2

From teeming vale and wooded hill
Come armored heroes bold and free,
To save the fertile soil they till,
And strike for home and Liberty!
They buckle on the sword and shield,
And hasten to the nation's call,
To crush the rebels on the field,
Or in their country's battles fall!

3

Amid the smoke and carnage now,
Triumphantly their banners wave,
And faithful to the patriot's vow,
They trample on the traitor's grave!
Their shouts of victory rend the sky,
While piercing fife and rolling drum
Proclaim their legions rushing by,
And still they come, they come, they come!

New Jersey calls her Sons to arms.
