The Science & Business Reading Room at the Library of Congress serves as the gateway for science, technology and business research. Science and business reference specialists serve the Library's mission to engage, inspire and inform researchers both in-person and online, covering topics from cooking to corporate histories, energy to transportation, and oceanography to outer space. This tour will describe the history and architecture of the John Adams Building, discuss science and business services and resources, and display select items from the wide-ranging collections.

For this special networking edition of Great Escapes, doors will open at 9:30 a.m. for refreshments. There will be two tour groups: one that departs at 9:50 a.m. and one that departs at 10:50 a.m. Due to space restrictions, limited seats are available on each tour, so register early to reserve your spot. There will be opportunities for networking before and after your tour.
