

Talking Book Topics March–April 2017

Volume 83, Number 2

About Talking Book Topics

Talking Book Topics is published bimonthly in audio, large-print, and online formats and distributed at no cost to participants in the Library of Congress reading program for people who are blind or have a physical disability. An abridged version is distributed in braille. This periodical lists digital talking books and magazines available through a network of cooperating libraries and carries news of developments and activities in services to people who are blind, visually impaired, or cannot read standard print material because of an organic physical disability.

The annotated list in this issue is limited to titles recently added to the national collection, which contains thousands of fiction and nonfiction titles, including bestsellers, classics, biographies, romance novels, mysteries, and how-to guides. Some books in Spanish are also available. To explore the wide range of books in the national collection, visit the NLS Union Catalog online at www.loc.gov/nls or contact your local cooperating library.

Talking Book Topics is also available in large print from your local cooperating library and in downloadable audio files on the NLS Braille and Audio Reading Download (BARD) site at <https://nlsbard.loc.gov>. An abridged version is available to subscribers of Braille Book Review.

In Brief

Free PC software available for downloading talking books from NLS BARD
NLS patrons who are current BARD users can now log onto BARD to download BARD Express, a free Windows-based software application designed to make it easier to find, download, and transfer books from BARD to a cartridge.

“BARD Express will make browsing BARD audio materials, downloading titles and transferring them to a cartridge or USB drive much easier for patrons using a PC,” said Karen Keninger, NLS director. “We hope it will make the thousands of books available on BARD readily accessible to more patrons.”

BARD Express manages audio materials that users download to their computers and categorizes the materials as books, magazines, read items, and unread items. The program also simplifies downloading and transferring talking books to a cartridge or USB drive by providing a button that unzips and transfers the files to an external storage device. It also provides device-management options from the main menu.

Don Olson, BARD operations manager at NLS, said “BARD Express enables NLS patrons to more easily unzip the books they download from BARD. Gone are the days of having to carry out multiple file-management steps in order to place a book or magazine on an NLS cartridge or a USB drive.”

Answers to Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) and documentation for BARD Express are also available once you log into BARD and go to the download page for BARD Express. For video tutorials, go to YouTube and search for the term BARD Express.

BARD Express was the brainchild of Kirk Saathoff, a software developer whose wife and son are patrons of the NLS braille and talking-book program and frequent users of BARD. To open a BARD account, contact your local cooperating library.

Free online tutorials on free, open-source screen reader

The American Foundation for the Blind (AFB) has released a new educational series, Learn NVDA, focused on NonVisual Desktop Access (NVDA), a free, open-source, portable screen reader for Microsoft Windows. The eight-part series of free, online video tutorials is designed to help people who are blind or have low vision learn ways to use the computer with a screen reader and improve their computer skills. The Learn NVDA tutorials are designed to allow people with visual impairments who have never used NVDA before to independently install the program and learn how to use it.

The series covers how to install NVDA on a computer, navigate Microsoft Windows with NVDA, use NVDA "hotkeys" (that is, keystroke shortcuts), install and use the Firefox Internet browser, and access and interact with documents in Microsoft Word (word processing software) and Excel (spreadsheet software) formats by using NVDA. Each tutorial video includes step-by-step instructions that feature the audio of a presenter using NVDA and a video of the presenter's computer screen. The entire Learn NVDA series can be accessed at www.afb.org/info/living-with-vision-loss/using-technology/assistive-technology-videos/learn-nvda/1234.

IRS services for people with disabilities

Hundreds of accessible federal tax forms and publications are available for download from the IRS Accessibility web pages. Visit IRS.gov and select the Forms & Pubs tab to access the Accessible Forms and Pubs link. You can choose from large-print, text, accessible PDFs, ebraille, or HTML formats that are compatible when used with screen readers and refreshable braille displays. The IRS also provides videos in American Sign Language with the latest tax information and has a dedicated ASL YouTube Channel that houses the videos.

People who are unable to complete their tax returns because of a physical disability or are age 60 or older may get assistance through the IRS Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) or Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) programs. You can find a nearby VITA or TCE location by using the available locator tools or calling 1-800-906-9887. Publication 907, Tax Highlights for Persons with Disabilities, explains the tax implications of certain disability benefits and other issues, and is available at www.IRS.gov.

Books for Adults

Books listed in this issue of Talking Book Topics were recently sent to cooperating libraries. The complete collection contains a wide range of fiction and nonfiction books, including biographies, classics, westerns, mysteries, romances, and others.

Registered users may also immediately download all titles and magazines from the NLS Braille and Audio Reading Download (BARD) service at <https://nlsbard.loc.gov>. The free BARD Mobile app is available from the App Store, Google Play, and Amazon's Appstore for reading talking books on your personal smart phone or tablet. To learn more about the collection or to sign up for BARD, contact your local cooperating library. Regional library telephone numbers and email addresses are listed on the last pages of this magazine.

Books within the headings Adult Fiction and Adult Nonfiction are listed alphabetically by subject category, author last name, and title. For example the title War and Peace by Leo Tolstoy would be listed in Adult Fiction under the Classics subject category and by the last name Tolstoy.

Note: A notice may appear immediately following the book description to indicate occurrences of violence, strong language, or descriptions of sex. The word "some" before any of these terms indicates an occasional or infrequent occurrence, as in "some strong language." Commercial audiobooks for which NLS does not have access to the print book may display the notice "unrated," which means that the book may or may not contain violence, strong language, or descriptions of sex.
