FEDLINK Orientation to Federal Libraries and Information Centers Series:

The Supreme Court of the United States Library

The Supreme Court of the United States Library's main mission is to assist the Justices in fulfilling their constitutional responsibilities by providing them with the best reference and research support in the most efficient, ethical and economic manner. In addition to serving our primary clientele, the Justices and other Court staff, the library is open to members of the Supreme Court bar, federal government attorneys and members of Congress and their legal staffs. Housed in the Supreme Court building since 1935, the library maintains a collection of over 500,000 volumes, 200,000 microforms and more than 100 databases. This collection focuses on United States federal and state primary law and government documents, and also contains law reviews, major legal treatises, legal dictionaries and British cases and treatises.

Following a courtroom lecture about the Supreme Court, the tour will include a look at the history and structure of the library.

Members of each library department will talk about how their department functions in support of our mission. A walking tour of the Library, including the Rare Book Room and Records and Briefs Collection, will follow.
