Here are some examples of cellular control mechanisms:

1. Cellular control mechanisms ([QH604-QH604.5](May Subd Geog))
   - Cellular control mechanisms are a complex interplay of cellular processes that regulate the function and behavior of cells.
   - These mechanisms are crucial for maintaining cellular homeostasis and responding to environmental changes.

2. Cellular signal transduction ([QD517.C45] (May Subd Geog))
   - This process involves the initiation and propagation of signals within cells to trigger specific responses.
   - Examples include the JAK-STAT pathway and receptor-mediated signals.

3. Cellular pathology ([QD525.C45] (May Subd Geog))
   - This area focuses on the study of diseases and abnormalities at the cellular level.
   - It involves understanding how cellular processes go awry and lead to disease.

These topics are just a few examples of the many cellular control mechanisms and processes that are studied within the field of cellular biology. The knowledge gained from these studies can lead to advancements in medicine, technology, and our understanding of the fundamental aspects of life at the cellular level.

Computer managed instruction (May Subd Geog) [LE1629.46]

Here are entered works on the use of computers to assist teachers and administrators in coordinating the instructional process, e.g. retrieving and summarizing performance records and cumulative files. Works on an automated method of instruction in which a student interacts directly with instructional materials stored in a computer are entered under Computer-assisted instruction.
