history of the United States Court of Military Appeals' assertion of its powers under the All Writs Act and attempts to determine the applicability of All Writs Act powers to the lower military courts.

MAJOR JOHN T. SHERWOOD, JR., The Freedom of Information Act: A Compendium for the Military Lawyer. This article presents an analysis of the disclosure requirements of the Freedom of Information Act. The Attorney General's position as to the scope of the several disclosure exemptions is contrasted with developing federal case law and opinions of The Judge Advocate General of the Army.

MAJOR CARROLL J. TICHENOR, The Accused's Right to a Speedy Trial in Military Law. A study of the nature of the right to speedy trial as developed in the military law; an analysis of significant recent developments; an examination of the right at trial to include how the issue is raised, the importance of specific prejudice, the government's burden, evidentiary standards and the quantum of proof, and the responsibilities of the military judge; and an analysis of the doctrine of waiver of the right to a speedy trial.

MAJOR ROLLIN A. VAN BROEKHOVEN, Equal Employment Opportunity—A Labor Dilemma of Modern Government Procurement. This study presents a law, science and policy-oriented analysis of equal employment opportunity as affected by government procurement or federal assistance. Consideration of separation of powers, role of the Comptroller General, use of the government contract as a tool for achieving social change, legality and propriety of the use of nondiscrimination requirements in government contracts and affirmative action programs will be included as a means of observing law as a tool for achieving social goals.

Projects

MAJOR HERBERT M. FLEMMING, CAPTAIN RICHARD G. MANN, CAPTAIN TERRENCE E. DEVLIN, Evidence, The Law of Confessions. This project involves complete revision and updating of Chapters 9-15 of DA Pam 27-172, Evidence. The project concerns itself with the chapters involving confessions, admissions, self-incrimination, Article 31b warning requirements as well as those dictated by Miranda v. Arizona, and the appellate treatment of the various failures to warn.

MAJOR ANTHONY J. BONFANTI, MAJOR GEORGE S. HARRINGTON, MAJOR DANIEL W. SHIMEK, DA Pam 27-166, Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act (Revision). A comprehensive study and analysis of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act leading to the preparation and revision of DA Pam 27-166.

CAPTAIN JOHN P. DUNN, Sentencing Handbook. This project examines the types of punishment available at courts-martial, the limitations on punishments at courts-martial, and the determination of punishment at courts-martial. This will provide a meaningful guide for staff judge advocates in the field similar to the Legal Clerk's Handbook, DA Pam 27-16. The project's major accomplishment is to provide the Military Judge with a working tool in arriving at a fair and just sentence as well as providing a working tool for staff judge advocates.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER JOHN J. MARTENS (USN), CAPTAIN JOE D. MILLER, Substantive Crimes and Affirmative Defenses. This project involves a compilation and digest of available cases concerning Substantive Crimes. It also provides a current analysis of the defense of Self Defense. It provides a comprehensive text, in Department of the Army Pamphlet form, to be used as a research tool by field judge advocates. The major accomplishment of this project is the updating and reorganization of the pertinent case law and existing publications, so that they may be more effectively utilized by judge advocates.

MAJOR R. KEVIN MCHUGH, Initial Review of Courts-Martial. Revision and updating of DA Pam 27-175-1, Initial Review. The project concerns itself with, among other things, the nature and effect of error, the record of trial including court-martial orders, responsibilities of the convening authority, and responsibilities of the staff judge advocate.
