Current Awareness

Much has changed recently in the realm of library metadata, with even more change on the horizon. The documentation that guides PCC/NACO Series Authority work is being updated continually as policies and best practices evolve. To stay informed, practitioners must read the PCCList, look at the documents it links to, and visit the NACO web page regularly. To subscribe to the PCCList, go to: <http://www.loc.gov/aba/pcc/discussion.html>

Getting Involved

For series authority work especially, future decisions will be made by catalogers at institutions beyond the Library of Congress. So -- lend your voice to the PCCList; ask questions; join a task force; propose a revision; submit a position paper. It's up to us.

This concludes Series Training for PCC Participants, a manual and reference guide for NACO series contributors. We hope you have found it helpful.

If you have questions that your local trainer or your institution's NACO liaison cannot answer, please send a message to series@indiana.edu, an e-mail account set up by the PCC for matters related to series. Messages received there will be forwarded to a list of active PCC series catalogers for resolution.

Once you are ready to begin contributing RDA series authority records, contact series@indiana.edu to set up the review process associated with this Training.
